Report British Shell Java Base

INDONESE SAY BOMBARDMENT IS INCREASING

Strike as Surrender Deadline Passes

BATAVIA, Java, Nov. 10 [Saturday]—(AP)—A spokesman for the unrecognized Indonesian republic reported that British forces started shelling Soerabaja, Java naval base, at 6 a. m. today. The bombardment was said to be increasing in intensity at 8 a. m.

The Indonesian report was not confirmed at noon by the headquarters of Lt. Gen. Philip Christison, allied commander in the Dutch East Indies. Christison's headquarters issued a statement that it had "nothing to report" and that "communications were not working well."

The Indonesian spokesman said that many Indonesians were killed or wounded by the shelling. He added that the British presumably employed both artillery and warships.

Ultimatum to Indonese

The report of the shelling came after the Indonesians had been given an ultimatum to surrender their arms by 6 a. m. today. Earlier, British reënforcements were reported to have assumed new positions in Soerabaja, where an explosive tension reigned.

The Indonesian spokesman indicated the British had opened fire to prepare a cover for the advance of British troops into the city. He did not say whether royal air force planes had joined in the bombardment.

Maj. Gen. E. C. Mansberg, commanding British forces which have been holding the perimeter around the docks and air fields of the naval base, had warned the Indonesian Nationalists he would enforce the ultimatum "with all the sea, land, and air forces at my disposal."

British planes showered leaflets on the naval base, outlining the exact procedure for unconditional surrender by the Indonesians. A Dutch monitor at Soerabaja said Nationalist leaders were exhorting their followers by radio to battle to the last.

A general uprising threatened all thru the rich island of Java, led by an army of 100,000 Indonesians determined to resist restoration of Dutch colonial rule.

Occupy Key Positions

British military authorities admitted the situation at Soerabaja was critical. They announced that clashes to date in the naval base had caused 303 British and Indian casualties, including 31 killed, 189 missing and 83 wounded.

They brought in new forces of the 5th Indian division yesterday, and deployed their troops into key positions.

Gen. Christison issued a proclamation declaring the British would "tolerate no resistance" in seeking out and punishing those responsible for the slaying of Brig. A. W. F. Mallaby about 10 days ago.

Plot to Shoot All in Spain's Cabinet Fails

MADRID, Spain, Nov. 9 [Reuters]—A plot to ambush and shoot the entire Spanish cabinet was discovered by the secret police here today, it was learned from a reliable source.

Twelve arrests have been made and more were expected.

The plot, described as communist inspired, is said to have included a plan to ambush the ministerial motor cars on their return from tonight's cabinet meeting at the Pardo palace 10 miles from Madrid, where Gen. Francisco Franco lives.

Machine guns were to be posted in the woods to fire under cover of darkness.

[The Spanish cabinet normally numbers 13 persons.]

Considerable stocks of arms have been discovered, other versions said.

2 Big German Arms Plants to Be Dynamited

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Nov. 9 — Col. James Boyd, formerly geologist at the Colorado School of Mines, is taking reporters aboard Gen. Lucius Clay's special train tomorrow to witness the dynamiting of the Kaufbeuren and Ebenhausen munitions plants in the American zone. The two factories cost 44 million dollars. They produced 1,100 tons of nitrocellulose and 450 tons of smokeless powder monthly.

It required three weeks for 2,000 German prisoners of war, under direction of American army demolition squads, to prepare the vast plants for destruction. Kaufbeuren will dissolve into rubble on Monday and Ebenhausen on Tuesday.

Speeds Up Imports

Demolition of the key plants of German industry — the nitrogen works—is scheduled to begin Tuesday, and press photographers are promised excellent pictures as the plunger is pressed down and the huge factories crumble into dust.

Frederick Winant, brother of the American ambassador to Britain and now chief of the trade and industry section of the military government here, is proceeding to Frankfurt Sunday to endeavor to speed up his plan to obtain important imports for the American zone, since the four power plan to obtain supplies for all Germany is hopelessly bogged down in committee.

Have Hops to Sell

The first import Winant seeks for Germany is a consignment of phosphorus rock from Algeria, which, with potash and synthetic nitrogen, makes fertilizer. The fact that a nitrogen plant makes fertilizer in peace time still leaves it classified as a war factory.

Thirty-five hundred tons of hops in the American zone are available for France, which needs them for beer; only half a pound is required per keg, and the 3,500 tons are worth 6 million dollars. This sum will buy an initial consignment of phosphorus rock from North Africa, and, if any nitrogen plants survive demolition, will insure crops next year.

THE HIDEOUS SPECTER

Cops Lay Off as Waukegan Bets on Races

Big Steve and Shorty's handbook on the second floor at 118 Washington st., Waukegan, was reaping a harvest yesterday. The holdup of the place late Thursday when five gunmen stripped 35 victims of more than $10,000 in money and valuables brought patrons flocking thru the door.

"Business," said John [Shorty] Pagonas, glancing around the big room, "is terrific." Steve Warner, towering beside his partner, agreed. "More women," he commented as patrons came and went.

Apprehensive glances were directed from time to time at the open doorway, but these were in timorous remembrance of the holdup, not in anticipation of a blue coat and brass buttons. It wasn't the day for the police to come around.

$205 a Month and No Bother

That day, which comes once a month, is as regular as clockwork. The policeman comes in, Steve or Shorty goes with him to Police Magistrate Clarence L. Brown's court, a disorderly conduct complaint is read, a plea of guilty is entered, $200 fine and $5 costs is paid, and Steve and Shorty operate without interruption for another 30 days.

That's how Mayor Frank G. Wallin and Police Chief Bart Tyrrell handle gambling in Waukegan. They've been doing it ever since Wallin was elected to his first term in 1941. State's Atty. Harry Hall knows about it and so does everybody else in Waukegan. Nobody has voiced strong objections.

Two other bookmaking places in Waukegan pay the same $200 monthly fines as Big Steve and Shorty's. Storekeepers who have punchboards that reward lucky ticket holders with money or merchandise pay fines of $100 a month. Taverns allowing card games are assessed $50 a month. Slot machines are banned.

No Payments to Politicians

The fine money goes into the city treasury. The bookies don't have to take care of "the captain's man" or the ward committeeman or anybody else with regular gratuities. One trip to court a month turns the trick.

For the monthly fines, the bookies and other gambling operators get receipts. There is no official guarantee that their places will not be raided. Legally they are treated as law violators, but no one yet has had the idea of fining them more than the customary amount or oftener than once a month.

Wallin and Tyrrell admit that the monthly fines are only a subterfuge that amounts to licensing gambling, but they point out that the system yields approximately $1,200 a month for the city's treasury.

Chief Urges Uniform Treatment

"It should be one way or another with gambling in Illinois, not in between as it is now," Tyrrell said. "Either we ought to drive out all gambling or recognize it as just another type of business. It can't be fish one place and fowl another."

Tyrrell said police investigating the holdup at Big Steve and Shorty's concluded it was the work of a Chicago gang, possibly the same one that has made several similar raids on Chicago handbooks. The only patron to make a complaint was John Mastakouras, 2140 Sheridan rd., North Chicago, a restaurant cook, who was robbed of $10 and his alien registration certificate. He wants the certificate back, he said.

1,100 OF 33D DIVISION CHICAGOLANDERS DUE AT SEATTLE TONIGHT

BY GEORGE SCHREIBER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 9—The first 1,100 high point Chicagoland men of the 33d division, formerly the Illinois National guard, are due to arrive here at 8 p. m. tomorrow aboard the army transport Marine Falcon. The ship, the first of six bringing members of the 33d home for early discharge from service, has 3,087 enlisted men and 230 officers aboard.

Lt. Col. Fred R. Mast, in charge of troop movements in the Seattle area, said the men would be taken at once to Forts Lewis and Lawton for processing and entrainment for Chicago.

The men don't want parades. What they want is fast train service home, he said, and that's what the army will give them.

The transport Procyon, with 420 aboard is due Friday, Nov. 16. Others still to be heard from are: Galbraigh, 169; Lyon, 1,516; Register, 129 [to dock in San Francisco].

No matter what time the men get to their processing camps, they will sit down to a broiled steak dinner with all the trimmings, including pie a la mode and plenty of fresh milk.

Truman to Get New Yacht; It Has 2 Pianos

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Norfolk Navy Yard, Va., Nov. 9—Fitted with department store furniture and decorated in the style of a modern hotel, the new Presidential yacht Williamsburg was made ready here today for its shakedown cruise. Navy officials expected it would be moved to Washington, D. C., for President Truman's use before Dec. 1

The Williamsburg, a 244 foot former gunboat, used in the North Atlantic as a convoy escort during the war, will provide the President with a three-room suite for his use, four staterooms with baths for guests, two spacious saloons, and a communications room which will put him in touch by radio with any spot in the world.

Won't Be Fancy

There will be nothing fancy about the Williamsburg—outside of the estimated annual upkeep of between $50,000 and $60,000—it was apparent today when the vessel was opened for inspection to reporters and photographers.

The Williamsburg was built in 1931 at Bath, Me., as a yacht. When she was bought by the navy in 1941, however, she was stripped of her luxurious fittings and converted into a command vessel, with guns and special communications equipment.

In fitting her for Presidential use, few changes were made in the basic construction of the vessel at this navy yard, other than building the special quarters for the President on the boat deck, Comdr. J. K. Vardaman, Mr. Truman's naval aide, told reporters today.

Quarters for Guests

Just forward of the quarter deck is a medium size saloon for the President's guests; the four large staterooms, each with a tile bath and two wide box bunks; a kitchen, or galley, in navy parlance, and a spacious dining saloon with an artificial fireplace topped by a marble mantel. In one corner is a $255 spinet piano at which the musical President can entertain his guests.

Topside, on the boat deck, the President will have his own quarters. His living room, with another piano and fake fireplace, overlooks the quarter deck. Forward of this are two large staterooms with bleached oak furniture covered with green homespun linen, turquoise blue walls, and rose beige carpets. A pantry with ice box adjoins the President's quarters.

The Williamsburg is powered with two diesel motors and carries a crew of 60 men and four officers. The speed is officially 16 knots.

Dutch Seek to Buy More U. S. Bases in Guinea

MOROTAI, N. E. I., Nov. 1 [Delayed] (AP)—The Dutch are negotiating for the purchase of Morotai and other United States built bases, Col. W. S. Phillips, Salisbury, Md., commander on the island, reported today. The Netherlands East Indies recently purchased the base at Hollandia, Dutch New Guinea, for $6,000,000. "The Dutch are interested chiefly in the purchase of food stocks. The negotiations are under way at Manila," said Phillips.

GAG SCANDAL IS THE WORST, SAYS WHEELER

Senators Clash Over Pearl Harbor

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9—Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] told the senate today that the gag imposed on the Pearl Harbor investigation was unprecedented in his 22 years' experience in the body.

"The Teapot Dome investigation, in which I played a part, would have been a complete failure if such tactics had been permitted," he asserted.

Wheeler's assertion came during explosive debate on the senate floor in which President Truman was accused by Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] of lending his influence to the ban on activities of minority members of the committee.

He Interrupts Barkley

Chairman Barkley [D., Ky.] was heatedly replying when Wheeler broke in.

"I have been in a good many investigations conducted by the senate," Wheeler remarked. "I assisted my colleague, Sen. Walsh, in the Teapot Dome inquiry. I have never known in all my experience when a member of an investigating committee was refused permission to examine any government papers which he wished to see.

"It is very unfortunate that this situation should arise. Members of the senate should have confidence in each other. I can't conceive of any senator distrusting another so much that he would not wish him to examine government papers alone. The committee, by refusing to give minority members the right to examine government documents, is saying it doesn't trust an individual member.

Daugherty and Coolidge

"In the Teapot Dome inquiry, individual members had the right to examine government records whenever and wherever they wished, and it would have been a complete failure if they did not have that right.

"I sent for Atty. Gen. Harry Daugherty and asked him for certain files. He refused to give them. President Coolidge immediately called him in and asked for his resignation. After that time, I was given any files I asked for.

"And I would remind the senate that I was a member of the minority party at that time."

The President's Directive

Sen. Ferguson opened the discussion by noting that President Truman's new directive on the investigation "requested" heads of departments to authorize their employes to volunteer information and to answer questions by committee members. The committee had asked the President to "direct" the department heads to do this.

"That leaves to the secretaries of war and navy and other department heads the sole discretion whether to

GEN. ZHDANOV GOES TO SUCCEED STALIN, HELSINKI REPORTS

[By Cable to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 9—Gen. Andrei Alexandrovitch Zhdanov, chairman of the Leningrad soviet and until recently head of the allied control commission in Helsinki, has gone to Moscow to substitute for Stalin during the latter's illness, according to a private message from Helsinki.

Stalin has named Zhdanov as his succcessor, according to this source. In support of this report is the fact that Zhdanov has personal control over one of Russia's greatest military districts, the Leningrad area, the Baltic provinces, and northeast Russia in the neighborhood of the Urals. He is also vice chairman of the peoples council and commissar for internal affairs.

Born at Tver, now Kalinin, the son of a school inspector, Zhdanov was graduated from St. Petersburg university at the age of 17 and joined the Bolshevist party. He is described as a realist politician.

New Trolleys to Have Latest Improvements

The 600 new street cars under construction or planned for the Chicago Surface Lines will incorporate many improvements over the streamlined type in operation on Madison st., surface lines officials disclosed yesterday. More room, fresher air, and better visibility for standing passengers are among the features.

The new cars will be 3 inches wider than those operating on Madison st., the added space providing a wider aisle. The ventilation will be doubled and passengers will be able to raise and lower windows with a crank as automobile windows are moved.

Have Slanted Windshields

A "unique improvement" over the Madison st. cars will be a slanted V-shaped windshield, with a shadow apron inside the car, that eliminates glare from interior lighting and makes unnecessary the curtain behind the motorman. Standing passengers will be able to look out thru windows above the regular side windows.

Instead of air brakes and an air mechanism for operation of doors these controls will be operated electrically. Motor brakes will bring the car almost to a complete stop. As its speed approaches zero, spring drum brakes will complete the stop and serve as a parking brake. In addition, the car will have four battery operated track brakes, in which energized magnets grab the rails. These operate either with or independently of the other brakes.

Two Places for Exit

Surface lines officials expect one of the greatest improvements in the new cars will consist of the provisions for moving passengers and collecting fares. Passengers will board the car in the rear, where there are three pairs of doors. The conductor will collect fares at the rear. Passengers will be able to leave the car at the front, where there are three pairs of doors, or in the center, where there are two pairs.

Passengers boarding Madison st. cars at the front may leave either by center doors or by a small door at the rear. Experience has shown that few passengers use the rear door and there is a tendency for passengers to jam the front of the cars while leaving the rear portion half empty. The old cry of "step forward please" is expected to be unnecessary in the new cars because passengers must step forward to get off, either in center or at the front.

Place Order Soon

Placing of a 15½ million dollar order for new transit equipment, including 400 street cars and 480 buses, will be started within the next 10 days, Surface lines officials said. The lines have ordered 200 new street cars and 195 buses costing 6½ million dollars.

Ninety of the street cars in the first order placed last March are being built by the St. Louis Car company at St. Louis, Mo., and 110 by the Pullman company in its Worcester, Mass. shops. Delivery of these was expected in January, but the builders recently served notice that they cannot start deliveries before March, because of delays in receiving parts of the motors and equipment. The last of the cars are expected by July 1.

However, Surface lines officials said they hoped that when the production lines begin to roll, the manufacturers will turn out the cars rapidly and will be able to build all the 600 cars in the Chicago modernization program in 1946.

The lines also hope to receive during 1946 all of the 675 buses authorized in the program. The 195

STUNG BY TALK ON UNIFICATION WITH THE ARMY

Flyer Says Planes Can Save U. S.

BY WILLIAM MOORE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9—Stung by criticism from scrappy little Lt. Gen. Doolittle, Navy Secretary Forrestal tonight blew the lid off the army-navy feud over the proposal to combine the services into one department.

Gen. Doolittle

Forrestal sent a blistering protest to War Secretary Patterson against the verbal bombing Doolittle gave the navy and government mossbacks this morning before a senate military affairs subcommittee holding hearings on the merger proposal.

Objects to "Hypocrisy"

Forrestal's letter objected primarily on sentimental grounds to what he called an appeal based on the deaths of service men and the grief of their families, and to Doolittle's reference to "hypocrisy" in the discussion of merging the commands. The navy is opposing the unification and the army is supporting it.

Members of congress, however, said they believed the navy's wrath was inspired primarily by the salty phrases with which the bronzed leader of the historic first bombing of Tokyo and commander of the 8th air force which devastated Germany rebuked the navy in a plea for the nation to stop 150 year old thinking in national defense.

Battleships and Carriers

"The battleship has been obsolescent 20 years and obsolete 10. The navy airplane carrier has reached its highest efficiency and is going down.

"The carrier has two attributes. One is, it can move about. The other is, it can be sunk.

"The navy had the transport to make the invasion of Japan possible. The ground forces had the power to make it successful. And the B-29 made it unnecessary.

Answer to Admirals

"It was not sea power that compelled Japan to sue for peace. [This was in reply to earlier statements attributed to Admirals Nimitz and Mitscher that sea power had brought Japan's surrender.] Our B-29 boys probably rest uneasily in their graves as a result of those statements.

"Ninety-six per cent of the bombing damage done to Japan was done by land based airplanes and four percent by carrier planes.

"I have seen the contention made that you can have effective unity of command in the field in war time without having unity of control in peace time. I believe this is wrong and I believe that, even worse, it is hyprocrisy.

Calls for Unity

"When a war is over the commands in theaters of operations are, of course, liquidated, and nothing remains except the home organization. If there is no unity there, there is no unity at all. It is the form of the home organization that will control the training, the tactics, the doctrine, the thinking, and the habits of the men whom we will train to fight the next war if it comes to us.

"If they are trained in two departments, we will have the same makeshifts and fumblings that we had at the outset of the war just past."

The army chuckled, the navy looked bleak, and the senators asked the man the government bigwigs called an air force agitator—before Pearl Harbor—to repeat once, to make sure they had heard aright about B-29s making the Japanese invasion unnecessary.

Forrestal Is Enraged

Navy shorthand girls hastened, and when their notes were transcribed Forrestal thundered at Patterson in a letter, ostensibly basing his protest on the mention of the B-29 boys in their graves and the allusion to hypocrisy:

"I question whether we should allow the discussion of a proposal on which our departments are divided to lead us into impugning the good faith of people who disagree with us, and I question especially whether death in any particular line of duty—and the resultant grief at home—should be appealed to in order to advance any individual point of view.

"The fact that an officer of Gen. Doolittle's caliber and admitted high qualities could be led to accuse responsible commanders of any service of disregard for the sacrifices made by the men of another service illustrates precisely the general drift of events which gives me such deep concern.

"Exchange of Personalities"

"If we allow an honest difference over principle to degenerate into an exchange of personalities, we shall do irreparable harm to the end which we all seek in the name of national security: The comradeship of all branches of the service. Once destroyed in a passing controversy, that spirit cannot be revived by any legislative fiat or organizational chart."

Doolittle, hard of hearing from too much open cockpit flying, and sparse of hair, testified before the senators in favor of an autonomous air force embraced with the army and navy in a single national defense department.

Testifying that the next attack on the United States must be crushed before the enemy can even come into contact with the army and navy, in an age when bombs could level America's major cities, Doolittle outlined a complete plan of national defense which he said is based on economy and effectiveness.

It was:

The smallest land based air force adequate for the country's needs, which would be highly mobile in operation. A minimum of 400,000 officers and men, charged with the defense of the country and the research and development to make defense possible, coöperating with the other defense branches.

Wants 5,000 Planes

Five thousand planes constantly ready on the fields with additional planes in reserve and for training.

The force would have 70 flying groups, 12 more than the 58 Doolittle had in his 8th air force for the bombing of Germany. The force would include 25 heavy bomber groups, 16 long range fighter groups, nine high performance defensive groups so stationed as to ring the United States, five light and medium bomber groups, five tactical reconnaissance groups, and other groups that would include night fighter, air reconnaissance and sea rescue squadrons.

"Have you placed this plan before congress," asked Sen. Maybank [D., S.C.] "So you can get some action on it now?"

The Flyer's Reply

"No," Doolittle replied. "That would have to be done by the war department and the joint chiefs of staff under the present set-up."

"But the navy has its plan up in congress," said Maybank. "It doesn't have to wait for the war department and joint chiefs of staff."

Doolittle nodded and said:

"Each dollar would be apportioned to get the most in national defense if the three branches were placed under a single department."

Traces Long Fight

Doolittle traced his fight for air power back to 1934 when he was the lone dissenter on a government board headed by the late Newton D. Baker, onetime secretary of war, against the board's recommendation that the air force remain subordinate to the other services and that a proposal for unifying the services be scrapped. The board was composed of civilians and army officers.

Doolittle noted that the board rebuked "agitators" for a separate air corps in its report and called for development of the air corps for the ensuing ten years on the board's recommendations.

"I have no doubt," Doolittle snapped, "that the board honestly believed 'coördinated action' thru some kind of committee meetings like the joint army-navy board was just as good as a unified command—that is, they believed it until the first Sunday in December, 1941."

"Here We Come!"

Doolittle said the board dismissed warnings that the United States could be attacked from floating air bases as impossible. He said the board's language on this point might well have born the subtitle:

"Pearl Harbor, Here We Come!"

The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.], joined Doolittle in complaining of official reluctance to recognize air power, but blamed the war department.

"In 1937," Johnson said, "I had a bill to construct 10,000 planes and train 100,000 flyers a year. The war department said it was fantastic."

Striking at "makeshifts and fumblings" in achieving unity of command in the fighting at the beginning of the war, Doolittle recommended unification of the services for efficiency and economy.

"America is tired of war," he said. "We want the most economical national defense organization that is adequate."

LINK F.D.R. TRIP WITH COOLING OF 'HOT OIL' CASES

Elliott Radio Loans Also Followed Jaunt

BY WALTER TROHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9—The late President Roosevelt's 1937 fishing trip off the coast of Texas was followed by the disposition of certain "hot oil" cases involving a company owned by the President's fishing hosts and the launching of a Texas radio chain by his second son, Elliott, with the help of the oil men he met on the trip, government and newspaper records have disclosed.

Evidence that Mr. Roosevelt combined business with pleasure on his search for Gulf of Mexico tarpon in May, 1937, is contained in federal court records, files of Texas newspapers, and the 800 pages of testimony taken by the internal revenue bureau on Elliott Roosevelt's financial operations.

The investigation into Elliott's finances dealt principally with a $200,000 loan made by John A. Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company, which was settled for $4,000 at the President's request by former Commerce Secretary Jones. Hartford testified the President encouraged him to make the loan and he finally did so because he was afraid to "incur the enmity" of Mr. Roosevelt.

Opened White House Doors

The new evidence on Elliott's financial operations shows that he secured loans and substantial investments in his radio venture after he presented Texas oil men to his father during the fishing trip on which he was a member of the Presidential party.

Subsequently Elliott secured White House invitations for the Texas oil men, Sid W. Richardson and Charles F. Roeser, who invested and lent almost $250,000 to help Elliott in Texas. At the White House the oil men advised the President on oil policy.

Other new evidence discloses that three days after Mr. Roosevelt was the guest of Clint W. Murchison and Dudley S. Golding, other oil men, at their lodge on an island off Port Aransas, Tex., his hosts changed their plea of "not guilty" to one of "nolo contendere" [no contest] in a "hot oil" case involving interstate transport of fuel in violation of federal law.

One of their oil companies was fined $17,500, which oil men described as nominal. Federal court records contain the history of the case.

"Second Louisiana Purchase"

Mr. Roosevelt left Washington April 27, 1937. Two days later he stopped in New Orleans, where he rode between Richard Leche, then governor of Louisiana, and Robert Maestri, then and now mayor, to the tune of "Happy Days Are Here Again."

The visit became known as the "second Louisiana purchase," because Mr. Roosevelt secured the support of the Louisiana delegation, which had been hostile toward a third term because of the late Huey Long. Gov. Leche later was jailed for malfeasance in office.

At New Orleans Mr. Roosevelt boarded the Presidential yacht Potomac, which was accompanied by three destroyers, the Moffet, Decatur, and Schenk. It was estimated that the fishing jaunt cost the American taxpayers $200,000 thru the operation of the naval craft and other expenses.

On May 1, 1937, Elliott, who accompanied the President, went ashore at Port Aransas, where he met Richardson and J. C. Nelson, a friend of Richardson, according to the Corpus Christi Caller-Times. Elliott left Aransas with Richardson for an island named Matagorda, owned by Golding and Murchison, in the "Saltaire," an area off the Texas coast 50 to 75 miles northeast of Corpus Christi.

On May 7, President Roosevelt left the Potomac to lunch with his son, the latter's wife at that time, now Mrs. Ruth G. Eidson, and their friends on Matagorda, at the clubhouse of the American Oil company, which was owned by Golding and Murchison.

Oil Fine Disclosed

The Corpus Christi Caller-Times reported on May 9: "Relating for the first time that he had landed on a near-by island yesterday for lunch with friends of Elliott and the latter's wife, the President said he had seen many shore birds that he had never laid eyes on before."

On May 11, 1937, the Corpus Christi paper reported that the Channel Transportation and Marketing company of Houston paid a $17,500 fine on a charge of transporting petroleum products in interstate commerce in violation of federal law. The National Petroleum News on May 19, 1937, headlined the fine as "Roosevelt's hosts' company in Texas fined for 'hot' oil law violations."

Shortly after the fishing trip, according to Richardson's testimony in the internal revenue investigation of Elliott's operations, Richardson lent Elliott $20,000. This sum went toward the purchase of Elliott's first radio station KFJZ at Fort Worth Sept. 7, 1937, for $57,500. Subsequently Richardson lent another $15,000 to Elliott for radio operations and $5,000 for personal expenses.

Gets Stock in Return

Richardson received stock in Elliott's chain in settlement in 1944 for these "poor boy" loans, as he designated them to federal investigators. This stock was valued below the amount of the loans. Richardson also purchased $25,000 of stock in the radio chain on two occasions.

Roeser purchased $125,000 of the stock in 1938 and $25,000 in 1939. The stock now is earning money and is valued above the purchase price.

At Fort Worth last Sept. 12, Richardson told internal revenue investigators how White House invitations followed his financial contacts with Elliott. Roeser told a similar story to investigators Sept. 5.

"The first time I was invited to the White House was some months after I made Elliott the loan to buy the radio station with," Richardson said under oath.

He explained that he opposed a certain phase of the President's oil policy and Elliott "asked me if I didn't think it was a good idea for me to go up there and discuss it with his father.

Glad to Go If Asked

"My answer was that I might try to help him [Elliott] on the radio business if he got into trouble but I damn sure was not going up there to tell the President how to run the United States. Then, he asked me would I go if his father sent for me and my answer to this was that any time the President of the United States sent for me I would be glad to go.

"About two weeks after this conversation I was in New York, as well as I remember, and Mr. Elliott Roosevelt called me from Washington and said his father wanted to talk to me and would I be good enough to come to Washington and have lunch with him and his mother on a given date and have a visit and discuss this oil business with his father, which I did.

"Later on I was invited to the White House several times when I was in Washington, but always the invitation came thru Elliott except for the last visit that I had with the President, and that was on the Sunday after Pearl Harbor."

He said he and Roeser discussed oil and the war at that time.

GAG SCANDAL IS WORST WHEELER CAN REMEMBER

authorize their employes to talk to the committee," he declared. "There are men in the government service who want to talk to members of the committee and give information, but they are fearful.

"Moreover, Mr. Truman inserted a provision specifically stating that the employes are not to furnish files or written materials to individual committee members."

Sen. Brewster Speaks

"That will inevitably be interpreted," interjected Sen. Brewster [R., Me.], "as directing the employes not to give any information concerning files or written material."

"Why all this quibbling over words?" asked Ferguson. "The order is so restricted, so narrow, that it cripples the functioning of the committee. The great mass of evidence concerning Pearl Harbor is in written form, in reports, or memoranda.

"The hearings will start Nov. 15 under these restrictions, and in my judgment the hearings will take twice as long and confusion will be piled upon confusion. The time has come to inform the senate what to expect."

Barkley Has Regrets

Barkley said he regretted that the dispute was being "rehashed" and charged that repetition of the gag charge was "an attempt to discredit the investigation in advance by creating the impression the committee will be gagged."

"The committee itself is charged with being unfair, he said, "and now President Truman is accused of attempting to gag the investigation. All he is trying to do is to protect the government. He issued an order on Aug. 28 forbidding disclosure of information obtained by crypto-analytic departments."

"I never understood," interrupted Sen. Taft [R., O.], "why such an order was apparently unnecessary during the war, but was issued after the war and just a few days before the congressional committee investigating Pearl Harbor was created."

Barkley Starts Shouting

"The President thought it necessary!" shouted Barkley. "The senator from Michigan is attempting to import into this senate the one man rule which he exercised in his state. He wants to upset all the senate rules and precedents. He was, I understand, a one man grand jury in Michigan."

Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], Ferguson's colleague, interrupted angrily.

"The junior senator from Michigan," he said, "was one of the most fearless, effective searchers after the truth the middle west has ever seen. Despite every obstacle, thru his courage and efficiency, he produced astonishing results which no one anticipated. The Pearl Harbor investigation will be a job well done if his methods on the bench in Michigan are followed here."

"Had His Reasons"

"There are other senators just as honest and fearless as he," said Barkley. "The President had his reasons for refusing to permit examination of government records by individual committee members and they were sound ones. The committee counsel [former Atty. Gen. William D. Mitchell] has the right to examine all records."

"All the indications are that this is to be an investigation by the counsel on such information as the war and navy departments decide to give him," shot back Ferguson.

"That is an absolutely unfounded assertion," responded Barkley.

"Has Mr. Mitchell looked into any files or been down to any government department?" asked Ferguson.

"I haven't followed him around; I have confidence in him," shot back Barkley.

"Avoiding the Issue"

"You are depriving the minority of the right to prepare a case!" charged Taft. "You are avoiding the issue, which is whether a committee member can develop the facts by looking at govenment files. Restricted in this, he cannot possibly perform his duties."

"When the facts are all in," asserted Barkley, "no man in America will doubt this committee. If all the 10 members are permitted, like termites, to bore around in government records indiscriminately, the hearings couldn't get started until Christmas, 1948."

Barkley said that if the hearings disclosed the need of certain documents, he would support the issuance of a supena to "force their release."

A "Grave Responsibility"

"The majority has assumed a very grave responsibility in exercising its power to restrain the minority," commented Brewster. "It is a serious question whether the President has any right to limit information to be given by any person to congress.

"The latest Presidential directive seems designed with devilish ingenuity to leave members of the executive departments in serious doubt and to confuse them concerning how far they are to go in furnishing information. Whoever advised the President in this accepted a most serious position."

OFFICER TELLS 'VITAL' STORY OF JAP CODES

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9—A navy captain, who figured prominently in the events leading up to the attack on Pearl Harbor, was interviewed today by two members of the Pearl Harbor investigating committee, who tried unsuccessfully to see him yesterday.

The officer, Capt. Alwin D. Kramer, attached to naval intelligence in Washington at the time of the Jap attack, was found by the congressmen, Keefe [R., Wis.] and Gearhart [R., Cal.], at the Naval hospital in Bethesda, Md.

Tells "Full Story"

Keefe told reporters that Capt. Kramer told them "his full story" during a 3½ hour interview, and predicted that his testimony at the forthcoming Pearl Harbor hearings will be "material, relevant, and important."

The congressmen declined to make public the information they obtained from Kramer, but said it will be fully brought out during committee hearings.

Capt. Kramer likewise refused to discuss the interview, but announced in a statement that he will be available as a witness before the committee and is "prepared to state fully anything I know that they want to know."

Kramer has been confined in the hospital since Sept. 23, but when Keefe and Gearhart went there to interview him yesterday, they were told he was not in.

He Was Shopping

The officer explained today that he was down town shopping on "liberty" from the hospital, and denied reports that he had been held "incommunicado" on orders from higher authorities.

Keefe said testimony by Kramer, who was in charge of the navy's far east intelligence before Pearl Harbor, will be particularly valuable in throwing light on the contents and disposition of Jap coded messages which were intercepted and decoded by American intelligence just prior to the attack.

The officer's testimony, Keefe added, will relate to the receipt of the so-called "winds" message ['winds" was a Jap code word for the impending attack].

"Testimony Is Vital"

"Capt. Kramer's testimony is vital because it further relates to the receipt and delivery," Keefe said, "of the Japs' 14 point reply to Secretary Hull's message of Nov. 26, 1941."

The 14 point answer was the Jap declaration of war, which was delivered just after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Keefe said Kramer will be questioned in committee as to the time of receipt of the Jap message and the later "short" message from Tokyo releasing for delivery to the state department the war declaration of Japan.

Evidence previously made public has disclosed that Kramer on the night of Dec. 6 personally took to the White House the decoded contents of the Tokyo's 14 point message, except for one missing section, which was intercepted and decoded the next morning.

Tried to Find Stark

Gearhart said today that Kramer went to the White House only after he had been unable to locate Adm. Stark, then chief of naval operations.

"Capt. Kramer handed these important papers to a member of the White House staff and, after stressing their importance, asked that they be taken to the President," Gearhart said.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Gearhart noted, was holding a White House party for "authors" and others that evening.

Gearhart said his interview with Kramer convinced him the officer will coöperate fully with the committee by telling all he knows when called as a witness.

BEHIND CANADA'S RISE—INTRIGUE, HATE, BRAVE MEN

Thread of Slavish Loyalty to Britain Traced

[This is the first of a series of four articles dealing with Canada's rise to nationhood and the influences that lay behind the creation of a Canadian union and a Canadian constitution.]

BY FRANK HUGHES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OTTAWA, Ont. Nov. 8—In old historical documents in the library of parliament here lies the strange and exciting story behind Canada's rise to nationhood, a story of hatred, suspicion, and international intrigue and of the will of brave men to be free.

Thru it runs a thread of almost slavish loyalty to England which the love of liberty failed to kill. The same British loyalty binds many Canadians today, altho Canada is a sovereign, free nation in all except sentimental and formal ties.

Not "Made in Canada"

The story revolves around the Canadian constitution. This is the British North America act, passed by the British parliament in 1867, which most Canadians proudly respect as "made in Canada." An examination of the facts discloses, however, that:

1. The British North America act was drafted from scratch in London, by British drafting experts.

2. This act follows as closely Alexander Hamilton's draft for the United States constitution that suspicion is reasonable parts of it may have been borrowed from his plan.

3. Canada's confederation was prompted by shame—shame that the weakness of Canada prevented England from joining with the southern confederacy during the American Civil war to defeat the Union and regain the United States as colonies.

4. British allowed Canada to confederate because of apathy and a desperate fear that the United States could strike England by attacking Canada.

Feared States' Rights

5. Canadians chose the "federal" form of union, minimizing states' rights, because Canadians felt that states' rights were responsible for the American Civil war.

The outline of Canada's constitutional history falls into six major chapters. The first was the English conquest of the French in 1759-60 which made Canada into a string of British crown colonies.

Then came the Durham report of 1839-40, drafted by a British minister of that name, which gave Canada "responsible" government. It set up a cabinet of colonial ministers from the legislative majority, a replica of the British cabinet. This cabinet, with the English governor general, formed the real executive.

At the first confederation conference in Charlottestown, Prince Edward Island, in 1864, delegates from the colony of Canada were invited on the intercession of Governor General Monck. The conference broke up and reconvened the same year in Quebec City, where 72 resolutions were produced.

Canadians regard these "Quebec resolutions" as the basis of the British North America act, but a wholly fresh start toward confederation was made three years later in London, where the British North America act actually was drafted.

Gets Equal Rights

The fourth important event was the Balfour report of 1926. The British North America act of 1867 had not created a new nation but merely a larger British colony. The Balfour report held that Great Britain and the dominions were equal members in the British commonwealth of nations and that the ministers of one portion—the United Kingdom, for instance—could not advise the king on matters pertaining to another portion, such as Canada, unless Canada or the dominion in question requested it.

The fifth chapter in the story of Canadian nationhood was the Statute of Westminster in 1931, which gave dominion parliaments, such as Canada's, jurisdiction beyond their territorial limits, the power of sovereign nations. Canada thru this act can enter into treaties with other nations and establish diplomatic representation abroad.

The sixth chapter is being written today, in the restoration of peace. Canada, which supported a weakened Britain thru the war and is feeding her today in her economic distress, is seeking a national flag and a separate citizenship for her nationals, and doubtless will obtain them from this session of the Canadian parliament.

[Next story: The British North America act—"made in London."]

EARLY RENEWAL OF MINISTERS' TALKS FORESEEN

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—Undersecretary of State James C. Dunn, returning today from London aboard the Queen Mary, predicted the meeting of the council of foreign ministers would be resumed within a month.

Dunn was deputy to State Secretary Byrnes at the conference which ended last month without agreement on any major points of writing peace treaties.

The conference, which lasted several weeks, was held in London and attended by foreign ministers of the United States, Great Britain, Russia, China, and France.

At Washington, D. C., diplomatic officials said they knew of no plans for a resumption of the foreign ministers' meeting.

GI WIVES UNITE TO BRING BACK THEIR 'DADDIES'

Toledo, O., Nov. 9 (AP)—Lonely mothers of service men's children in Toledo have formed a "Bring Back Daddy club" to help speed the discharge of their husbands from military service. More than 300 young mothers organized the club and made plans for its expansion on a national basis.

They were inspired by a "letter to the editor" in the Toledo Blade, which read: "Come on, service men's wives with children—let's do something!"

"We believe all cases where fathers have been taken from their homes are extreme hardship cases," a club spokesman explained today. "No matter how little service they have had, they all should be sent home to their families."

"Send the idle single men abroad," they proposed to tell members of congress.

SENATORS PLAN TOUR TO REMOVE MUZZLE FROM GI

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9—The GI complains, and the congressmen investigate by questioning commanding officers—in most congressional investigations.

This time it's going to be the other way, if Sen. Robertson [R., Wyo.] has his way. The GI's are going to ask the questions, and report to the senators on a tour of the Pacific and Europe to find out why service men aren't getting back from the war as promised.

Sen. Robertson got the approval of Chairman Walsh [D., Mass.] of the senate naval affairs committee before introducing a resolution for the inquiry tonight. Walsh and other senators spoke in favor of the plan, which Robertson said should have the support of the entire senate.

Robertson said he wants a five man committee of the senate to inquire into the question of the return and demobilization of men overseas, conditions at the points of embarkation, volume of shipping available for return of service men, and methods necessary to end the delay.

BYRNES' OFFICE REJECTS ARMS QUERY IN A HUFF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9—The state department today dismissed as "too contemptible to answer" questions relating to the employment of American lend-lease weapons by the British and Dutch against Indonesians who are fighting against return to the rigid colonial rule of the two nations.

It was disclosed that British and Dutch troops were using American weapons in the resubjugation of the natives in the Indonesian area. In making disclosure some weeks ago State Secretary Byrnes said he had asked that the lend-lease insignia be removed from weapons so employed.

Indignant at Inquiry

Today the state department was asked to relay to Secretary Byrnes this question: "Does the state department intend to permit the massacre of the Indonesians in Java by the English and Dutch using American lend-lease weapons."

A state department spokesman became indignant at the question. He said he would not refer it to the secretary.

On this refusal to answer the question the state department spokesman was asked to seek an answer to a second question: "How does the state department continue to pretend that the American policy is anything else than Wall Steet millionaire exploitation of the helpless?"

Called 'Contemptible'

The state department said both questions were "too contemptible to even consider asking the secretary."

On Oct. 24, after he had ordered lend-lease insignia off of the weapons, Byrnes criticized the use of American weapons in the Javanese revolt. He declared the United State objected to the use of lend-lease arms for political purposes as they are being employed by the Dutch and the British forces in the far east.

$625,000 BACK PAY TO BE GIVEN 4,000 ON 'L' LINE

Checks totaling approximately $625,000 in back pay will be issued to 4,000 operational employes of the Chicago Rapid Transit Lines next Thursday, company officials said yesterday. The sum represents pay retroactive to June 1, 1944.

Compilation of the checks was an involved task because the workers are paid on an hourly basis, road officials said. The entire auditing force, augmented by a night shift of 60 workers, has been engaged in the job since Sept. 1.

Members of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America [AFL] halted work for two hours on Oct. 24 in protest against delay in turning out the checks. Office and supervisory workers began receiving their checks Oct. 15.

Flag Presentation

W. M. McKnight (left) and J. C. Leaton presenting flag to Judge Edwin Robson yesterday.

Judge Edwin A. Robson of Superior court yesterday told a group of American Legion members, who presented him with an American flag in his chambers, that the Legion might help with the serious post-war problem of divorce thru an educational program.

The legionnaires, members of post 46 in Wilmette, were headed by William M. McKnight, commander; John C. Leaton, past commander, and William Alexander, president of the Wilmette village board.

The ratio of divorces to marriages is now 1 to 2.9, Judge Robson said, while after the last war it was only 1 to 7. He said that children of broken homes are casualties of World War II, who will soon outnumber battlefield casualties.

POETICAL COP SUES IN VERSE TO REGAIN JOB

Vincent P. Martin, 33, of 6922 S. Campbell av., a war veteran, filed suit in Circuit court yesterday in an attempt to regain his job as a city policeman. He charged Police Commissioner Allman is keeping this from him. Martin made the plea in verse, filed by Atty. Michael F. Ryan:

"Your jobs are safe——"
They waved good-by to Joe.
By statute, ordinance, and civil service rule
I thought they made it so.

I served in France and Belgium
And in the Rhineland, too,
And now I'd doff my khaki
For my uniform of blue.

With all my army service,
To the law courts I must go
To get my job as policeman—
I'm just a former GI Joe."

Martin joined the department Jan. 9, 1943, and when inducted in August, 1943, was granted a military furlough. He was wounded in Germany and after discharge applied for reinstatement. Without medical or physical examination, the suit charges, the police surgeon recommended that he be placed on the medical roll with a disability pension. He then filed suit.

POLICE IN CAIRO ACT TO PREVENT NEW OUTBURSTS

Hoodlums Rounded Up; Rallies Banned

Begin Rioters' Trials

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 9 (AP)—Trials of rioters arrested in Arab demonstrations in Tripoltania, in which more than 100 Jews were slain, have begun in military courts in Tripoli, and funerals of victims, including children, have passed "without incident." A British bulletin said "irresponsible elements" had not yet ceased all their activities, and that all force necessary would be employed against them to maintain order. The trials began yesterday. The funerals were held Wednesday night.

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 9—Police today took steps to prevent a recurrence of the Balfour day [Nov. 2] disorders on Nov. 13, anniversary of Zagiul Pasha's original demand for independence in 1919. The day is a national holiday.

Among the precautions were a roundup of vagabonds and the banning of the customary patriotic mass meetings, as well as the erection of pandals [huge tents covered with oriental carpets in which the gatherings generally are held]. Police admit the rounding up of all Cairo's hoodlums is an impossible task, but they will concentrate on getting known habitual lawbreakers under cover. Political parties will be allowed to meet in their clubrooms, but installation of loudspeakers to carry inflammatory speeches to street crowds will be forbidden.

Troops to Aid Police

Selim Zaki Pasha, assistant chief of Cairo police under the Britisher T. E. W. Russell, said army detachments would be used as a supplementary force to assure order.

The government has reassured Egypt's Jewish colony of its determination to forbid a repetition of the Nov. 2 anti-Zionist outbreak which led to indiscriminate pillaging. The government also has promised to finance rebuilding of a Cairo synagog wrecked by mobs.

Egypt's chief rabbi contributed to the conciliation by a letter published in El Ahram, most important daily paper in the Arab world.

Other Cities Take Steps

Nahum's letter pointed out the attitude of Egypt's Jews to Zionism was defined in a note to the international Jewish congress of November, 1944. The note recommended that the allies find a home for homeless Jews in some other country than Palestine and said the Palestine question could not be solved except thru close coöperation between the Jews and Arabs inside of Palestine, itself.

Police of Alexandria and other provincial cities are taking measures similar to those in Cairo. Authorities in Alexandria are offering substantial rewards to any one recovering, or helping to recover, four seraphim—precious wood and mother of pearl boxes containing the sacred tablets of the law, stolen during the riots from local synagogs.

Look to Washington
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

JERUSALEM, Palestine, Nov. 9—Palestine today hopefully looked toward the forthcoming Washington talks of President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee for help in solution of the Jewish immigration problem.

Rajai Bey Hussein, head of the Arab office in Jerusalem, expressed hope for immediate stoppage of Jewish immigration into Palestine and creation of an independent self-government of Palestine within the Arab federation. "This is Palestine's natural right, based on application of democratic ideals," he said.

Dr. Leo Kohn, the Jewish agency's political secretary, said he desired "transfer to Palestine of the survivors of naziism's excesses in Europe, in opening the gates of Palestine and final solution of the Palestine problem by establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine."

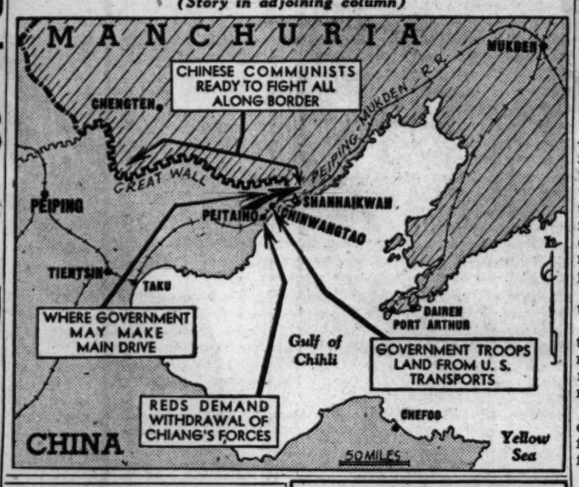
Armies Line Up at China's Great Wall

(Story in adjoining column)



U. S. ULTIMATUM SERVED ON REDS, CHINESE CLAIMS

CHUNGKING, Nov. 10 [Saturday] (AP)—A Chinese Communist spokesman charged today that an American ultimatum was served this week on the commander of Red troops at Shanhaikaan, coastal terminus of the Great Wall, to withdraw his forces 100 kilometers [62.5 miles] from either side of the Peiping-Mukden railroad.

There was no American confirmation.

The spokesman said the ultimatum was delivered Monday and was rejected the following day. He added no reports had been received of resultant fighting.

"Stay Out," Reds Warn

Chinese Communists issued a blunt "stay out" warning today to Nationalist troops waiting ominously by the thousands on Manchuria's southern border, along the historic Great Wall near American guarded Chinwangtao.

The Reds canceled abruptly a scheduled afternoon peace talk in Chungking and said they would oppose entry of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's troops into Manchuria or any other "liberated areas."

The government, they charged, is using 49 armies aggregating 127 divisions—nearly 1,000,000 men—for "this civil war," plus 350,000 puppet troops. Forty-nine of the government divisions are supplied wholly or partly with American equipment, they asserted.

Report Communist Attacks

A semi-official dispatch said more than 8,000 Communists were launching repeated attacks on the city of Hwohsien in southern Shansi province. The dispatch listed the recapture by Nationalists of three rail points.

Chiang's troops, pouring from American transports in the American secured port of Chinwangtao, are facing "strong Communist forces" along the Great Wall 10 miles to the north—ready for the main round of China's undeclared war, a dispatch from the scene reported.

Semi-official sources in Chungking confirmed this report, conceding that the government likely will makes its major drive to Manchuria by moving eastward from the Chinwangtao area along the Peiping-Mukden [Manchuria] railroad.

Greek Puppet Premier's Sentence Is Cut to Life

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 9 (AP)—The death sentence imposed upon Gen. George Tsolakoglou for high treason was commuted today to life imprisonment. He was charged with surrendering his armies in Epirus and Macedonia to the Germans without authority of the Greek government just before the nation was overrun in 1941. Tsolakoglou served as premier during the nazi occupation.

JAP COLLEGE HEAD REFUSES TO SERVE AS COUNSEL FOR TOJO

TOYKO, Nov. 9 (AP)—Fusaki Uzawa, Japanese lawyer appointed to defend war criminals, today declined to participate in the defense of Hideki Tojo, the "Pearl Harbor premier," because he said Tojo was responsible for the war.

Joseph B. Keenan

Uzawa, president of Meiji university, nevertheless said that Tojo should be given a fair trial—"altho I am not sure that he deserves it"—because of the international importance of the case.

The 73 year old Uzawa said he would not defend any Japanese charged as a war criminal unless he was satisfied the accused was innocent.

Joseph B. Keenan, former assistant to the United States attorney general, was named by Gen. MacArthur to counsel his legal staff for the trials of Tojo and other persons.

CHINESE CALLS FOR NEUTRALITY IN INDO-CHINA

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 9 (AP)—Having disarmed 30,000 Japanese in northern Indo-China, two Chinese armies will be withdrawn to China, Gen. Lu Han, commander of the occupation forces, said today. If violence should break out in the Chinese-occupied zone between French troops and native Annamese, he added, the Chinese will be neutral.

One Chinese occupation army is withdrawing from Haiphong to China because of supply difficulties, he reported, and another soon will follow.

Nationalists Attack French

SAIGON, Indo-China, Nov. 9 (AP)—French troops pushing south of Saigon by land and river were heavily attacked by Annamese nationalists near Tan An, a nationalist stronghold, and one French garrison was reported to have asked for help from British Indian forces.

Japanese deserters were reported helping the Annamese in resisting French reoccupation forces. In one sector, a Japanese-manned 75 was said to have opened fire on the French. Heretofore, Annamese resistance has consisted mainly of sniper fire and felling trees across roads in this sector.

FILIPINOS TELL OF 1,000 SLAIN IN SOUTHERN LUZON

Civilians Tied Up and Bayoneted

BY ROBERT CROMIE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 9—Witnesses in this afternoon's hearing in the trial of Gen. Yamashita on war criminal charges told additional stories of slaughter thruout Batangas province last February of men, women, and children, and the burning of their homes.

The manner in which more than 1,000 Filipino civilians met death in the town of Cuenca and near-by villages in southern Luzon was described in detail by a parade of witnesses.

The hearing was recessed until Monday to allow the transcript of testimony to be brought up to date and to give the defense and the prosecution additional time to prepare for introduction of further testimony.

Nine of Family Slain

Lovely Miligros Barbion, 18 years old, whose sister testified this morning that she left a group of 16 persons under a mango tree and went with her little brother in search of aid for the survivors of the Jap massacre, took the stand this afternoon. She told how the Japs returned, tied all 16 to the tree, bayoneted them, and then set fire to a near-by sugar cane field. She was the only survivor.

The witness was stabbed twice with a bayonet and also hit with 15 fragments from a hand grenade. She said nine members of her immediate family were slain, including her father and mother.

Witnesses who followed told of the sudden appearance of Japs early on the morning of Feb. 16 and how they began shooting, burning, and bayoneting. One saw 146 persons slain in a ravine.

Most of the witnesses spoke only Tagalog in dialects which interpreters found it difficult to translate.

Capt. Milton Sanberg, defense counsel], said he had been informed by Filipino newspaper men that "some of the translations were so inaccurate and false as to be scandalous." Three Filipino newsmen then were sworn and agreed that there were many errors in the interpretations, citing as an example one case in which a witness said "east" and the interpreter gave it as "west."

The commission, seemingly upset by the charge, withdrew for deliberation and returned to rule the change unfounded. "The alleged inaccuracies seem to the commission to be immaterial. However, in the future, two Tagalog interpreters will be provided as a check on one another," it was ruled.

ADMIRAL HAS NO WORD MARINES WILL QUIT CHINA

CHINWANGTAO, Nov. 9 (AP)—There is enough shipping available in North China to get the great bulk of American marines home by Christmas if that is to be the American policy, Vice Adm. Daniel Barbey, commander of the 7th amphibious force, said today after receiving a report that all marines would be withdrawn from "troubled areas."

The marines here are near enough to the "troubled area" at nearby Shanhaikwan to hear the skirmishing of Chinese government and communist forces and to see the wounded being brought in. As yet no one has any official word.

There are approximately 53,000 marines in North China and virtually all are deployed in "troubled areas" from Tsingtao northward.

WAR TIME CONTROLS ON LABOR ABOLISHED BY JAP GOVERNMENT

TOKYO, Nov. 10 [Saturday] (AP)—All repressive laws and war time control regulations relating to Japanese labor have been abolished by the Japanese government as the result of informal discussion, allied headquarters announced today.

A spokesman pointed out that all legal hindrances to labor organizations have been removed. Japanese workers also have an opportunity to offer and push in the diet legislation authorizing unions and providing for protection of workers' rights.

Japan's new Liberal party plunged yesterday into the empire's first peace time election campaign with a platform calling for a "democratic system" under Emperor Hirohito.

CHINESE VESSEL HITS MINE; 1,600 DIE AS IT SINKS

HONG KONG, Nov. 8 (AP)—A Chinese river steamer struck a mine in the mouth of the Canton river yesterday and sank with the loss of of from 1,500 to 1,600 Chinese, mostly soldiers en route to north China.

Survivors brought here by junk today said the steamer, the Hai Chu, sank within a few minutes, trapping hundreds below decks.

The 1,000 ton vessel had been ferrying the Chinese 8th army from Canton to Hong Kong, and at least 1,700 soldiers were among the 1,800 persons aboard. Two Europeans were reported safe.

PRISONERS GAIN BENEFITS FROM SHOW FOR JAPS

Beatings Decrease; Food Situation Remains Bad

(This is another instalment of "Men Who Wouldn't Die," written by a Chicagoan from the diary he kept in defiance of Jap prison rules.)

BY MAJ. A. C. TISDELLE
as told to Carl Wiegman

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

"The Great Ziegfeld," a musical comedy written and produced by American prisoners of war, had its premiere and closing performance in our camp mess hall at Omuta, Japan, on April 12, 1944. Despite its short run, it was a super-colossal hit, according to the audience and the cast. It also was a diplomatic coup.

The 35 Jap foremen who directed our men in the coal mine attended the performance. T. H. Mitsui, the Croesus of Japan and a baron, who owned the coal mine, also was present. Neither the baron nor the foremen knew it, but they were the real reason for having the show.

Hatred Laid Aside

The prisoners swallowed their pride and forgot their hatred for one night in the hope that their hospitality would pay dividends in fewer beatings.

I escorted Mitsui and Lt. Uri, the camp commander, to the front of the hall, where they sat in easy chairs brought over from Jap headquarters. All thru the show, the baron and Lt. Uri ate cookies and drank tea, also provided by Jap headquarters. Altho I sat beside them and chatted with them, not a bite of food was offered to me. I was about 60 pounds underweight at the time.

Japs Put on Show

Every member of the cast performed brilliantly. The female impersonators were beautiful, enchanting, and provocative. When one of them did a strip tease, the mess hall nearly collapsed from the cheers. By the end of the second act, the Jap foremen were so captivated by the show that two of them insisted on putting on a performance themselves.

The next day Lt. Uri, still in good spirits, decided to repay us. He took the whole camp of 500 men, including those who didn't want to go, to see the cherry blossoms in a park about three miles from camp.

We had to walk, of course, and we had the usual military formations and saluting, which everybody loathed, but the cherry blossoms were beautiful and the trip was an interesting experience.

Mitsui Brings Baseballs

The next day I received a courteous letter from Mitsui, telling how much he enjoyed the show. Two days later, he paid us a visit in camp, brought us eight baseballs, four bats, and eight gloves, all brand new. The baron chose a day when Lt. Uri was absent, and Capt. Hewlett, our surgeon, and I were able to have a long talk with him in private.

Mitsui spoke flawless English, so we were not handicaped by language difficulties. I told him frankly how the men were not getting enough to eat, how they were beaten by his mine foremen, how they were kept from sleep and hazed night and day by the Jap guards, and everything else I could think of.

Dr. Hewlett told the baron about the frequent injuries to men in his mine and begged for surgical equipment so he could perform operations and care for injured men in our camp.

Mitsui listened gravely and when we had finished he turned to me and spoke kindly:

"You must understand, Captain, that the situation between us civilians and the military is a very delicate one. But I am going to try to help you if I can."

Complete Army Dominance

This indication of the complete dominance of the Japanese army over all civilians, including one of the richest men in the world, made us realize for the first time the state of the whole Japanese people.

The day after the baron's visit, he sent us a volley ball net and three volley balls. A week later he sent a large electric clock, several tennis racquets, balls, and a net. We appreciated his kindness, but it was food we needed.

Japanese Sportsmanship

The Jap guards, however, were intensely interested in our newly acquired tennis equipment and built a court on their own initiative. When it was completed, we discovered the reason for this magnanimous gesture. The Jap officers wanted to play tennis. They practiced furiously for a week, then invited our officers to play with them.

This was an example of Jap ideas of sportsmanship. Our officers were depleted in body and spirit, they were given no chance to practice, and then were challenged. Adding a diabolical touch of cruelty, the Japs offered prizes of canned pineapple, canned fish, and cookies.

Prisoners Win Food

Our men, entering the matches cold, played their hearts out to win food, and I am delighted to report that some of them carried off prizes.

Altho our men got little use out of the athletic equipment donated by Mitsui, they soon began to receive other benefits from the production of "The Great Ziegfeld." The Jap mine foremen who attended the show began treating them more kindly.

Also, the coal company, probably thru Mitsui, started sending 96 cans of fish to the camp every two weeks. This was not much, when divided among 500 men, but it helped.

Film Actress Fights Eviction

Gets Week Stay

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—Simone Simon, film star, will know in about a week whether she can be sued for eviction from the uptown apartment she now holds.

"I just can't find another place to live," she told an office of price administration official today at a hearing asked by Malcolm Meacham, radio writer and original lessee of the apartment, who seeks her eviction. The OPA said it would think it over for a week.

Miss Simon told reporters that she hoped to go to France soon to make a motion picture. Her most recent appearance was in "Emily," a play which had a short run in Philadelphia.

TRUMAN SIGNS BILL SLASHING INCOME TAXES

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 (AP)—Business men, big and little, will share in the benefits of the $5,920,000,000 tax reduction bill signed into law today by President Truman. Corporate enterprises alone are due for a $3,136,000,000 reduction in their burden.

The scores of thousands of businesses operated by individuals or partners will get their break from the individual income tax reductions. Neither the treasury nor congress has undertaken to guess how much of the $2,644,000,000 individual rate cut will be enjoyed by independent proprietors.

Business men who operate trucks, cars, or boats for commercial purposes no longer will have to buy automotive use tax stamps. The biggest single reduction for business—$2,555,000,000—will come from repeal of the excess profits tax on corporations. The capital stock and declared value excess profits taxes are repealed, for an estimated reduction of 234 million dollars.

New equipment must be sold at not less than 75 per cent of the cost. Used equipment must be sold for at least 50 per cent of the cost, and unserviceable equipment from 25 to 50 per cent of the cost.

STRANGE CASE OF TYLER KENT GETS STRANGER

BY JAMES SLOAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 9—The mystery surrounding the strange case of Tyler Kent deepened today. In the chambers of a judge at the historic law courts on the Strand all arrangements had been made for Kent's counsel to file an appeal for a writ of habeas corpus to free him from home office detention pending his deportation, but at the last minute the appeal was not filed.

Several days ago the British lawyers who defended the former American embassy code clerk when he was tried secretly by a British court for violation of the official secrets act of 1940 and sentenced to seven years in prison, assured him they were going to fight for his release.

Term Is Served

Kent, who is 29, has served his term, considering time deducted for good behavior, but has been placed in Brixton prison to await deportation. He was ordered deported by the home office as soon as his sentence was served in Parkhurst prison on the Isle of Wight.

Kent's lawyers ostensibly planned to demand that the court free him from detention since there are no legal grounds for continuing to keep him confined.

At the law courts it was said the hearing was booked for this morning but it wasn't held.

Strike Ties Up Ships

The lawyers said they had not filed the petition because it was almost a hopeless cause since they would have to prove in court that Kent had better means of transportation to America than those being officially arranged, which he has not got and cannot get quickly. However, it is these official arrangements, complicated by the recent strike of stevedores who tied up nearly all the British ports for almost two months, which have caused his continued imprisonment.

Passage was booked for him a month ago aboard a new British cargo liner but the vessel was caught in the strike and still hasn't been able to get away even without the celebrated prisoner.

However, the ship on which it is now believed he is scheduled to travel, is due to depart within a few days, said his legal counsel in a further attempt to justify their failure to carry on the fight for his release until Britain is able to effect his deportation.

Altho the lawyers are confident Kent will be en route home soon, British officials were unable to say when he will get transportation.

ARMY PRESSES HUNT TO RECOVER BODIES OF 22,000 AMERICANS

PARIS, Nov. 9 (AP)—The United States army is pressing a determined search to recover and identify the bodies of 22,000 unknown American soldiers who lie in nameless graves in Europe.

Nearly half of the unidentified dead in the European theater flew with the USAAF in planes that never returned.

The tiny mounds cared for by French, Dutch, or Belgian families on their farms are hardest to find.

Some bodies are discovered still crouched in foxholes. More are found in graves where the men were buried unofficially, usually by farmers or townspeople after the fighting swirled on.

Identified or not, each body is removed to one of the 37 permanent United States military cemeteries. So careful has been the identification check that there are only 3,362 unidentified dead in the cemeteries at present, in addition to the 22,000 unlocated dead.

CALLS TRUMAN 'ECONOMY' TALK MISUSE OF WORD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9—President Truman talks a lot about economy but doesn't seem to know what the word means, Sen. Willis [R., Ind.] told the senate today.

Willis rebuked the President in a senate speech for advocating salary increases up to 100 per cent for government employes and officials, Mr. Truman is supporting legislation, on which senate hearings are now being held, to raise most government salaries, including those of congressmen.

Willis said he feared the President's position may encourage unwarranted wage demands that will bring inflation.

"This administration," the senator said, "is continuing the profligate spending of recent years, and this utter lack of regard for money has caused much of the needless increase in the cost of living.

"Since President Truman's accession to the highest office in the land he has used the word 'economy' many times in his published speeches. But this far, I am compelled to admit sadly, he has exhibited little apparent comprehension of what the word means."

EISENHOWER TO TESTIFY BEFORE CONGRESS BODY

Predict He Will Fill Gen. Marshall's Post

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 9 (AP)—United States headquarters announced today Gen. Eisenhower would leave within a few hours to testify before congressional committees in Washington. Authoritative sources predicted his trip was a prelude to an assignment to succeed Gen. Marshall as chief of staff in December.

[The Frankfurt radio said Gen. Eisenhower already had left.]

The official announcement said Eisenhower would return to Europe Nov. 23 after appearing in Boston and Chicago.

But rumors have long been current that Eisenhower would become chief of staff, and they have been given credence by the slow exodus of officers of his command into war department positions where they could carry out his policies.

Will Urge Unification

It was learned that Eisenhower's trip home had been requested by the war department. The commander is expected to advocate to congress the consolidation of armed forces into a national department of defense. He was one of the original and most outspoker advocates of unification of the armed services.

Eisenhower also is expected to report to President Truman on the status of military government in Germany.

If Eisenhower becomes chief of staff, sources here expect he will be succeeded as commander in Germany by Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, former United States commander in the Mediterranean theater.

Marshall, who reached the retirement age of 64 last Dec. 31, is known to have expressed a desire to retire soon. Only two weeks ago, however, President Truman said he still needed Marshall as chief of staff.

Reaches Boston Monday

Boston, Nov. 9 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower will arrive at Logan International airport, East Boston, at 1 p. m. Monday from Frankfurt, Germany, the governor's office announced today.

A state dinner and reception are planned by the governor for the general Monday evening.

SEEK TO DEPORT COMMUNIST AS LABOR AGITATOR

Deportation proceedings were started by the government yesterday against Joseph R. Weber, a communist agitator. A graduate of Moscow's Lenin school in labor violence strategy, he was seized in 1937 as one of the conspirators in the Memorial day riots at the Republic Steel corporation which resulted in the death of a dozen strikers.

Joseph R. Weber.

It was learned Weber had been under investigation by federal bureau of investigation agents since Aug. 9, 1944, and that he had been sought by the immigration department in December, 1943, on a charge of illegally entering the United States. Immigration authorities more than a year ago announced that the FBI had taken jurisdiction of Weber's case. His record as a Communist and instigator of strike violence goes back to 1930, it was said.

Weber's hearing was held in the offices of the naturalization and immigration department with James McWhorter sitting as examiner.

Weber is alleged to have entered the country illegally from Yugoslavia, where he is said to have been born.

SOLDIER SERVING MUTINY TERM IS OUT OF PRISON

Atty. Leon M. Despres of Chicago said last night that he had been informed by the warden of the federal penitentiary at Terre Haute, Ind., that Bernard B. James, 6421 Champlain av., one of 18 Negro soldiers convicted of mutiny while serving in England was released from prison yesterday and transferred to the rehabilitation center at Fort Knox, Ky.

The transfer was ordered by the adjutant general after Atty. Despres made an appeal to the war department's clemency board in behalf of James, and, inferentially, in behalf of eight others still imprisoned. Despres said the warden's message indicated other prisoners had been released, but did not name them.

James, charged with wilful disobedience and mutiny, was sentenced to 18 years, but this was commuted later to 13 years. Despres said James was accused of questioning the order of an officer who directed another sergeant to remove his stripes. The attorney said James will be eligible to restoration to duty after two or three months. After restoration to duty his sentence will be remitted.

IKE WILL FLY HERE NOV. 19 FOR LEGION'S MEDAL

Gen. Eisenhower will make a flying visit to Chicago Nov. 19 to receive the American Legion distinguished service medal at the national convention of that organization.

His coming was confirmed yesterday in dispatches from Frankfort, Germany, which said he was preparing to leave there with the Legion meeting as one of his scheduled stops in the United States. His stay in Chicago is expected to be brief; his plans call for return to Europe Nov. 23.

Nimitz Also to Get Medal

The Legion medal, awarded to outstanding personalities, will be given Gen. Eisenhower, Adm. Nimitz, and posthumously to the late Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. Nov. 19. A day earlier, it will be awarded to Henry L. Stimson, former secretary of war, and posthumously to the late President Roosevelt and War Correspondent Ernie Pyle, killed at Ie Shima.

The convention session attended by Gen. Eisenhower will be addressed by Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, assistant to the chief engineer of the army; War Secretary Patterson; Arthur Tedder, British air chief, and Frank J. Rathje, president of the American Bankers' association.

Mass Initiation Planned

A mass initiation of World War II. veterans will be held that evening in Chicago Stadium, to be followed with a Legion party.

Others scheduled to appear on the Legion program in Chicago are Gen. Arnold, commander of the army air forces; Gen. Vandegrift, commandant of the marine corps; Lt. Gen. Doolittle, army air forces; William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organization, and A. B. Chandler, baseball commissioner.

TEMPERATURES TO RANGE FROM 38 TO 32 TODAY

The thermometer is expected to dip to a low of 32 degrees tonight, after reaching a high of 38 during the day, Forecaster G. E. Dunn said last night. The temperature yesterday reached 41 degrees with the aid of a bright sun. Subzero temperatures were recorded in the Dakotas, Montana, and Minnesota with 19 below at Fort Peck, Mont., and 12 degrees below at Williston, N. D.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Nov. 10—Marines' 170th Birthday

THE United States marine corps today is celebrating the 170th anniversay of the adoption by the continental congress of a resolution calling for the raising of two battalions of marines. The date of the resolution, Nov. 10, 1775, has been officially designated as the corps' birthday altho some of the individual colonies had marines before that time and at least one group of them had already come under the control of congress.

Once the congressional resolution of Nov. 10 had been adopted progress was reasonably rapid. By the following month the brig Cabot, one of the first ships of the continental navy, had its complement of marines. However, great difficulty was encountered in equipping the men and the Pennsylvania committee of public safety had to exert itself to provide muskets and other war material.

When Commodore Esek Hopkins and his fleet of eight little ships dropped down the Delaware river a few weeks later there were about 250 marines aboard. They took part in Hopkins' successful expedition against the British island of New Providence in the Bahamas, where they performed their first landing operation.

The marines served with the greatest honor and distinction during the Revolutionary war but they were disbanded at its close when the continental navy passed out of existence.

In 1798 the navy was reconstituted in the face of the threat of war with France and a corps of marines also was authorized. Its history has been unbroken from that day to this. The versatile marines have taken part in sea battles, in amphibious operations, and in land campaigns.

The glory they won in the air during the war just closed has made obsolete the couplet in the marines' hymn which runs:

"We fight our country's battles
On the land as on the sea."

EVA'S LAST NOTE TELLS HITLER'S DECISION TO DIE

Guard Fuehrer's Valuable Letters, She Asks

GARMISCH PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany, Nov. 9 (AP)—Eva Braun wrote a farewell letter from Berlin last April 23, saying she and Adolf Hitler had abandoned hope and had decided that neither of them would be captured alive, her sister, Mrs. Margaret Gretl Fegelien, disclosed today.

The letter was ferreted out by the counter-intelligence corps after an attempt at concealment by Gretl, who insists it was "looted by American soldiers," thus spoiling her plan to sell it and others for publication.

Get Two Presents.

Members of Eva's family, now living in a single room in the little village of Ruhpoling, claim all they got out of her being Hitler's mistress was two gifts from the fuehrer, a silver bowl and a watch—both since taken by American soldiers.

"Now the neighbors all hate us because of the close connection with Hitler," complained Eva's father, Fritz Braun, a former Munich manual training teacher, now earning a meager living as a carpenter.

He said he had hated Hitler for years for taking his daughter but "finally we had to become reconciled to the situation." He never rose higher than a block worker in the Nazi party.

Sure Both Are Dead

Both parents say they are sure Eva and Hitler are dead, and Gretl said she was too. She doubts, however, that the two were married at the last minute because, she said, Eva never even discussed that possibility.

Eva's parents maintain her romance with Hitler was "true, idealistic love," but Eva's last letter showed that she was not blind to the monetary value of her position. Even while planning suicide, she urged Gretl to guard Hitler's letters "because they will be valuable some day."

ASKS WORKABLE PLAN INSTEAD OF POTSDAM PACT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 9—Scrapping of the Potsdam agreement and creation of a new workable plan was advocated today by Dr. Vera Micheles Dean, research director of the Foreign Policy association of the United States. She has just returned from a trip thru Germany, including tours of the Russian, British, and French zones of Berlin.

The Potsdam agreement is "incompatible" on several major points, Miss Dean said.

"It was provided that Germany would have economic unity, yet the country is divided into four zones administered by four nations with different traditions, experience, and practices," she declared. "It was further provided that Germany's economy should not be industrial but agrarian. Then the agrarian part of the country was taken from Germany.

"It was said that Germany's standard of living would be no higher than her neighbors', but how can that be? Poland has one standard of living, Switzerland another, and so on."

HESS FACES TRAP IF HE'S FAKING, CHICAGOAN SAYS

May Learn Why Nazi Flew to Scotland

BY HAL FOUST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

NUERNBERG, Germany, Nov. 9—Col. Paul L. Schroeder, psychiatrist of Oak Park, Ill., said today that if Rudolf Hess, former No. 3 Nazi, is faking amnesia it can "be detected and exposed" by employing modern techniques of psychiatry.

Col. Paul L. Schroeder

"If he has forgetfulness or amnesia, these afflictions will respond to the tests," Dr. Schroeder continued. "The new technique can also revive forgotten incidents unless a patient is suffering from amnesia requiring therapeutics. Thus, we may learn why Hess flew to Scotland in the spring of 1941."

Reports to Jackson

Schroeder on leave from the University of Illinois and St. Joseph's hospital, Chicago, has reported for duty to Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief prosecutor of high nazi officials. He declined to discuss the new techniques to be used in diagnosing the Hess case except to say they arouse responses from the subconscious mind.

"I don't want to create the impression that I already have diagnosed the Hess case," he said. "I have seen him only once, at a movie yesterday. I thought it was significant he appeared chagrined when he saw pictures of himself at nazi meetings 10 years ago, but I am not sure what this means."

May Escape Trial

Hess is one of 23 of Hitler's former associates whose trial is scheduled to start Nov. 20. He may be dropped as a defendant however, should his mental condition warrant it. Another who may be exempt is Gustav Krupp, 70, head of the Krupp steel works, who is ill in a Salzburg hospital. His attorney today filed a motion for deferment which is to be ruled on next Wednesday.

A motion for continuance of trial, to allow more time to prepare a defense, has just been filed also by counsel for Julius Streicher, Jew baiter who edited a nazi newspaper and was gauleiter of Nuernberg.

1924 AGREEMENT CONTINUES, U. S. TELLS HUNGARY

[By Wireless to the N. Y. Times and The Chicago Tribune]

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 9—The United States government has sent a note to the Hungarian government saying that it regards the Hungaro-American most favored nation agreement of 1924 as still in force, it was learned today. This means that to grant exclusively to Russia such extensive rights as are contained in the "50-50" economic pact recently concluded in Moscow and ratified by the retiring Hungarian parliament is inadmissible.

The note was delivered in Budapest four days ago. What the answer of the Hungarian government will make was not made known. Baron Zoltan Tildy, who will succeed Gen. Bela Miklos as prime minister, said the "Russo-Hungarian economic treaty is no longer a matter for Hungary to decide." This was interpreted as meaning that the incoming government would let the treaty hang fire until Russia and her western allies have come to an agreement about it.

Hungary's left wing party leaders argue that the pact is not exclusive, but several Hungarian industrialists expressed the opposite opinion.

MANY CLUBS APPLY FOR NAMES OF YANKS IN YULE GIFT DRIVE

Church groups, school classes, sororities, women's clubs, and many service groups have written to THE TRIBUNE'S Friend of the Yanks requesting the names of service men in hospitals to whom they desire to send Christmas gifts as an organization project.

Names of hospitalized service men may be obtained by organized groups in the same manner they are supplied to individuals. It is only necessary to clip the coupon in an adjoining column, indicate the number of names desired, and mail it with an addressed, stamped envelope to Friend of the Yanks.

Names of service men in hospitals will be obtained by the Friend of the Yanks in the first few days of December and will be mailed to Tribune readers in the order in which requests are received. Requests for more than 7,000 names have been received in the last four days. There are 44,000 patients in 21 military hospitals in 21 middlewestern and central states.

END OF PRICE CEILING, RATION BY FEB. 15 URGED

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 (AP)—Removal of all OPA price ceilings and rationing by Feb. 15, and freedom of workers "to join or not to join a union," were advocated today by the National Association of Manufacturers.

The NAM, which said it represented 80 per cent of the nation's industrial concerns, presented its reconversion proposals to the house committee on post-war planning, headed by Rep. Colmer [D., Miss.].

Speaking for the association, John Airey, president of the Kings-Seeley corporation, Ann Arbor, Mich., said "industry finds itself caught in a squeeze resulting from the rise in costs of production and the restrictions upon prices."

Airey said that if any price control regulation is to be continued it should be rent controls, except on new dwellings.

Clarence E. Randall, vice president of the Inland Steel company, Chicago, presented the NAM's labor views, saying:

"The association urgently advocates the elimination of compulsory payments by workers as a condition for securing or retaining employment. If the American tradition is to be maintained, each working man must be free to join or not to join a union as he may desire."

LONDON PARLEY FAILS TO SOLVE POLISH PROBLEM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 9—Discussions between Foreign Minister Bevin and Wincenty Rzymowski, foreign minister of the Polish provisional government, failed to solve the deadlock in Anglo-Polish affairs, it was revealed tonight. Rzymowski, who is en route home from the United States, expects to leave London tomorrow for Warsaw.

Anglo-Polish difficulties center around repatriation of the Polish army and civilian population from Britain and the debts owed Britain by the former Polish government in London. Rzymowski, according to British sources, refused to recognize the debts.

Bevin's doubts about the democracy of the Warsaw provisional government and the possibility of free elections being held soon were not allayed by the talks with Rzymowski, diplomatic sources said.

CRASHES PARTY, SIPS VODKA AND QUIZZES ZHUKOV

BERLIN, Nov. 9 (AP)—Russia's Marshal G. K. Zhukov was quoted by a party crashing American staff sergeant today as saying that the allies' "job in Germany could be completed in less than 10 years if the Germans are coöperative and display an earnest desire to rid themselves of any taint of militarism and nazi ideology."

S/Sgt. Harold Kempner

Staff Sgt. Harold Kempner of Philadelphia, a reporter for Groper, an army weekly, had no invitation to the reception Wednesday night in the palace of the former Hohenzollern crown prince, but managed to bluff his way in and drank vodka with so many generals that "the novelty wore off."

To U. S. Next Spring

Kempner is a native of Russia and once lived in Lithuania. He said Zhukov told him he hoped "to be in the United States early next spring." Kempner, said Zhukov's aides eyed him uneasily as he told the marshal:

"The watch market is the only medium of social relations between American and Russian soldiers and there is an urgent need for establishing an interallied club in Berlin where allied soldiers could get to know each other better."

He quoted Zhukov as replying:

"That sounds good to me. The watch business is surely no way of promoting better understanding between soldiers."

Didn't Crash Boom

Kempner said he saw Zhukov go into a room with Gen. Eisenhower, the ranking guest, and added, "I just got as near to the door as I could and waited. I thought for a while the vodka was going to get me before they came out, but I hung on."

The sergeant said he had arrived at Potsdam without an invitation, and without knowing where the reception was to be held. He solved the problem by going to the Russian commander of the guard and telling him he was going to the party and needed an escort.

He got one.

BELGIUM BACKS UP BRITISH PLAN FOR EUROPEAN ENTENTE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 9—Belgium today threw her weight on the side of Britain in the current jockeying for power in Europe. Prime Minister Achille Van Acker, following talks with British government officials here, announced he favored an entente of the nations of western Europe.

"I am convinced we need a western entente in order to establish peace in Europe and as an aid to the solution of economic problems."

In taking this position the Belgian minister ranged his country against soviet Russia which has denounced any such combination as a "cordon sanitaire."

Van Acker also revealed that he came to London in an attempt to intensify a resumption of trade. It is known that Belgium, with her industries starting up again, is having trouble selling manufactured products here because it is so difficult to obtain import licenses from the British board of trade.

ATTLEE ON PLANE BOUND FOR U. S. AND ATOM TALK

British Leader Expected to Arrive Today

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 [Special]—Final preparations were being made tonight for the three power discussion of atomic energy here this week-end, which will bring together the executive leaders of the United States, Great Britain, and Canada.

Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain was flying the Atlantic tonight on his way to the parley. Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, who had been in London, arrived today at New York aboard the Queen Mary.

Altho London newspapers speculated that Dictator Stalin might join the conferees in Washington, a London spokesman for Attlee said "as far as we know here, there is nothing in that report."

Russia Interested

Moscow dispatches showed that Russia was interested in the American-British-Canadian talks, but there was no indication of Stalin's participation.

Attlee was expected to arrive here about noon tomorrow. He is flying in an American Skymaster plane with a British air transport crew in command. Following his ship is another plan carrying John Anderson, chairman of the British atomic energy committee.

Attlee's flight to Washington via Newfoundland was expected to take 19½ hours.

King, who was accompanied by N. A. Robertson, Canadian undersecretary of state for external affairs, was to leave New York for the capital tonight.

Byrnes to Join Talks

A state dinner will be held for the visitors at the White House tomorrow night, and on Sunday the three leaders will confer aboard the yacht Sequoia, the navy secretary's craft, on the Potomac river.

Joining in the Sunday talks will be State Secretary Byrnes, Ambassador Halifax of Great Britain, and Adm. Leahy, the President's chief of staff. Before the conference a visit will be made to Arlington cemetery, where President Truman will lay a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

On Tuesday Attlee will address a joint session of the house and senate. Congressional leaders today made arrangements for bringing the two groups together at 11:30 a. m. [Chicago time] for the occasion.

Attlee Outlines Hopes

Before Attlee left London, news dispatches reported, he told a lord mayor's luncheon that he would discuss world affairs with President Truman and Mr. King "in the terrible light of the discovery of atomic energy." He said he hoped the talks would help achieve a world "safe for the common man" and banish fear of the atomic bomb.

"I want to exchange ideas . . . to see how best we can lift from the ordinary man and woman this specter of fear that haunts him today," Attlee said. He added that "we must look to the united nations and their close unity of purpose, especially that between Great Britain, the United States of America, and Russia, as the foundation of peace."

Meanwhile, a Moscow dispatch quoted political observers in the soviet capital as saying they believed leaders of the United States and Britain might suggest a sharing of the secret of atomic energy if not the atomic bomb.

YANKS PASS HAT SO ITALIAN BOY MAY SEE AGAIN

Plan U.S. Operation for Blind Youth

GORIZIA, Italy, Nov. 9 (AP)—A little Italian boy, blinded from a kick by a German army horse, may see again because American soldiers are passing the hat to pay for an operation in the United States.

Eight year old Giuliano Cabbia was sent by generous American soldiers to a school for the blind at Padua a year ago. He has been playing the accordion for the 88th division, and earning substantial sums by giving concerts at American installations.

The 88th division started a collection to finance a trip to the United States. There's $1,516 in the kitty already, and enough more in sight to meet the state department's requirement that the boy have $4,000 for passage and doctor bills.

Wears GI Uniform

Said one soldier: "The only trouble is we haven't heard from all our outfits yet. Some of them are 80 miles away up in the mountains, and there's a batch of new men who want to kick in, but who haven't been paid yet."

More or less adopted by the 88th, 34th, and 85th divisions, Giuliano wears a complete GI uniform, including sleeve patches of all three outfits.

His mother in Feltre is busily altering an "Eisenhower" jacket for him to wear on his long voyage.

Pvt. 1st Class Howard Gorgas, who found Giuliano when his outfit, the 338th infantry, moved into Feltre, has been assigned as the boy's manager, and will make the trip with him.

Bingham pleaded with the authorities for an opportunity of seeing his daughters, aged 2 and nine months, before his sight failed.

$8 A MONTH IN GERMANY GETS YOU A SERVANT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Nov. 9—Eight dollar German domestic servants are popular with the American army in Berlin. German municipal authorities have set an 80 mark monthly ceiling on their wages.

So for $8 a month a fraulein cooks, washes, irons, waits on table, cleans the house, and even shines shoes every morning, and some of them are pretty good lookers.

"We are not required to feed or lodge them," said a military government colonel, "but, dammit, you can't enjoy a good meal if you know that the hired girl serving you subsists on potato soup and bread."

U.S. TO RETURN GIs ON 33 CARRIERS USED BY BRITAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 9—The redeployment homeward of more than 15,000 American troops is going to be speeded up by the ending of one form of lend-lease. The army disclosed today that 33 baby aircraft carriers leased to Britain during the war now are scheduled for return to the United States and will be used as transports. The carriers, five of which are to be so employed once each month for six months, will be able to carry 470 officers and men each, in addition to the crew, and make the trip from Southampton to Hampton Roads, Va., in nine days.

PIGEONS SAVED AS ALDERMANIC WITS DO JOUST

The city council health committee yesterday deferred action on demands that pigeons be eliminated on the ground that they spread disease and commit public nuisance.

When Ald. Bohling [7th] pressed for action, Ald. Sheridan [16th] said Bohling shouldn't complain because research had disclosed there is an old city ordinance that prohibits pigeons from flying over the 7th ward. Bohling suggested that Ald. Gillespie [29th], committee chairman, be appointed a committee of one to diaper the pigeons.

A board of health advisory committee, headed by Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical association, reported that only a small percentage of pneumonia infection is related to the virus infection in birds. State and city health directors concurred.

FRANCE CLAIMS RULE BY NAZIS COST 100 BILLION

Parley to Fix Awards to 17 Countries

BY ROBERT SAGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Nov. 9—Financial experts from 17 countries met today in the block long conference hall of the Luxemburg palace for the opening session of the reparations conference. The primary purpose was to make a 17 way division of three quarters of the nonessential peace time industrial wealth in the western zone of Germany. The remaining quarter already is earmarked for Russia, which is not represented at the meeting.

France's bill is heavy, it being estimated that the German four year occupation cost the French 4 trillion, 897 billion francs. That's about 100 billion dollars at current exchange rates. The United States' demands, based on war time budgets and shipping losses, total more than 500 million dollars.

Cite World War Failure

Georges Bidault, outgoing French foreign minister, opened the first full dress meeting of the conference. He said that altho reparations could not replace the damage done in the war they could play a dominant role in the restoration of world economy. He also stressed that payment will be demanded not in money but in kind.

"The policy being followed consequently is different from that adopted at the end of the first World war which gave rise to numerous difficulties and in the end constituted a dismal experiment," he said. "The practical spirit that inspires the present conception permits us to hope that this time such disappointments and difficulties will not be renewed."

Next Meeting Monday

The next plenary session was set for Monday, by which time the agenda will have been drawn up and preliminary committee work done. Delegates estimated the length of the conference at one to six weeks. All meetings will be barred to the press, Jacques Rueff, conference chairman, said.

FORD WORKERS BACK STRIKE TO GET 30% BOOST

Support Walkout Threat

42,235 to 3,951

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 9 (AP)—More than 90 per cent of the Ford Motor company employes voting in a national labor relations board election this week favored striking to support their 30 per cent wage increase demands, the NLRB announced tonight. The vote was 42,235 for a strike and 3,951 against it, with 372 ballots voided. Eighty thousand were eligible to vote.

The strike vote, the third conducted by the NLRB among CIO United Auto Workers in plants of the automobile industry's "Big Three," was taken over a three day period starting Wednesday.

General Motors corporation and Chrysler corporation employes already have voted in favor of strikes to back their wage demands.

The UAW-CIO petitioned for the elections when it presented its wage demands to the auto industry. Union leaders emphasized, however, that the vote did not necessarily mean that a strike would be called. They said every effort would be made to settle the dispute peacefully.

Meanwhile, the UAW-CIO again rejected a General Motors offer of an 8 to 10 per cent cost of living wage increase and assailed the proposal "as pure economic poison."

The rejection was contained in a brief filed at the resumption of negotiations over the union's wage demands. Previously the union had filed with the NLRB a charge of unfair labor practices against the corporation, and the management had asserted the charges were "unjust and absurd" and not borne out by the facts."

The union brief asserted the corporation's proposal would mean "in the automobile industry, a return within three years to the three or four day work week and six months working year for those who get jobs at all."

NATIONAL 'HOLIDAY'

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 9 (AP)—A joint policy committee of the United Automobile Workers [CIO] tonight recommended immediate preparations be made for a one day stoppage of CIO members thruout Canada in support of the union's two month old strike at the Ford Motor Co. plant here.

No date for the "holiday" was set. An estimated 330,000 CIO members would be affected.

The committee also unanimously indorsed the action of a six man negotiating committee in rejecting a company proposal to let a government appointed arbitrator settle the strike.

George Burt, UAW-CIO regional director, said the union was willing to submit to arbitration any points in the dispute excepting union security.

The company proposal, made this afternoon, calls for discontinuance of all picketing, resumption of work, and the appointment of Canadian Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell or an Ontario Supreme court judge as arbitrator.

The strike, which began Sept. 12 over issues of wages, a closed shop, and checkoff, produced sympathy walkouts in 30 Windsor plants, leaving an estimated 20,000 idle. Twenty-seven AFL unions have threatened to join the walkout.

PICKETS SURROUND PLANT

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 9 (AP)—Production of industrial trucks and chain hoists was at a standstill today in the Philadelphia division of the Yale & Towne Manufacturing company as 1,300 AFL employes started a walkout and threw four picket lines around the plant.

Charles Field, business agent for local 1717, AFL American Association of Machinsts, said the employes are seeking a 30 per cent wage boost.

This was the second Yale and Towne plant to be struck. At Stamford, Conn., 2,700 AFL machinists walked out Wednesday. They are seeking a 30 per cent wage increase, a closed shop, and the check-off system.

END CROSLEY STRIKE

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 9 (AP)—The 19 day strike of 1,200 workers at the Crosley corporation, over a wage dispute, ended today with the announcement that an agreement had been reached between the company and members of the AFL Electrical Workers' union.

H. T. Blankenship, international representative of the union, said work would be resumed Monday. Details of the settlement were not made public.

KELLY REACHES CAPITAL TO BUY AIRPORT TRACT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9—Mayor Kelly of Chicago arrived here tonight to begin direct negotiations with administration leaders and officials of the war department for acquisition by Chicago of the idle Douglas aircraft factory and landing field, northwest of the city, as the nucleus of a new super-airport.

An ordinance authorizing creation of a 5,230 acre landing field which would include the Douglas site was passed by the city council yesterday.

Works for Army-Navy Game

Besides carrying the campaign for the Douglas airport to high federal authorities, Kelly said he plans to urge army and navy officials to choose Chicago as the place of the 1946 Army-Navy football game.

"I am going to visit both departments and plant the seeds for this to happen," he asserted. "Chicago would be the ideal location for the game and we expect to convince the proper officials of this fact."

Regarding the plans to acquire the Douglas airport, Kelly said he will call upon officials of the army air forces to learn when the site will be declared surplus. Until it is released for disposal thru the surplus property administration there can be no negotiations regarding price and other terms.

Starts His Calls Today

Tomorrow, he said, he will call upon whatever officials he can find at their desks on Saturday. He added, however, that he does not expect to accomplish his mission until early next week.

He said one of his purposes in coming here today was to attend a small dinner tonight in compliment to Postmaster General Hannegan, Democratic national chairman. The dinner is being given by the 1925 graduating class of St. Louis university law school, of which Hannegan is a member.

It was announced today that the army and navy have issued orders to their respective personnel that airports to be declared surplus must be left generally intact when the service personnel leaves them. The only exception, said W. Stuart Symington, surplus property administrator, is cases where particular equipment at a field being abandoned is needed at some other installation which is remaining in army or navy operation.

Mayor Kelly said he was aware that this regulation was to be promulgated and that it will apply to the Douglas plant, assuring the city of obtaining much of the valuable air field equipment that is now on the site.

ROBNETT GIVES CARLSON LIE IN $100,000 TRIAL

Repudiates Statements Made in Book

George Washington Robnett, executive secretary of the Church League of America, yesterday repudiated as false statements attributed to him by John Roy Carlson in Carlson's book, "Under Cover," for which Robnett is seeking $100,000 damages from E. P. Dutton & Co., Inc., publisher of the book, on a charge of libel.

The case is being tried before Judge Walter J. La Buy and a jury in the federal District court. Carlson, an investigator, has already appeared as a defense witness, and pictured himself as a man of many aliases. Robnett alleges that he has been libeled both in the text of the book and in its advertising jacket.

Robnett Denies Book Quote

Lloyd D. Heth, lawyer for the book firm, read three brief excerpts from the book. One was as follows: "Robnett urged me to 'get its Jewish connections if Birkhead's got any' as soon as I returned home and offered to pay incidental expenses from a fund he maintained for such purposes." [The reference was to the Rev. Leon M. Birkhead, director of the Friends of Democracy.]

"Did you say that?" asked Heth.

"I am certain I did not," replied Robnett.

Heth then read, "'Why don't you go up and see Mrs. Dilling now?' he asked me as he reached for the phone. 'I'll call and tell her you're coming.'" [The reference was to Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, author of "The Red Network."]

Heth asked Robnett if he recalled that, and Robnett said he did not. The lawyer next read, "But while Robnett was denouncing the 'Red menace in America,' he made no comment against American nazis."

Statement Called Lie

"Is that true or false?" inquired Heth.

"False!" was Robnett's answer.

Earlier in the day, Robnett produced financial records of the Church League of America. Heth required him while on the stand to total bank deposits year by year from 1937 on. Robnett revealed that the league deposited $9,512.57 in 1942, the year Carlson interviewed him; $14,333.07 in 1944, and $15,070.34 in the first 10 months of 1945. Robnett was given to next Tuesday to compute the deposits for the missing years.

Referring to the book, "Under Cover," Heth asked if the witness had read it.

"I read that portion devoted to me," Robnett replied.

Q.—You claim all the statements about you in the book are libelous? A.—No, I do not. My name is in there. That is not libelous.

Under questioning, Robnett denied he had asked Carlson at their interview to do any investigating work for him. He said Carlson volunteered to report on individuals in New York, and he accepted that offer.

FRENCH SAVED 2,000 OF ALLIED AIRMEN: PROSSER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, Nov. 9—Two thousand allied airmen shot down over enemy territory in Europe reached freedom thru the French underground, Flight Officer David G. Prosser, 25, who carried the heroism of the resistance movement to millions of readers thru one of the war's most intriguing stories, asserted today.

David G. Prosser

The Chicago author of "Journey Underground," returning on the Queen Mary, paid tribute to the French men and women who risked their lives so he and his fellows could continue the fight.

All were not as fortunate as he, Prosser said in an interview. Fifty airmen whose ships were shot down were tortured and executed by the Gestapo in one concentration camp near Berlin, he said. Prosser's father, a broker, is Stuart A. Prosser, 1255 N. State st., Chicago.

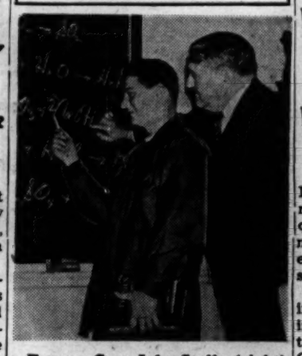
Inspects School



Former Gov. John Stelle (right) looks on at work of Harry Vnell, former marine, in veterans' school at Schurz High school.

Three schools for World War II veterans now established in Chicago will serve as a pattern for introduction of a new system of independent schooling in the city, Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of Chicago schools, said yesterday. Under such a system, he said, students capable of assimilating education faster than others would not be held down to fixed terms or courses.

Johnson, with 15 veterans' welfare leaders, visited the veterans' schools at Schurz High school, 3601 Milwaukee av.; the Wilson branch of the Chicago Junior college, 6800 Stewart av., and the Herzl branch of the Chicago Junior college, 2245 Jackson blvd.

Introducing the veterans' delegates to the 86 veteran-students at Schurz High school, Johnson commended the former service men for returning to their studies.

James P. Ringley, chairman of the Illinois veterans commission, and former Gov. John Stelle both maintained the program was the "most advantageous to ability," and said an attempt would be made to adopt the system thruout the state.

Her face bruised by blows of her assailant's fists, Mrs. Passot freed herself and ran home to call police. She reported the robber, about 17, took $5 from her purse.

BALL DEMANDS WE SHARE ATOM WITH EVERY ONE

Wants World Police to Control It

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 9 (AP)—Sen. Ball [R., Minn.], calling the allied nations charter "pitifully inadequate" in the atomic age, urged tonight a new international conference to strengthen it to a "superstate."

In a speech delivered at a meeting of the Cincinnati Foreign Policy institute, the senator proposed that the United States, Britain, and Canada take the lead in calling a conference at which the delegations would be "half politicians and half scientists."

Views on Russia

To any one who might wonder whether Russia would agree, he suggested that the soviet leaders were "tough minded realists" and added:

"Perhaps an invitation to Russia's leaders and scientists to observe a demonstration of an atomic bomb dropped in Siberia might help. And as a last resort, there is always the possibility or organizing the rest of the world and leaving Russia in self-imposed isolation."

Six major changes must be made, he declared, if the allied nations organization "is to be strong and democratic enough to give us and our children even a hope of peace."

Ball listed:

International Police Force

"Second, we must create a true international police force, composed of quotas of various nations thoroly mixed and under an international command. This force should occupy key bases and strong points thruout the world and no individual nation should be permitted to have military bases outside its own territory.

"Third, the international force should have the only legal and authorized stockpile of atomic bombs permitted in the world.

"Fourth, the charter should provide for the complete interchange of all scientific knowledge, including military applications as well as all others, among all member nations, and for the free inspection by scientists and others acting as agents of the united nations, of any and all activities in every nation.

"Fifth, the security council should be authorized and directed, the instant any nation violates the agreement on free interchange of knowledge by closing its borders or refusing complete freedom of inspection, to order the international police force to move in on such nation and discover and destroy any secret preparations for war being made.

"Sixth, we should rewrite the trusteeship provisions of the charter and place directly under its administration such trouble spots of the world as Java, Indo-China, Korea, Trieste, Palestine, and perhaps even Austria and Bulgaria. It might be a good idea to turn over to the united nations the administration and occupation of Germany and Japan."

Cops Forgive Blows, So Seaman Gets Light Fine

William Hankel, 22, of 4720 Dover st., former merchant seaman, who wielded an eight inch bread knife in his home Oct. 29 when he tried to avoid arrest for wrecking furniture, was fined $1 and $1 costs on each of three assault and battery charges by Judge Leon Edelman in Town Hall court yesterday. Three policemen, severely battered by Hankel, said they were willing to forgive him, so Edelman dismissed three charges of disorderly conduct and two cases of assault with a deadly weapon.

"With Bated Breath"

By Alice Campbell

(Copyright: 1945: By Mrs. Alice Ormond Campbell)

SYNOPSIS: Avis Marriott accepts a job as a companion-housekeeper to Maud and Erica Bolles, wealthy spinsters, until she can return to her Red Cross work. Maud, a local autocrat, known for her charities, has grown strangely penurious in her home. Erica, childish, a semi-invalid, is dominated by Maud. A couple of guests and an evacuee family live with them at Turrets. Dr. Bruce advises Avis against accepting the position, but drives her over. Turrets is an isolated English manor with an abandoned underground passage. Avis' predecessor, Agatha Trimble, left under a cloud, suspected of theft. Robin Grier, Maud's godson, has been invalided out of the army. Mrs. Marks, a widow and family connection, seems too sophisticated for her surroundings. Avis arrives during a violent domestic scene with the departing cook calling Maud a cheeseparing sinner. Avis' room is in the turret, where Erica insists upon living. An unexpected guest, Oscar Moravian, arrives on Erica's invitation. Mrs. Marks tells Avis he is an East Indian half brother of her dead husband, with a criminal reputation. Apparently Maud does not dare to send him away. In the night Avis is awakened by a crash. She fears Erica has fallen down the stairs. Instead, the soldier husband in the evacuee family slipped and fell downstairs to his death.

INSTALMENT VI.

SMEARS OF WAX

"Neck broken," Dr. Bruce pronounced sourly. "I suppose you've rung the police?" No one had thought of it, all energies being bent on calming Miss Erica and in coping with Mrs. Bandy. Robin shuffled off to the phone. Abruptly Olive said that the Bandy woman had had to be literally dragged away from the body.

"Was she by chance trying to get at his pockets?"

"O," Maud cried, and strode instantly for the corpse, only to find the doctor firmly barring the way. If the soldier had stolen anything, he said, the police must make the discovery for themselves. Glancing at his watch, he remarked that it was now 6:15. Had any of them noticed just when the accident took place? Silence, then the precise accents of Oscar Moravian replying softly that the crash had occurred at 5:17.

"So," Maud accused, "you seem to have been awake!"

Avis saw the doctor send a narrowed, questioning gaze at the queerly pigmented complexion and was not greatly astonished at Maud's utter neglect of an introduction. Bruce now suggested they return to their rooms.

"Hilda!" Maud suddenly roused. "Can it be conceivable the wretched girl has slept thru all this commotion?"

"She must have done so," Avis declared. "I'll call her."

She edged shudderingly past the obscenely sprawled object and had made the landing above when she found Bruce at her side. "Mind how you trip about over this villainous linoleum," he said crossly. "It has been directly responsible for one death as it is . . . Is this the maid's room? Let's get some light on the scene."

Avis turned on the unshaded bulb. It shone on a neatly made bed and on a sheet of lined paper skewered to a pincushion.

"Deer Miss Bolles," ran the message. "I carnt stick no longer wot with the Stares and Trays and all this Lino and Brass. Respty, Hilda Lobb. P.S. I sharnt want no Carrekter as am now gorn 18 so can sign on for Munitions."

Bruce grunted that this was perfectly correct. "And she'll reap a handsome profit, what's more. Well! Is this a knockout blow?"

Avis was weakly giggling. "I felt it coming last night," she gasped. "You break the news, I'll rustle along that tea."

She found the company collected in the cold dining room, left the tray with them, and took the doctor's cup up the back way. He was still on the top landing, bent low over the strip between Erica's steps and the main staircase. "What's the matter?" she whispered, then saw. "O, gosh, will you look at these smears!"

"I am looking—" dryly. "Which do we hold answerable, the cook or the maid?"

She couldn't summon speech. All she could do was stare, dumb-frozen, at the sharply defined slurs which marked Pvt. Bandy's slide to destruction. Big and small, they all had ridges of red, greasy wax. The scraped transit began at the very threshold of the schoolroom door, swept in an unbroken path across the narrow interval of level flooring, and continued down the principal flight.

"It wasn't like this when I came up to bed."

"O?"

Suddenly aware of how her statement must sound she floundered. "I mean . . . well, I don't exonerate Hilda, because I've no way of knowing at what time she did her flit. What I do say is these steps can't have been more than ordinarily slippery, or else—"

"Else," he supplied grimly, "it would have been you."

"Or Miss Erica. We all took it for granted it was she. When I first tore down—"

"Well, no, I crept, actually. It so happens I clung to the rail. You see, don't you, this top wax is only down the middle? It really is floor stuff, I suppose?" His elbow nudged silence. Miss Erica, flannel clad, was peering round eyed from her door. This poor man, she implored, had the ambulance taken him away?

"Just," Bruce lied smoothly and guided her back into her retreat; but Avis noticed he had managed to slip into his pocket a folded bit of paper she was certain contained a knife scraping of the wax. To his patient he said: "You keep out of this draught. I'll be with you when I've swallowed by tea." Closing the door; "I wanted this," he muttered.

"Poor you, getting hauled out of your lovely warm bed!"

"Bed?" His tone scorched. "If it interests you, I've been up all night. Just tooled in when I got your summons, from dragging a would-be suicide from the jaws of death."

"Suicide! O, who?"

He had one hand on Erica's doorknob. Sternly he said: "Since you must know, it was the poor wretch you've come to replace. I don't intend my other patient to know. Keep quiet about this stair business, too."

Agatha Trimble.

In her own room she was shaking her pillows when the doctor's voice reached her, laying down the law to Maud herself. Maud was tartly declaring that Erica would never consent to being moved to the lower floor.

"She has a morbid mania for altitudes, doctor."

"In that case, will you examine these steps?"

A pregnant pause. Maud's strangled gasp. "But this is fantastic! That chit of a girl . . . Pure wanton . . . But why Erica? Why not me?"

"It's the maid's doing, do you think?"

"Hilda's? Whose else could it be? O, I see, the cook. A parting villainy. That is an idea."

Dryly Bruce observed that the action would probably prove impossible to pin down. In future, polish of any description must go by the board. There must be a carpet firmly tacked down.

"A new carpet in war time?" Maud's mirth was thin. "Come, come, doctor, let us not lose all sense of proportion. By all means we will abandon floor polish. But I put it to you, what occasion has my sister for coming out of her own quarters during the night? I have arranged for the new housekeeper to be within call. Need one remind you that Erica is remarkably sure footed?"

Bruce's comeback was lost in the heavy clumping of boots. The police had arrived. Avis reached the spot in time to complete the audience collected again in order to witness the official examination of the victim's pockets. Booty was revealed in the shape of a long white envelope, red-sealed but torn open. From it, along with the familiar slip, With the Manager's Compliments, fell a sheaf of crisply crackling one pound notes. Ten of them—all new.

"Ten pounds! Stolen from my sister? It's absurd."

TURKEYS BREAK RECORD, BUT NO THANKS TO THEM

They Don't Want to Live; Treated Like Babies

The nation's housewives, shopping for Thanksgiving dinner, will have 44,150,000 turkeys to pinch for the proper plumpness this fall. This is the biggest crop on record, being 22 per cent greater than last year's offering of the traditional fowl.

When the family murmurs thanks over the crisp brown bird on the holiday a few words of gratitude should be given to the farmer for the time and patience he used in raising one of the most onery birds in the world.

It Needs a Baby's Care

The turkey, like the sheep, seems to delight in lying down and dying upon the slightest provocation. It takes great experience plus a lot of luck to raise a flock of turkeys. The old tale of the big birds standing out in a rainstorm with their mouths open until they drown is not too far from wrong. Plagued by disease and susceptible to colds, the turkey must be guarded as closely as a baby.

Turkey raiser produced their record crop this year despite a poor start. An early warm spell started the hens laying eggs. Then it suddenly turned cold and wet and the birds' production dropped and egg fertility became low.

As a result of heavy losses from disease and predatory animals the old fashioned method of raising a few birds on the farm steadily is decreasing. The small flocks are giving way to the big breeders who specialize in nothing but turkeys.

1,100 of 3,000 Die

Not unusual was the experience of one Illinois turkey grower who started out this spring with 3,000 birds. He wound up with 1,100 of them dead from pullorum disease which came in young poults he had purchased for 85 cents each.

A modern turkey raiser is a particular man. No stranger may enter his brooder house or turkey range for fear of the disease he may track in. Even the farmer disinfects his shoes when walking into the brooder house. When the birds have grown for 10 weeks on wire in the house they are moved to clean range ground. Every other week the birds are moved to fresh ground to prevent infection.

So when that first slab of white meat or the fat round leg is served up on your plate, say a few kind words for the farmers of the country who did a tremendous job in trying to meet the public demand for more turkeys.

HELD IN SLAYING, EX-COP TRIES TO END LIFE IN CELL

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 9 [Special]—Edward Bellm, 48, a former private detective, was in a serious condition in Pontiac General hospital tonight after slashing his wrists with a razor blade in a suicide attempt in the county jail, where he has been held nearly a week for questioning in the slaying of Mrs. Alberta Rose Young, 34, wife of an army captain.

Edward Bellm

Before slashing himself, Bellm wrote several notes in which he denied he had slain the woman, whose bullet pierced body was found Oct. 31 in the Clinton river Oct. 31.

His suicide attempt was made a few hours before the arrival here of Lawrence J. Theis, 29, who was brought from New York, where he was arrested on a murder warrant issued after Bellm had said Theis quarreled with Mrs. Young. The woman and two men formerly worked together in a Detroit war plant. Police, who said Theis apparently had an alibi, had planned to question the two men together.

AMATEUR RADIO RESTRICTIONS LIFTED BY FCC

The nation's 60,000 amateur radio operators, forbidden to operate from the attack on Pearl Harbor until one band was opened up last Aug. 21, got the green light for peace time communications yesterday from the federal communications commission. The FCC announced new amateur allocations to become effective next Thursday; extended operators' licenses to May 15, 1946, and validated station licenses which were in effect in December, 1941, to the same date.

The commission also revoked the war time order prohibiting amateurs from communicating with foreign stations. Amateur stations still are barred in the central, south and west Pacific areas. Hams will operate under their old call letters except those who have moved to locations other than those designated in their licenses. Those who have moved must operate under portable transmitter procedure.

EXPERTS WATCH TESTS OF BUS IN ACCIDENT QUIZ

Shown How Brakes on Vehicle Work

A committee of safety experts, appointed by Coroner Brodie to inquire into three accidents involving Chicago Motor Coach company buses, yesterday witnessed a series of tests put on by the company in ar effort to prove that mechanical failure of the transit vehicles could not have caused the crashes. One of the accidents resulted in a fatality.

The bus which ran up on the sidewalk at Randolph st. and Michigan av. on Tuesday, killing Fred Schroeder, 40, of 1342 Monroe st., River Forest, was the first tested.

Bus Stopped by Brakes

Since the bus driver involved contended that he was unable to turn the corner because of a failure of the steering gear, company mechanics disconnected the entire steering apparatus. Then, in a testing area, they speeded the vehicle up to about 12 miles per hour, about four miles an hour faster than the estimated speed of the bus before the accident, and slammed on the brakes. The bus stopped in approximately six feet.

Altho denying that the steering gear failed, the company contended that even if there had been a failure the bus driver had more than 50 feet in which to stop before he ran over the sidewalk. The brakes, they said, have not been touched between yesterday's tests and Tuesday's accident.

With steering gear connected the bus then executed a series of complicated maneuvers in crowded space which would tax the managability of a small automobile.

Three Drivers Discharged

In both of the other accidents involving motor coach buses one bus plowed into the rear of another which was stopped. In each case, the company claimed, the drivers admitted that there was no mechanical failure and that they merely failed to stop in time. All three drivers have been discharged.

Benjamin Weintraub, president of the bus company, and R. J. Jurgensen, operating vice president, then cited a number of statistics showing that company equipment has been kept in top shape despite war time shortages.

Maintenance expenses, they said, have risen from $614,000 in 1941 to $1,062,000 for the first nine months of this year. The rise, they pointed out, has not been primarily due to deterioration of equipment but rather to the tremendous increase in passengers carried. The company inventory of spare parts has more than doubled within the last few years, they added.

In Loop 25 Per Cent of Time

In answer to charges that constant driving in heavy traffic lowers the efficiency of drivers, Weintraub showed that only about 25 per cent of the driving time was in the loop or other congested areas. Most of the driving, he said, was in open parks or on boulevards.

Mrs. Lena Wolberg, 80, of 6807 Sheridan rd., suffered a brain concussion and bruises yesterday when she was struck by a Chicago Motor Coach bus as she was crossing at Sheridan rd. and Pratt blvd. She was taken to Edgewater hospital. The driver, Robert Lamping, 42, of 1915 Balmoral av., was not held.

Four persons were slightly injured when a Chicago Surface Lines feeder bus and a private automobile collided at Lincoln and Ogden avs.

ROBBERY VICTIM FOUND BOUND, SHOT TO DEATH

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 9 [Special]—With his feet and hands bound and a bullet wound in his back, A. B. Hawley of Detroit was found dead late today in a small fieldhouse of the Houseman-Zpitzley Real Estate company on the border line of Oakland and Wayne counties. Hawley, an employe of the company, was believed to have been slain by robbers, for his pockets had been turned out and the place ransacked. It was not immediately learned how much money had been taken.

ALDERMEN PROD RAILS TO CURB SMOKE IN CITY

The council health committee yesterday asked the railway terminals subcommittee to force railroads to use electric or diesel engines to eliminate the smoke nuisance.

The Rev. E. M. Pelicor, assistant pastor of Holy Rosary church, complained of smoke conditions in the area bounded by Damen, California, and Chicago avs. and Fulton st. The Chicago & North Western, Milwaukee, and Pennsylvania railroads have switch yards, round houses, and coach yards in this area.

Father Pelicor said smoke conditions were so bad that many families were moving, and the district was headed toward becoming a slum area.

Frank A. Chambers, deputy city smoke inspector in charge of abatement, told the committee that the North Western has in use 17 Diesel engines, and has ordered 14 for delivery next year.

NEW TROLLEYS TO HAVE LATEST IMPROVEMENTS

buses ordered are being built by the American Car and Foundry company, White Motor company, General Motors corporation, and Ford Motor company. Thirty-five have been delivered. Bids have been asked on the additional 480 buses, of which 210 will be trolley buses.

Funds for the 22 million dollar modernization program will be supplied in part from the lines' 24 million dollar fund for renewal of equipment. It will be necessary to borrow some of the money because Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe has ordered that at least 12 million dollars be held in the renewal reserve fund. The Chicago metropolitan transit authority, which hopes to buy and merge the surface and elevated lines, wants the 12 million to spend on subway and elevated lines equipment.

The new cars will be used on the Clark-Wentworth line, one of the longest and most heavily traveled in the city. Surface lines officials explained that the cars will not be scattered about the city because the benefits of their high speed would be lost if they were mixed on lines with slower cars.

DEAD ARTIST IDENTIFIED

The body of a man fatally injured Thursday by a street car in front of 3737 N. Clark st. was identified yesterday as that of Leon Arthur Viosca, 43, of 4520 Clifton av., an artist. Thomas J. Klein of the Lake Shore club, 850 Lake Shore dr., said Viosca toured taverns and drew sketches of patrons.

SEAMAN KILLED DEMONSTRATING RUSSIAN 'TRICK'

John Richardson, 17, of 4351 N. Ashland av., a seaman in the merchant marine, accidentally shot and killed himself last night while showing friends at 4515 N. Seeley av. how to play a game called "Russian roulette." While visiting in the home of Paul Wernle, 18, at the Seeley av. address, he took a revolver from Wernle's collection of firearms and placed a cartridge in the cylinder. He turned the cylinder, put the muzzle to his temple, and pulled the trigger, then repeated the demonstration. The next time he shot himself. Richardson's father died a few days ago.

MURDER IN JAVA

It is no longer possible to believe that the people of Java wish to be ruled by the Dutch. Obviously they don't. The leaders of the independence movement are gaining popular support from day to day. The Javanese may be wrong in thinking that they will be freer, happier, or more prosperous under a government of their own choosing, but that is what they want, that is what they have been fighting for, and that is what a good many of them have been dying for.

Moreover, it is impossible any longer to believe that the Dutch by themselves can reconquer their colony. They haven't the force and if they had it could not bring it to bear. Such troops as they have on the scene are dressed in American uniforms and carry American arms. So equipped, the Dutch have succeeded in massacring some of the natives, but most of the killing has been the work of the British and their Indian mercenaries.

All of this bloody suppression of a nation striving for self-government has the approval of President Truman. In his recent speech on foreign affairs he echoed some of the tender pieties of the Atlantic Charter, but he was just talking. His actions show how much he really cares for the right of all peoples to governments of their own choosing. If he really meant what he said the Dutch soldiers wouldn't be killing the Javanese with American ammunition shot from American guns obtained with Mr. Truman's permission; and certainly Mr. Truman would have protested against all this brutality in a fashion to persuade the colonial powers that he meant what he said.

The moral position of the British in this matter is particularly vulnerable. Java isn't theirs and they have no more right to interfere there than they would have in Oklahoma. The reason for their meddling is, of course, apparent enough. If the Javanese win their freedom it will be all but impossible for the British to hold their Asiatic colonies. The tide of liberation which has swept from the Philippines to Java and Indo-China will inundate Malaya, Burma, and India. A busted and exhausted England, with a mess of colonial troubles nearer home, is trying to suppress the independence movements in Java and Indo-China to prevent the spread of dangerous thoughts to British territory. This entails wholesale massacre, of course, but Mr. Attlee can hope to transfer the blood guilt to the Dutch and the French, for whom he professes to be acting.

Those in this country who allowed themselves to think that the Labor party would reform British imperial practices now have their answer. Mr. Attlee, like Mr. Churchill, has no intention of presiding over the liquidation of the British empire. And Mr. Truman, like Mr. Roosevelt, busies himself with uttering platitudes while contributing all he can to the perpetuation of colonial slavery.

THE NORTHWEST SUPERHIGHWAY

City and county highway officials have agreed on a tentative route for the northwest superhighway, which will connect the proposed new municipal airport at the Douglas site near Park Ridge and downtown Chicago. Agreement was reached, also, on the financing of the project, which will cost 58 million dollars, to be divided among the city, county, and state.

The route, for an eight lane depressed superhighway, runs north near Halsted street from Congress street to a point between Milwaukee and Elston avenues, thence northwest diagonally to Foster avenue, and westward and northwestward to the airport. A branch is planned north from Foster and Cicero avenues to connect eventually with Skokie boulevard. Connections with the downtown area are to be provided at Ontario street, Congress street, and between those two points into Wacker drive.

The route is the westernmost of two that were under consideration. A proposal that the southern part of the superhighway be built east of the north branch of the Chicago river was dropped. As we said recently, neither of these alternate routes seemed to have any overwhelming advantage over the other and the thing to do was to pick one and get to work on it. The route has been fixed and it now remains for the state and local governments to start construction.

In addition to serving the new airport, the superhighway will give proper highway transportation to the northwest side of the city, which until now has been the most neglected portion of Chicago in that respect. It may not be possible to open the superhighway at the same time that the new Douglas airport is finished, but every effort should be made to accomplish this, since the utility of the airport will be considerably hampered until the superhighway gives a proper connection with downtown Chicago.

THE AUDITORIUM

Patrons of Chicago opera have never been convinced that there was any compelling reason to abandon the Auditorium theater for the Civic Opera house. The new opera house, which Mr. Insull established on the windiest corner in town, is a long, narrow structure, which gives the audience the effect of having the side walls closing in on them. Its ventilation is none too good [one of the customers at "Pelleas and Melisande" was knocked out the other night and slept thru four acts], its ornamentation is on the garish side, and its acoustics leave a great deal to be desired.

In the Auditorium Chicago had one of the world's great theaters. Its seating arrangements were comfortable, its acoustics unmatched, and it was tasteful and relaxing in architecture and decoration. During the war it served a useful function as a service man's center, but it is somewhat sad to think that there are now bowling alleys where Chicagoans used to sit in the orchestra seats and listen to the great artists of their time.

Early this year it was suggested that the city government acquire the Auditorium theater and hotel as a permanent recreation center. It may be questionable whether the hotel should be kept, fine as it is as an example of Louis Sullivan's work; but there can be no possible disagreement about saving the theater. The city administration ought to have made arrangements already to preserve it as a civic monument. There are a great many Chicagoans who would be happy to see opera back at its old home.

FACT AND FICTION

Atty. Gen. Clark's account of the catching of eight nazi saboteurs landed on the east coast in June, 1942, provides an insight into the degree of credibility which can be accorded news put out by government agencies, especially in war time. Mr. Clark's story differs in important particulars from the romancing indulged in by the office of war information and the federal bureau of investigation at the time the saboteurs were caught.

In releasing the record of the secret trial of the saboteurs before a military commission, Mr. Clark makes clear that the police work which led to their arrest was simplicity itself. Four of the Germans landed on Long Island, the other four in Florida. One of the Long Island party, George John Dasch, promptly gave the plot away, with the knowledge and consent of one of his partners, Ernest Peter Burger.

As soon as he had made his way from Long Island to New York City, Dasch telephoned the FBI and said he wanted it known that a few days later he would contact FBI headquarters in Washington. He then went to Washington and telephoned J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, disclosing his identity and his mission and stating that he had important information on objectives marked for sabotage. All the FBI had to do was go to his hotel and pick him up. Burger was netted in New York with no more effort. With the information provided by the pair, the FBI rounded up the rest of the saboteurs within two weeks.

There wasn't enough melodrama in this prosaic piece of police work to satisfy the OWI and FBI when they put out their stories three years ago. The public was given the impression of Mr. Hoover in Washington, a disembodied brain, directing a farflung network of G-men, all of them with hats pulled low over their eyes and speaking out of the corners of their mouths in whispers. Then—flash! as Mr. Hoover's radio press agent puts it—the FBI had scored again.

The OWI also made its contribution to detective literature with the account of how a coast guardsman on Long Island encountered the saboteurs in the dark and, in looking into the eyes of their leader, "was afraid he might be hypnotized." It made quite a story. The saboteurs got away and were safely in hiding by the time the alarm was spread and the coast guard mustered its forces. The OWI reticently remarked, "FBI men under J. Edgar Hoover took up the chase from there and rounded up, not only the men who had landed in the fog on Amagansett beach, but another group that had been landed on the Florida coast." No vulgar reference to voluntary stool pigeoning was permitted to intrude.

The OWI had a lot of hack writers on the government pay roll during the war. They weren't squeamish about facts. The FBI, of course, likes to portray its operations on the plane of high intrigue and master minding, which helps when appropriations are under discussion. War time censorship and secrecy made it possible to dish out hop dreams to the public as "news." A secret trial before a military commission helped conceal the facts. The fake news about the saboteurs was relatively harmless, but other government agencies were distorting facts about far more important matters. That always can be expected if government is allowed to report its own activities without interference from a free press. The burocrats are sure to make themselves look good.

Aside from this, the true story of the saboteurs indicates a grave miscarriage of justice. Dasch, who gave the government its case on a platter, was sentenced to 30 years, and Burger to life imprisonment. If Mr. Clark is now telling the truth, these men never intended to carry out their mission. The worst they deserve is deportation.

WHO'S CRAZY NOW?

Rudolph Hess, who used to be the No. 3 Nazi, apparently is off his rocker. At least he has convinced his captors that he is suffering from amnesia. This seems to present a problem to the allied war crimes commission. Altho they are disregarding virtually all of the vital principles of British and American jurisprudence, and are picking their law out of the air as they go along with the projected trial of the nazi leaders, they suddenly have developed a rash of fine old Anglo-Saxon scruples against hanging a crazy man.

Therefore, they are trying to get Rudolph back in his right mind, preparatory to arraigning him. And whom do you suppose they are consulting on the proper procedure to get him out of his present balmy state?

Rudolph!

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

MR. PEPYS TUNES IN

10th Nov.—Will turn on my radio at 2 p. m. today in a low state of mind, because when my team, the famous and dreaded Wildcats, plays out of town, local stations go into a close huddle over some other crucial conflict, also out of town. Have been gypped twice this season, for my little juke box could not reach to Minneapolis or Columbus, and if I can't get Madison, Wis., this afternoon I may do something desperate, such as refusing to listen to the game on which the band wagon riders love to concentrate.

Well, maybe I can squeak in between the powerful air waves that will be roaring about Army-Notre Dame and pick up a Milwaukee station without burning out a tube. Milwaukee will be sure to give its native Badgers a break. Am feeling like an oppressed minority over this matter, and if told that the other game—any other game—is more important, will growl, "Not for me."

And so another week bites the dust. Have been taking it easy and saving my strength for the big things scheduled for the end of the month, such as my birthday, Thanksgiving day, the Press Veterans' annual dinner, and the Line o' Type contributors' ditto—all in a stretch of 10 days.

Why Father Hits the Ceiling

Several years ago when I bought a new typewriter for the office, then decided to use it at home, I carelessly overlooked the fact that Mrs. Hig was an accomplished typist of the two-finger newspaper variety.

When young Hig became interested in the mysterious clicks from the library, I taught him my exclusive touch system, which uses all fingers of both hands, the elbows, and the left knee for turning memoranda.

As a result, my—that is, our—typewriter is seldom silent. It is used for typing personal letters, checks, laundry lists, club data, welfare notices, school lessons, themes, and notes to the little redhead across the street. However, on evenings when there is a particularly good picture at the neighborhood movie, I can usually have it all to myself . . . for two whole hours.

But the other day when Lela, the maid, was dusting around my—our—typewriter, I observed that she was eying it possessively.

ARIZONA REVERIE

The western moon rides high,
While far away a night bird trills
Its sweet song to a sky
That's set with brilliants, fiery bright,
And somewhere very near
A coyote calls; across the night
Its mate gives answer clear.

Down in the valley cabins, far
Below, the peons dance
The while a silver-stringed guitar
Sobs softly of romance.
From dwellings of the Navajo,
High on a sand cliff, comes
Like echoes from the long ago
The throb of Indian drums.

A mission bell tolls distantly;
A star streaks thru the skies.
The ranch house looks on silently
Thru drowsy, lamplit eyes.
And resting by the campfire, I
In old dreams find new thrills
Whene'er the western moon rides high
O'er Arizona hills. D-Double-E

Because I am unable to apply for my former job within the stipulated 90 days after discharge are my rights forfeited?"

Not at all. If after discharge from the army you immediately entered a veterans' hospital you have 90 days from date of release from the hospital to apply for the old job, providing your hospitalization does not extend beyond one year.

P. M. A. writes: "Do provisions of the GI bill and other veterans' laws apply equally to WAVES?"

They do. The term "veteran" is generic and applies equally to men and women who served.

DON'T HANDLE INFECTED RABBITS

SEVERAL years ago I saw a young man who complained of a peculiar ulcer on the index finger of his right hand. As I recall, it had been present for a month and had resisted all forms of treatment. Since it was an unusual location for a lesion of this type, I decided that a more thoro investigation was in order.

He stated that it followed what he considered the flu inasmuch as he had experienced a high fever with chills, aching, weakness, and headache. During this time the glands beneath the right arm were swollen. The next day a pimple appeared on the finger, which soon became larger and more painful only to break and form the sore in question.

After two weeks the temperature subsided gradually but he had not regained his former strength. This story suggested tularemia and, when asked about hunting, he mentioned having shot a rabbit and skinned it five days before the onset of his illness. Blood tests confirmed my suspicions.

The disorder was described originally by McCoy and Chapin, who discovered the causative germ in ground squirrels in and about the bulrush in Tulare county, California. Since then it has been observed in every state of the union. The organism favors wild rabbits, especially the cottontail, jack, and snowshoe, as well as other rodents. Domestic animals are exempt. The infected bunny transmits it to humans either while being handled or butchered, or thru the bite of a tic or fly which had previously been in contact with the ailing animal.

Not all victims encounter a blemish on the skin. In some, the culprit gains entrance thru the eyes, causing severe inflammation of the lids and puffiness of the glands of the head and neck. Now and then the malady is contracted by eating inadequately cooked game. This may result in vomiting, diarrhea, and abdominal pain. In certain patients there is merely tenderness of the glands; others exhibit symptoms resembling influenza or typhoid fever.

Most sufferers recover but convalescence is prolonged. The ulcer heals slowly and usually leaves a scar. Many feel weak and are more or less incapacitated for some time. Occasionally bouts of fever return. Months, or as long as a year, may pass before return to health is complete. Since no record of a second attack has been reported, it is assumed that a lasting immunity exists.

There is no specific treatment. Warm, moist dressings often relieve discomfort. Special serums have been effective in shortening the course of the ailment in many cases but they are not cure-alls. There is a possibility that streptomycin will be helpful in view of encouraging laboratory studies.

Prevention is important. Sick or dead wild rabbits should be handled cautiously and, whenever possible, with rubber gloves. Thoro cooking will destroy the germ and, if this is carried out, one need not worry about swallowing the infected meat.

PENETRATING ULCER

R. W. writes: What is a gastric rupture?

REPLY

I presume you mean perforation of a peptic ulcer. These tiny craters may become so deep that they actually break thru the outer wall of the stomach, thus allowing the intestinal contents to escape into the peritoneal cavity. This leads to peritonitis. Unless the opening is closed by an immediate operation, the outcome is serious.

NOT LIKELY

H. T. writes: I had a permanent lately and it took beautifully except for two curls at the nape of the neck. I have had an aching in that region for years and wonder if this could be responsible.

REPLY

CINEMA ITCH

Q. B. writes: What causes excessive itching, for instance, while I'm at the movies?

REPLY

So long as your blood does not curdle or boil I would not be too concerned about this symptom. Itching has many causes but the chances are that if it occurs only in the theater it probably has an emotional background.

PAINFUL SPINE

Mrs. M. writes: Since I had my baby seven months ago I've had a sharp pain at the end of my spine when I sit down. What causes this?

REPLY

EVEN AN EXPERT COULDN'T GET HARMONY ON IT

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

Still Fighting at 170

Today is the 170th birthday of that valiant band, the United States marine corps ["Retreat, hell! We just got here!"], and if you have the slightest inclination to tell anything to the marines, as so often advised to do, you might be interested to know that the phrase was first uttered by Charles II. in speaking to Samuel Pepys.

A sea captain just back from the Indies had aroused the skepticism of the monarch with his tales of flying fish and the amused king had turned to the colonel of his newly raised maritime regiment, and asked his opinion.

The colonel said he would say the man had sailed in southern seas, for he there had seen more flying fish in one hour than he had hairs on his head. The king glanced sharply at him, then turned with a laugh to Pepys. "Mr. Pepys," he said, "from the very nature of their calling, no class of our subjects can have so wide a knowledge of sea and land as the officers and men of our loyal maritime regiment. Henceforth, when we cast doubt upon a tale that lacketh likelihood, we will tell it to the marines. If they believe it, it is safe to say it is true."

Many marine phrases from the war just over will go into the glossaries of heroic utterance ["This is where we separate the men from the boys," "You won't get any Purple Hearts in a foxhole"], but the one we remember most is the laughing exclamation, "Hawww!" It was the byword of an Indiana farm boy who served as a barber in the marines.

Ward Walker, who served as a marine combat correspondent, brought back the story. He first met the boy on New Gloucester when he went to him for a haircut. "Hawww! What'll it be, sarge, short or real short?" he asked. "Got two styles. You won't like 'em both. Hawww! Where'd I learn barbering? You mean 'Did I?' Hawww! Picked it up in the corps. Won the tools in a crap game. Cut hair for couple of my enemies first. Hawww! . . . Got out in the field, the colonel called for a barber, and some of the lads put me up. Guess who my first customer was? Right, the colonel. I hacked away. Finally got him clipped—close. Hawww! Only cut him five times. . . . The colonel he crawls out of the chair, takes a look in the mirror, and looks me over from head to foot. 'Son,' he says, 'what you need is practice.' . . . The next day there's a regimental order out. 'All hands will get their hair cut within the next three days.' Hawww! I got my practice and me and the colonel get along fine now. . . . Hardly ever cut him. . . . Hawww!"

Clipped haircuts were essential in the tropics where scalp infections are as common as fungus on trees, and a barber becomes an important member of a fighting team. If a man's hair fell in his eyes at a crucial moment, as in the football team of peace, all might be lost. The boy from Indiana charged nothing for his two styles in combat, but charged 25 cents back of the lines, and had so brisk a business that soon he wore out his clippers. After all, they had gone thru both Guadalcanal and New Britain. He had no means of repairing them, so he obtained a money order for $50 and wrote to a barbering outfit in Janesville, Wis. "The haircut situation in the 17th marine regiment is getting serious," he wrote. "Please fix my clippers with this money, and send them back out. Right now I'm down to my shears." A new set came back by air express. So did the money order.

And so it went until the 17th marines were going into Peleliu. The barber and Mr. Walker were on the same landing craft. "Hawww! Sarge," the barber greeted him. "Got my new clippers with me this time. Guess this won't be much of a fight. Hawww! Two days, they say it'll be." Mr. Walker said he had heard it might be a maximum of four. "All right with me. Hawww!" the barber grinned.

Peleliu was not won in two days, or in four. It was won in 76 days. The boy from Indiana saw only the dawn of the first. He was killed by machine gun fire as he reached the beach. Protruding from his hip pocket was a package wrapped in an oily rag. Inside were his shears, a comb, and his shiny new clippers.

THE MAN WHO OWNED THE GOVERNMENT

Chicago, Oct. 30—I have been much interested in the large sums of money expended by Franklin Roosevelt for the building of a summer camp for himself, at the taxpayers' expense, in western Maryland.

I am surprised that no one has thought of the obvious comparison with the summer camp Mr. Hoover built for himself when he was President. It is located in what is now part of the Shenandoah National park. It was a very handsome and well appointed affair. It served those same purposes for Mr. Hoover which this other camp served for F. D. R. The similarities are many and obvious, but the difference is in the moral caliber of the two men.

Mr. Hoover bought the land his camp was on. He paid for all the buildings and improvements thereon, and he paid the expenses of operating it, and when he left the White House he donated the land and buildings to the government, that they might be used by future Presidents. He put in a stipulation, however, that if future Presidents did not use the land and buildings which he gave for that purpose, they should be turned over to the Girl Scouts or the Boy Scouts.

Since then the government has paid to guard this property and to maintain it, and it has been used for the high doings of the New Deal camp followers, contrary to Mr. Hoover's stipulations.

Only the history of Rome shows anything equal to F. D. R.'s extravagance with other people's money. TAXPAYER

NAVY MAIL MEN'S GRIEVANCE

OAHU, T. H., Oct. 26—We are a group of navy mail men and are considered essential. When all other nonessential men were getting out with 44 points we were considered not eligible for discharge. The score was then lowered to 41 points and we were told that we could sign up for discharge if we had 44 or over. Dec. 1 the score will be lowered to 39 and Jan. 1 to 38. But we mail men must have 44 before we can even be considered.

Why is the navy the only branch of service that has separate scores for different classifications of its men? The complement of the station has dropped almost 50 per cent because of discharges and we still have the same number of men working in this office. DISGUSTED NAVY MAIL MEN

NOTHING TO POLICE

OKINAWA, Oct. 19—Now that the war is over and the demobilization program is in full swing why is it that the navy has chosen a select few and put them in an essential category? We are on this rock, some 200 men and 20 officers, all frozen because we are shore patrol specialists. In civilian life most of us were police officers or otherwise attached to law enforcement and did not choose the career in the navy as shore patrol. The navy assigned us. We have no work to do here now, but could be used back home to great advantage. LT. [J. G.] JOSEPH T. CLANCY

FREEDOM FOR CRIME?

Roselle, Ill., Nov. 7—The headlines in yesterday's CHICAGO TRIBUNE were "Tie, Burn, and Kill Shop Owner." We haven't had a paper for weeks that hasn't had a report on some innocent Chicago woman or girl being molested. Where are the police? Are we going to add "Freedom of Crime" to our list of freedoms? THE RECORDER IS MOVING

Chicago, Nov. 7—Please permit me to reply to a criticism from Atty. John A. Brown, who states there is neglect and confusion in the basement vault of the recorder's office. There is no neglect. There is some confusion. The reason for the latter: We are moving.

Thruout all of recent years I have tried to impress the imperative need for more help and greatly increased vault space, and it was not until last August that I finally obtained increased space, altho not enough, and not in vaults. Into that space, we have moved over 7,500 volumes of seldom referred to chattel mortgages, records up to 1937. In the system I inherited, the chattel mortgage volumes were sandwiched between the real estate records. So the 40,000 volumes of real estate records must be moved forward or back in the utilization of the many spaces opened up by the removal of the chattel volumes. The re-arrangement of more than 40,000 volumes, containing some 14,000,000 records, is not a matinee performance. If we can keep the movers on the job it will be finished before January 1.

When the moving job is done every real estate record will be in a protected place, in numerical order. Not one volume will be consigned to floor or table. But that happy condition will not last long. Real estate recording is increasing in almost unprecedented volume, and now the obligation is upon this office to take care of the recording of 500,000 discharge papers of World War II. veterans. Cook county recording needs at least double the present amount of fully equipped and thoroly protected vault space. EDWARD J. KAINDL, County Recorder of Deeds

WHO'S FOOLING WHOM?

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 6—Imagine my surprise on reading "Rationing Americans to Help Canada" to get the opposite explanation from that recently given me in Montreal by E. Boyd Millen, formerly a dominion rationing official.

He was furious at the establishment of meat rationing in Canada. He stated that Canada had more meat than it could possibly use; that rationing was instituted to relieve the situation due to rationing in United States; that it looked inconsistent for us to have so little and Canada, a neighbor, so much. Who is fooling whom? CHET CRANE

CANNOT DIVORCE INSANE SPOUSE IN ILLINOIS

Chicago, Nov. 9—I have heard that a law has been passed permitting a husband or wife to divorce a spouse who has been confined in an insane asylum over a period of seven years and is adjudged incurable. Will you please let me know if my information is accurate? B. E.

There is no such law in Illinois. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT

Sometimes it's mysterious even to a woman

Take this matter of "cover-up" foundations, for instance.

Fascinating cakes, creams, and oils beckon at every cosmetics counter. They're not translucent, like the make-up bases you formerly used. They're tinted. Opaque. Designed to make a lusciously smooth base for rouge and powder.

You gaze—and you wonder: will they really make powder cling? Will they help give a smoother, peachier finish?

Should you use 'em, if your skin is specially dry or oily?

Will the colors stay fresh—and will they blend with your face powder shade?

You're tempted to buy—and try. But which? Better wait!

Wise girl! Why should you experiment with unfamiliar make-up tricks, when Good Housekeeping can do it for you?

Answering beauty questions is part of our job. And you ought to see the antics we go through—before we're willing to stamp a beauty method "OK."

To protect your good looks

To help you make a satisfactory choice from among the many new "cover-up" foundations, we made up a hundred and fifty-one faces and scored the results.

Some of our testers had dry skin, some oily, some a combination of the two—and some a normal skin. Some were blondes, some brunettes, some in-between.

In all we tried out 98 shades and 25 different make-up foundations! Bet you didn't realize there were that many!

You should have seen our beauty parlor, at 9:30 of a morning, while these tests were going on. Dozens of self-made beauties, each one a tribute to modern cosmetics. Each wearing a tinted make-up foundation!

Testers turn the other cheek so that we may check make-up foundations, on your behalf—at our Beauty Clinic.

Then—every two hours, all day long—we checked to see how the finish lasted, how colors held up, what our testers thought of this new type of make-up foundation.

"It works like a charm" is our verdict.

Under that title, you can learn all about these make-up foundations, in Good Housekeeping for November. Which to use for oily skin, dry skin, normal skin. How to use them—and how much to apply for the best results.

Make-up is just a case in point

If this were an isolated instance of trial-in-use, we wouldn't quote it.

But this sort of "see how it works" performance is characteristic of the way we approach all sorts of products, ideas, and methods at Good Housekeeping.

And that includes the products you see in our advertising columns, as well.

For you've come to think of us as a source of tried-and-trustworthy information—and we want never to let you down. Not even if it costs us months of time and many thousands of dollars to search out the facts.

American girls don't need shaded lights, thanks to easy-to-come-by make-up and naturally lovely complexions.

As a reminder of our good faith, we make you a pledge. And we will go on repeating this pledge as long as Good Housekeeping is in print:

That at no time, and not for any reason, or any profit, will any page of Good Housekeeping—editorial or advertising—trade unfairly on your trust.

LAYMEN'S GROUP TO MARK ANNUAL MISSION SUNDAY

49 Chicago Communions Plan Observance

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

The 15th annual Men and Missions Sunday, sponsored by the Laymen's Missionary movement, will be observed tomorrow in churches of 49 communions. In general the observance will follow the pattern of a misisons sermon by the pastor and four minute address on the subject by a layman. Chancellor Arthur H. Compton of Washington university, St. Louis, Mo., formerly of the University of Chicago, is general chairman of the movement.

Work in 3,257 Cities

Frederick J. Michel, 19 S. La Salle st., executive secretary of the movement, announced yesterday that tomorrow's observance will extend into 3,257 cities of the country where resident chairman or cooperating committees have enlisted local churches in the program. Mr. Michel explained that the movement collects no money, but aids church boards of missions in broadening the base of interest in missions in local congregations.

The radio has been enlisted by the movement this year to extend missions information, with Chancellor Compton and John Foster Dulles, special adviser to State Secretary Byrnes at the recent London conference of foreign ministers, discussing the post-war role of foreign missions. The recording will be heard over W-G-N at 4:45 p. m. today and over WBBM at 7:05 tomorrow morning.

Founded in 1906

The movement is conducted entirely by laymen. It was founded in 1906, and partially as a result of its activities, gifts to missions thru the various churches increased from about 9 million dollars that year to more than 45 millions in 1924. Men and Missions Sunday was established on Nov. 15, 1931, to mark the 25th year of the movement's organized activities. Among Chicago officers are George W. Dixon Jr., vice chairman, and Harry A. Wheeler, treasurer.

KILLS HIS WIFE AND SELF AFTER SHE SPURNS HIM

A penitent husband, refused a reconciliation by his wife whom he had sued for divorce, yesterday went on a shooting rampage in two homes in Michigan City, Ind., to the peril of 10 persons in three families. In a frenzied few minutes he killed his wife, critically wounded his baby, and wounded his sister-in-law, then took his own life.

The dead are Joseph W. Gazarkiewicz, 35, owner of the Dunes Body and Paint shop, 110 E. 4th st., Michigan City, and his wife, Irene, 29, mother of two children. Near death in St. Elizabeth's hospital is the Gazarkiewicz baby, Loretta, 14 months, wounded twice. Also shot twice, but not dangerously, was Mrs. Gazarkiewicz's sister, Mrs. Herman Novak.

Children Awarded to Mother

Gazarkiewicz's divorce suit, filed Oct. 3, and his wife's cross-complaint came up during the morning before Judge Robert S. Baker in La Porte county Superior court. Gazarkiewicz pleaded with his wife for a reconciliation, but she refused. She was awarded custody of their children, Lottie, 4, and the baby, and $15 a week tempofary alimony.

Bearing court permission to see his children, Gazarkiewicz followed his wife to Mrs. Novak's home, and renewed his pleas that his wife take him back. Mrs. Novak's daughter, Dorothy, 14, heard Mrs. Gazarkiewicz say: "No, I've had enough of your beatings." The husband threw himself on a couch, sobbed, and arose with a .38 caliber revolver in hand. He fired four shots.

Mrs. Novak was struck twice in the arm. Mrs. Gazarkiewicz was wounded in the back. The baby, Loretta, in Mrs. Gazarkiewicz's arms, was shot in the left leg. None of the bullets touched Dorothy.

Wife Flees to Neighbors

Mrs. Gazarkiewicz, clinging to the baby, staggered across the street to the backyard of Edward Kluge Jr., 27, a South Shore line motorman, at 118 Fulton st.

"Grab my baby and run—he's trying to kill her," Mrs. Gazarkiewicz cried as Mrs. Kluge ran out of the kitchen. Mrs. Kluge took the baby and led the mother into the house. Gazarkiewicz followed, fired again and wounded his baby in the back. The gun clicked twice as he pointed it at Kluge, who was trying to telephone for aid.

Kluge heard another shot, the sound of a falling body, then a last explosion. Gazarkiewicz had sent a bullet thru his wife's heart and another into his own temple.

Three of the Kluges' children Larry, 5; Joan, 2, and James, 5 months, were unhurt.

SCHOOL RELIGION CASE CONTINUED UNTIL THURSDAY

A motion by the board of education to strike a mandamus suit filed by the Chicago Civil Liberties committee to prevent public school children from receiving religious instruction during school hours was continued until Thursday by Judge Ulysses S. Schwartz in Superior court yesterday.

The continuance was granted Landon L. Chapman, attorney for the civil liberties group, who said he will file an amended petition by Wednesday. Chapman, who had asked the court to order depositions taken from four witnesses for the school board, said Frank S. Righeimer, school board attorney, had provided answers to his questions.

In his answers, Righeimer said that of the 338 elementary schools and branches in the city, about 276 release children for one hour of religious instruction each week. He said 4,500 Protestant pupils and 18,000 Catholic students receive religious training, most of them being released at 2 p. m. on Wednesdays. The Church Federation of Greater Chicago provides 174 teachers in 57 Protestant churches and 600 nuns in 137 Catholic churches give religious training to Catholic students. The program began in 1929.

VON MACKENSEN, VETERAN OF 1870 AND 1914, DIES

LUENEBURG, Germany, Nov. 9 (AP)—Field Marshal August von Mackensen, the last member of Germany's triumvirate of World War I., died last night at his estate near Celle.

The former cavalry leader, who served with Von Hindenburg and Von Ludendorff in making modern Germany military history, would have been 96 next Dec. 9.

He had not been on active duty since 1920, but he remained an implacable foe of Russia and openly supported Adolf Hitler in his rise to power and his military aggressions. A veteran of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-'71, he was one of the German leaders at the battle of Tannenberg in which the Russians met with disaster at the outset of the first World war in 1914.

ANTI-NOISE LAW CHANGE BACKED BY COUNCIL UNIT

The city council committee on health yesterday recommended to the city council an amendment to the city's anti-noise ordinance which would allow the use of sound trucks and amplifiers between 11 a. m. and 6 p. m. when they remain stationary.

The amendment was favored by officials of labor unions present at the hearing who said the measure would make more work, allow the quicker calling off of strikes, and preserve freedom of speech.

Ald. Wagner [14th], who said nuisances might spring from the trucks, was asked by Ald. Gillespie [29th] if he would object if the speakers were shouting, "Reelect Ald. Wagner." Gillespie, committee chairman, said he favored the measure, even tho he is secretary of the Chicago noise abatement commission.

Erie House—the Story of a Great Venture

BY RITA FITZPATRICK

For 75 years, Erie Neighborhood house, 1347 Erie st., has been 'a house by the side of the road where the race of men go by" . . . and in. It has been a home, a cultural center, a school, a playground, and a chapel for men, women, and children of many nationalities, just a plot of ground, a house of stone, but a corner of America.

Last night it celebrated its diamond anniversary simply but appropriately with a pageant tracing its 75 years of hardship and happiness. There were no finished actors or actresses to portray the roles of the sturdy souls who founded this haven of friendliness in the back yard of a growing metropolis. There was no elaborate scenery, no expensive presentation. There were only the people of Erie house in makeshift costumes, a stage of curtains and cardboard, and the piping of untrained voices, but the story they told was the story of a great venture.

Erie Neighborhood house was founded as a branch of the Holland Presbyterian church in 1870 in a neighborhood predominant with Dutch immigrants. As the years passed, this little Netherlands became the home of Scandinavians and Germans. Erie chapel bulged to its seams, the Sunday school alone having an enrollment of 1,500 children, the largest in the city. A two room building was constructed on the present site. Then a room was added.

The neighborhood, like America, changed with the influx of immigrants from Europe. There came the Italians and then the Polish, people with the love of freedom in their hearts but no facile tongue to give it expression in a strange land. Erie chapel found room for them in its overcrowded but overflowing friendliness.

In 1914, Miss Florence H. Towne, then a young woman of vision with brown curls and now changed only in years and in the whiteness of her hair, came to take over the helm. "We had few friends then and a budget of $6,000," she recalled last night. "Now we have many generous friends and a budget of $34,000. We need every cent of it."

A bequest of $100,000 from the will of Hannah Templeton caused Erie chapel's dream of a new building to come true in 1936, at which time its name became definitely Erie Neighborhood house. And it has been just that.

More than 200,000 persons pass thru its portals each year. There are daily classes in English, citizenship, art, and drama, weekly dances, and numerous clubs for all ages. Thousands received friendly advice and warm clothing yearly. Young people are invited to hold their weddings there with no charge, and a reception with refreshments is provided. During the war there was a nursery for the children of working mothers, and in the summers there is a camp in the Indiana dunes for underprivileged children and weary men and women.

In the lobby of Erie house hangs a service flag with 134 blue stars . . . and 12 gold stars.

"Those were the little ruffians we taught to play baseball and the rules of American sportsmanship," Miss Towne remarked with misty eyes. "I cannot help but feel that they were better soldiers because of Erie house. They fought for what it represents and they knew that because they knew it."

Yes, Erie house is "a house by the side of the road where the race of men go by" . . . and in.

Newest Costume Jewelry Will Put Glitter in the Eye

BY REA SEEGER

Gold is gold, wherever you find it, and this year most of it is in the costume jewelry collections—dusky, copper tinted, and bright, shiny stuff. Bracelets, especially, rate excitement, for they are exquisitely designed, come in dramatic large sizes and shapes of most unusual design, and many look hand wrought. Musical pieces shaped as clefs, gracenotes, sharps, and flats are still the most popular, but check the braided yellow and copper toned bracelets and chokers and matching earrings if you want to see the newest jewelry yet unpacked.

This double color jewelry is most effective and can be worn with suits of all colors as well as dresses and with severe sleek dinner gowns of fall and winter colors and of black. The bracelets are wide, the choker necklaces patterned after a wedding ring model that came out early in the fall. Woven designs both in flexible and rigid masses make the bracelets, some meeting only half-way or three-quarters around the wrists, others perfect circles, and you still wear as many merrily tuneful metal bracelets as your conscience permits.

Mixed multistrand jewelry pieces of bronze beads with seed pearls, winking black jet combined with shimmering silver beads, tiny coral beads twisted with seed pearls and vivid turquoise beads, make particularly stunning thick necklaces, chokers, and matching bracelets. The color combinations are exceptionally effective, and there are all kinds of such contrasts, many most unusual, in both two and three color effects.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

No Rose, Etc.

The boss is perfection—
Kindly and mild;
But alas! He will talk

801 SCOUT

What It Takes

A business girls' magazine asked, in a questionnaire, "What suggestion would you make for the general advancement of business girls?" One reader answered, "Get in, stay in, and study the job as tho you were going to be there a long time."

The cynic who maintains that "all women are transient workers" scarcely can be blamed. Many women's interests are divided; many are short-term employes. But if a white collar girl will move into a job as tho she intends to stay with it her chances for success are far greater. With the resolution to "get in, stay in, and study the job" she will do a good job and reap the benefits of advancement while she remains in business and a satisfying record of achievement when she retires from business.

Feminine Firsts

'Tis said that Sarah Josepha Hale, editor of Godey's Lady's Book, first suggested a national Thanksgiving day. . . . The first woman to fill a high elective office in Illinois was the then Ruth Hanna McCormick, elected congressman-at-large from Illinois. . . . Amelia Earhart saw her first plane in 1917—a few years before she had her first plane ride in California with Frank Hawks as pilot. In 1932 she was the first woman to fly the Atlantic, in 1935 the first person to fly from Hawaii to the United States. And, by the way, did you know she once was vocational adviser to girls at Purdue university?

I see by the Field Glass that the first-ranking donors to the Red Cross blood bank among Marshall Field & Co. employes were women: Christine Chab and Mary Ecklund, with 16 donations each. . . . The first woman member of the American Medical association was Dr. Sarah Hackett Stevenson, organizer of the Chicago Maternity hospital—the first of its kind in Chicago. She also was the first woman on the staff of County hospital and the first to serve on the state board of health.

Lois Coleman

"The most exciting thing that has happened to me has been bumping into dozens of Chicago friends every day," said Miss Coleman, who has been a Red Cross girl 28 months. "All the Illinois Yanks have been wonderful and treated me like I was Eisenhower. It was 815th anti-aircraft personnel that was running the camp at the staging area in Antwerp where I was last stationed."

Another Red Cross girl, Alice B. Nye of Gary, Ind., a graduate of Northwestern university, has been in service 27 months. She reported several Chicagoans are adopting Polish, Czech, and Belgian war orphans whom the American army clothed, fed, and took under its wing as mascots.

Parents of these children died in concentration camps or in bombardments during the war," she said. "Their homes were blown up before their eyes. Ragged, hungry, and abandoned, they went wild with fear as the army advanced, but soon found the Yanks were the kindest people in the world."

Pvt. Adolph A. Grzeda, 2352 W. 18th pl., Chicago, quickly understood these youngsters' frame of mind as he has two children, Adolph Jr. and Eugene, back home. He delighted a Czech orphan, Joey Burgfeld, who was munching doughnuts at the Red Cross Rainbow corner here, by speaking Bohemian to him. Joey lost his parents last year and was making his way alone to Leipzig when he got a shrapnel wound.

*A Red Cross girl, Kay Murdock, picked him up and saved his life. She intends to take him home to Chicago for Christmas. He wears a junior size American uniform, eats in the GI mess, and is mascot of the 36th Texan division.

Joey already has several Chicago friends, among whom are Bill Klimes, 6213 W. Newport av., Robert Nemec, 2930 Parnell av., and Harry Hillblow, 7145 University av., who has 66 points and hopes to get home by Christmas to introduce Joey to his baby, Wayne.

One dish that has come thru the war with flying colors is the ever-dependable meat loaf. When red points were the shortest, meat loaves satisfied our appetites. Because they can be served either hot or cold, dressed up or down, with any kind of meat as the basis, they deserve to remain among those at the top of our meat dish recipes.

The following standard meat loaf recipe may be changed according to the occasion, your pantry shelf, or your ration points:

Standard Meat Loaf
1½ pounds ground beef
½ pound ground pork
1 cup fresh bread crumbs
1 small onion, chopped
2 teaspoons salt
1 egg, slightly beaten
¾ teaspoon sage
¼ teaspoon black pepper
½ cup chili sauce or catsup

Combine all ingredients and pack into a greased loaf pan. Place two strips of bacon lengthwise over the top of the loaf, if you wish, and bake in a 350 degree oven for about 1¾ hours.

Choose from beef, veal, lamb, or pork and use any of these fillers: Bread, cracker crumbs, cereals, peanuts, soybeans, raw potatoes, carrots, apples, mashed white or sweet potatoes. The usual seasonings are salt, pepper, and onions. Use 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, and ½ cup of grated onion for 1 pound of meat. [If you use ham, salt pork, or bacon use very little or no salt.] For variety in your seasonings, try onion, garlic, or celery salt, allspice, poultry seasonings, or curry powder. Milk, water, tomato soup, cream of mushroom soup, meat stock, or bouillon might be used as moistening agents.

Spiced Liver Loaf
1 pound beef liver
2 tablespoons crushed bay leaf
4 cloves
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1½ cups meat stock or bouillon
¼ teaspoon mace
2 teaspoons grated onion
5 tablespoons meat drippings or margarine
2 tablespoons brown prepared mustard
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten

Have butcher cut liver in thin slices. Add crushed bay leaf, cloves, ½ teaspoon of the salt, sugar, and nutmeg to the meat stock or bouillon. Place liver in this mixture and heat in heavy pan. Simmer gently for 2 minutes. Cool. Let liver stand overnight in the refrigerator in the liquor in which it was cooked. The following day, drain and put liver thru food chopper, grinding finely. Add mace, remaining ½ teaspoon of salt, grated onion, melted meat drippings or margarine, brown prepared mustard, and egg yolks. Mix well to a paste. Place in a greased loaf pan and bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Serve hot or cold or slice it for sandwiches.

Burgundy Meat Loaf
[Serves six]
¾ pound ground beef, veal, or lamb [may be left-overs]
¾ cup rolled oats
½ cup Burgundy or claret wine
3 tablespoons chopped onion
1 egg beaten
2 tablespoons melted fat or meat drippings
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon poultry seasoning

Combine all ingredients in the order listed. Pack into a greased loaf pan and bake in a 350 degree oven about 1 hour, or until done.

Frosted Meat Loaf
[Six to seven servings]
2 pounds ground lamb shoulder
2 teaspoons salt
¼ clove garlic, minced very fine
½ cup evaporated milk
½ cup fine cracker crumbs
1 egg
3 cups mashed potatoes

Combine lamb, salt, garlic, milk, egg, and cracker crumbs. Pack in greased loaf pan and bake for 1 hour and 20 minutes in a 325 degree oven. When the loaf is baked, turn out of the pan and frost with the hot mashed potatoes. Use a pastry tube and ruffle the potatoes on. Place in a 400 degree oven long enough to brown potatoes, about 10 minutes.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"Can you tell me how to make tall, fluffy biscuits? I've tried various recipes and follow the directions carefully, yet my biscuits are always undersized."

Probably your trouble lies in the way the dough is kneaded. Kneading the dough gently for ½ minute or approximately 18 strokes, allows the gluten to become more elastic and the dough to rise, resulting in tall, fluffy biscuits. On the other hand, too much kneading causes a solid, heavy mass. Some persons prefer small flaky biscuits so omit the kneading step entirely.

Nutritionally soybeans are rated very high because of their large amounts of easily digested protein and fat. They're also good sources of calcium, iron, and vitamins A and B. One cup of cooked soybeans yields 200 calories.

Very small pheasants are usually broiled and the larger ones are roasted. To broil, draw and split pheasant down the back. Truss open and brush with melted butter; and broil, skin side down, in a 350 degree broiler about 20 to 30 minutes. To roast, rub inside of drawn bird with oil, sprinkle with salt, and fill lightly with a bread dressing. Cover with strips of salt pork or bacon and bake uncovered, in a 325 to 350 degree oven until tender, about 1 hour for 3 pound pheasant. Baste frequently with drippings.

THE QUESTION

WHERE ASKED

Museum of Science and Industry, Jackson Park.

THE ANSWERS

E. J. Shanahan, maintenance supervisor, 8823 Bennett av.—A strict curfew of 10 o'clock from Monday to Friday would be a good thing for children of school age. On Friday and Saturday, 12 o'clock would be early enough. I think most trouble happens during the hours from 8 to 12 at night.

Mrs. Mary White, housewife, 1624 S. Merrimac av.—I think a curfew would not tend to curb delinquents. It would be a good thing if all parents put an individual curfew on their children, but they are the only ones who would be able to enforce it. It would be impractical in a city like Chicago.

Lucille Cunningham, office clerk, 12039 State st.—Rather than a curfew or criticism of parents, I think there should be a desirable form of diversion created for teen-agers. There should be a supervised school dance at least once a week. Pupils don't object to chaperons if they join in the fun.

Mrs. Louis Silverglade, housewife, 430 Diversey pky.—Yes, I believe a curfew would be a definite aid in solving the problem. Children would spend more time at home if their classmates were not out having a good time. They'd study more, get acquainted with their families, and be content.

Mrs. Alice Byrne, housewife, 705 N. Austin blvd.—As soon as you tell young persons they are forbidden to do anything, it makes them want to prove they can get away with it. If they have strict discipline at home there is no need for any city to establish a curfew. In a city the size of Chicago it never would work.

S. A. McLaughlin, photographer, 105½ E. Sycamore st., Kokomo, Ind. Parents are the basic and most influential factor in any child's life. I wouldn't be in favor of a curfew unless it were absolutely necessary. That is, unless a city got to the point where it were being run by juvenile hoodlums. Parents should serve as a curfew.

Women Play Ably in Year's First Concert

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

By virtue of a first rate soloist and a program for once cannily restricted to practical possibilities, the Woman's Symphony orchestra under Jerzy Bojanowski's direction delivered one of the best concerts of that organization's hilly history, at Orchestra hall last night. "Easy does it" seemed to be the motto of the evening, and the resultant gain in relaxation and authority set a mark to shoot at in future sessions.

The first part of the program was practically tailor made for the ladies [one meek gentleman still hides behind a bassoon and another conceals himself as best he can with a trombone for cover]. Beethoven's third "Leonore" overture is never a sinecure, but except for an unwarranted display of timidity in that snary cadenza for the strings, it rolled off smoothly, in appropriate style and with hints of actual eloquence. And what was hinted at in the overture was definitely achieved in a serenely songful account of the Air from Bach's D major Suite, added to the program in memory of the late Mrs. Anna L. Kreutgen.

Even the novelty of the occasion—often a breathless moment—proved quite to the women's order. Karol Rathaus did not write inordinately difficult music for Karl Gutzkow's play, "Uriel Acosta," but the five movements he gathered together in a suite, provide pleasant listening of music based in part on Jewish themes, sparingly but skilfully orchestrated, and striking a happy balance between lyrical and rhythmical content.

The girls' real test of course came in playing Brahms' D minor piano concerto with Rudolph Firkusny. What might have happened with a lesser pianist is mere unpleasant conjecture, but Mr. Firkusny proved to be an artist of such superb breadth, such sound musicianliness, and so straightforwardly eloquent in a piece that has to be coaxed to reveal its noble qualities, that it would have taken poor musicians indeed not to have been swept along with him.

Mr. Firkusny is plainly a musician's pianist. He owns ample technic but he never lets you suspect that a single passage was penned for display purposes only. His tone is broad and full, never hard or forced, and he played the wonderful slow movement with a tenderness and simplicity that made it the benediction Brahms intended it to be. In short—a highly prized addition to our pianistic acquaintances.

'Junior Miss' Is Enjoyable Film Comedy

"JUNIOR MISS"

By Mae Tinée

Feel like seeing a good light comedy tonight? Then hurry up with the dishes and dash down to the United Artists. If you've ever had a sister to squabble with or a bosom friend who believed all the crazy things you did when you were a kid, or if you're merely a parent who sometimes wonders about the younger generation, I'm sure you'll have a lot of fun at "Junior Miss."

I got the biggest kick out of Barbara Whiting as Fuffy, a fat fiend of a child, an amazing mixture of sophistication and immaturity, the dearest friend of Judy Graves, and frequent visitor and nuisance in the Graves household. She and Judy live in a world peopled entirely by movie stars and find parents and other run-of-the mill humans their drab and uninteresting counterparts. They are just a couple of thorns to Judy's elder sister, Lois, a dramatic teen-ager with numerous gangling young admirers, whom she treats with great dignity, and a taste for frequent rearrangement of the furniture, which is a constant danger to her father's life and limbs.

Father Graves is good humored, if harassed, and Allyn Joslyn does very nice work in the role. His morning-after sufferings on New Year's day, when he isn't feeling so sharp, and is buffeted by the exuberance of his off-spring and friends, is well worth the price of admission. The mother of the family, Sylvia Field, is sweet but rather ineffectual when compared with husband and daughters.

Complications begin when Judy thinks her father is about to bring tragedy to the household by falling in love with his boss' daughter and, after getting some sage advice from Fuffy, decides the thing to do is provide the threatening woman with a man. A long lost uncle arrives in the nick of time, and Judy's plan works beautifully according to her lights but produces havoc in the household.

Thru the Looking Glass

The underweight gals who are concerned about putting on a few pounds can do a lot to help themselves by making a concerted effort to eat sane, regular meals and by slowing down a bit. Most of them are the busy kind of creatures who don't stay still long enough to let an extra pound accumulate on their frames and seldom take proper time for meals. It's particularly true of young business girls.

They dash out in the morning with barely time enough to gulp down a glass of fruit juice and a cup of coffee before they must be off for the office. And when lunch time comes a hurried sandwich and a shopping trip supplants the hot meal and relaxation they should have. It's bad practice any way you look at it because it hardly affords energy enough to carry on normal activities. The too-thins should make a ritual of all meals, sitting down at the table and taking time to eat slowly and partake of a balanced menu.

Breakfast is especially important to underweights. Fresh fruit, hot cereal, an egg, toast, and a hot beverage may seem like a mountain of food to get around for one unaccustomed to eating much in the morning, but with a little determination it can be gotten away with. A glass of milk and a couple of crackers in mid-morning and a proper, leisurely lunch at noontime will help put on weight, all other things being equal. The evening meal should be a hearty one followed by about 15 minutes of rest.

The skinny gals need plenty of sleep and regular hours. Any one can regulate her life to get sufficient shut-eye and keep regular hours if she's sincere in wanting to put on some weight.

Of course, extreme cases of underweight call for a check-up with a physician, but the normal girl who has gotten the habit of cheating on food and rest can help herself by adopting a saner mode of living.

LOUISE DOOLEY.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 9—The first one cast for "Queen For A Day" is Jack Bailey. . . . Ann Doran not only had her option lifted by Paramount, but gets a nice part in "California." . . .

When Judith Anderson finishes Ben Hecht's picture, she'll go to Broadway to do the Greek play "Nedea," which is being adapted by handsome Robinson Jeffers, the Carmel poet. The play will be produced by Theater Guild. . . . Now it's Betty Hutton who's slowing up Paramount's production. She's going to have a baby. . . . The day after Lana Turner and Bob Hutton got together in such a big way, she took off for Paradise, Ariz., to see Bory Calhoun. His boss, David Selznick, is sure building him up. . . . David and Louis B. Mayer are having many business huddles, which leads every one to believe that Selznick and his wife, Irene, will be reconciled. . . . Bob Walker still carrying a torch for Jennifer Jones high as the Himalayas.

Quiz Quip of the Day

Card in this morning's mail: "Is it true that Winston Churchill has been signed for Darryl Zanuck's 'Life of Dudley Field Malone?'" No, and I don't believe King George will play the life of Franklin D. Roosevelt either. . . . Lisette Verea, who wears rocks as big as Montana boulders, has just been signed by Metro. . . . Lola Lane and Roland West deny matrimony, but that sure is one of our hottest romances. . . . I'll be listening when Bob Montgomery gives out on "Information Please" Nov. 19. . . . Joan Fontaine's not feeling up to par in New York. I don't believe she'll return as Mrs. John Houseman. . . . Judy Garland is doing numbers for "Till The Clouds Roll By," but her doctor has ordered her to rest between scenes. . . . Jack Carson was handed a brand new contract by Jack Warner—to deliver to Dennis Morgan.

Reflection by a Briton

After retakes with Maureen O'Hara, Cedric Hardwicke will leave for New York, "Pygmalion," and Gertie Lawrence. I asked why he preferred the theater. He said, "One reason is because when I see my face on the screen, it always startles me." Then he added, "Have you noticed that when you have a mess of photographs of yourself laid out in front of you, you always pick the flattering ones and hope you look like that? But the screen doesn't lie." I asked how he could afford to work in both England and America and pay two income taxes. He said, "Haven't you heard? We don't do that any more, thanks to George Bernard Shaw. Shaw found that if he kept on working and paid both taxes, it would cost him money to labor. So he just sat down and said, 'I'll work no more until this is corrected.'"

Giving 'em the Hot Foot

Bud Schulberg, who wrote "What Makes Sammy Run," is helping prepare films to be used as evidence against the nazi war criminals in the Nuernberg trials. Since V-E day, he's combed Germany for pictures made by Nazis themselves which will be used against them. His boss, incidentally, is Lt. Ray Kellogg of the office of strategic service, who used to do special effects at 20th Century. He was chosen for this job so Nazis couldn't claim the pictures were trick photography. Ray is an expert on that sort of thing and will be under cross-examination by the nazi defense attorneys. My cross-examination of the war criminals would have been cross-fire from a machine gun many months ago. . . . Florence Prichett is going steady now with Eddie Duchin. Eddie's taking things easy for about a year before starting another band. He was one of the heroes of Iwo Jima—went in with the first group of men to clear the water of mines.

Santa and the Stork Get Old Heave-Ho from the Professor

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 9 (AP)—Poor Santa Claus got the old heave-ho today—along with the stork—from Sociology Prof. Ivan E. McDougle of Goucher college, who said "Parents should substitute democratic philosophy."

"The Santa Claus myth has lived too long in terms of child psychology," Prof. McDougle asserted in an interview with the Baltimore News-Post. "Parents should substitute democratic philosophy. Children have to learn to get along." And when it comes to living too long, "so has the stork myth," the professor added.

McDougle didn't find complete agreement, however, from one psychiatrist, Dr. George Preston, Maryland commissioner of mental hygiene, who defended Santa warmly as a means of teaching children kindness, generosity, and honesty.

Daily Attention to Hair Pays Big Dividends

BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

on the SOLID side

Every smart high school girl has heard the old story that a woman's hair is her crowning glory. Real hair beauty is something that just doesn't happen overnight [and it can't even happen over a week-end, if you happen to have a dateless one on your schedule]. But with 15 minutes of daily concentrated care, any girl can have hair as shiny clean as spring sunshine.

Most teen-agers look sharp in a long hair-do, simply arranged with just a light curl at the ends. But since attractive hair depends on quality, not quantity, be sure to have your top-knot thinned [if it is too thick for smooth handling], trimmed, and shaped at least once every six months.

Brushing should be a part of the daily grooming routine. Every meticulous gal will have her own brush and comb, just as she has her own private compact and powder puff. Frequent washing in warm soapy water or in warm water to which a few drops of ammonia have been added is necessary to keep that brush and comb clean.

To do your evening chores on the double, try brushing your hair for 15 minutes while you are reading a book report or looking over tomorrow's history assignment. The motion should be upward, lifting the hair from the scalp. Separate the hair into sections and brush it from underneath as well as from the top.

Some gals need to wash their hair only once every two weeks, while others find it necessary to shampoo every five days. Just wash your hair whenever it needs it. Use a mild liquid or cream shampoo, rinsing thoroly at least three times in warm water. Since heat may dry the hair and make it brittle, rub it first with a rough towel and then brush it until dry.

Since the shape of the face should determine the coiffure, give time and thought to the type of hair style most suited to you. Keep it simple and keep it young. Your face can be pretty as a picture—it all depends on how you frame it!

Unusual Doily

BY ELLEN BRUCE

An unusual doily is this triangular one crocheted in the favorite pineapple pattern. This type of doily is an excellent Christmas gift and works up rapidly, since rug yarn is the material used.

Make a Fresh Start Each Day with Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Recently we have talked about the wonderful faculty children have of living completely in the present.

Every day is a new and exciting one in the eyes of a happy child. The normal, health, small boy or girl wakes in the morning with a shining face and often is enthusiastic in his manner of showing his delight with life.

We, on the other hand, may feel anything but happy and ready to join him in his delight with the new day. It may be that yesterday was a particularly difficult one as far as the discipline of the child was concerned. Even so, we must hold over no misdeeds, recall no past offenses, harp on no former wrong doing.

Don't misunderstand me. If some corrective course of action seems best, it must, of necessity, be carried thru. If, for example, Bob has disobeyed, has played repeatedly with his football in the house, and at last has broken a lamp, you may have had a quiet talk with him and told him of your decision to deprive him of his football for a few days. You may have made him see the justice of such an action on your part, and he will expect you to act accordingly.

That sort of a "carry-over" is all right and is not the type of thing to which I refer. What I am stressing is our tendency to keep referring to past offenses, to dig up misdeeds, to mention mistakes that have been made in the past, to allude to a broken rule.

Older children, especially, resent this raking up of old misdeeds. But many of us find ourselves doing just that nevertheless, carrying over crossness and often real anger. It truly does more harm than good.

The old Bible saying, "Let not the sun go down upon thy wrath" is a wise one. But I could add another: Let not the sun rise upon thy wrath.

Skill Displayed in Paintings by Two Architects

BY ELEANOR JEWETT

Two well known Chicago architects share the Room of Chicago Art at the Art institute with an exhibit of their paintings which opened yesterday to continue to Dec. 16. George Fred Keck is responsible for the charming group of water colors and Samuel Marx for the larger paintings.

Mr. Marx is the author of the witty bon mot, "I paint for my own amazement." His pictures are not as amazing as the remark might lead one to think; they are perfectly intelligible compositions handled in a broad, capable manner and portraying such legitimate subjects as flowers. His striking "Sunflowers" are reminiscent of Van Gogh and, on thinking over his share of the exhibit, Van Gogh does seem to be more or less in the background of most of his work.

The Marx paintings are bold and decorative. An interesting detail of his technique is his use of thin tracing paper which crinkles slightly under the point, giving his canvas a rather unusual and engaging effect. He rubs age into modern compositions.

Mr. Keck has been introduced to Chicago in his rôle of artist in exhibitions at the Katherine Kuh gallery, one of the art fatalities of the war. His water colors are spontaneous, fresh, sensitive, and charming. In a number, the subject of his picture is obvious; in others the painter seems merely concerned with color and design. Both approaches yield a pleasant harvest.

Kenneth Becker has an unusually interesting and attractive exhibit of drawings of old houses of the middle west in gallery 12 of the print department on the first floor of the Art institute. The exhibit opened yesterday to run to Jan. 2. There are 41 drawings in the group, and each is worth study. Mr. Becker has read personality and atmosphere into these ancient buildings, and the years seem to slide thru our fingers as the bits of history he has collected catch our eye, hold us, then give place to the next engaging scrap of Americana.

The drawings are honest, straightforward, unadorned, and sincere. Some may recognize the houses. More of us will know we have seen buildings like them. Mr. Becker's is an original enterprise in which he has found success. Among the many towns represented are Nauvoo and Galena, Ill.; Dundee, Mich.; Madison, Ind.; Prairie Du Chien, Wis., and Mendota, Minn.

BY WILFRID SMITH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 9—Indiana university's football men, undefeated leaders in the Western conference race, arrived late this afternoon for their important engagement tomorrow in Memorial stadium with Minnesota. The Hoosiers have 12 hours to become acclimated to the northland, where temperature is at least 50 degrees lower than that of southern Indiana.

Last night's reading was 20, which served to check the snow at depth of an inch, and today's forecast for game time is fair and colder. Forty-five thousand already have purchased tickets, however, for this critical conference contest and, weather considered, that probably will be the attendance. Even the rugged citizens of this conference outpost need time to become accustomed to winter's first icy grasp.

Gophers Would Salvage Reputation

Minnesotans, of course, have merely a curricular interest in tomorrow's game. The Gophers' defeats by Ohio State and Michigan have cooled partisan support particularly, since there never has been the same rivalry with Indiana as with Wisconsin or Michigan. The Gophers earnestly desire to whip Indiana if for no other reason than salvage of tarnished reputation. Moreover, the eyes of the conference teams, well, at least Michigan, Ohio State, and Purdue, are upon Minnesota. These teams each have lost a game, and their chances in the 1945 title race uniformly hinge on an Indiana defeat.

It is not necessary to reiterate why the Hoosiers must win. How they can win is the immediate question. Ben Raimondi's passing and running by George Taliaferro, with support from burly Pete Pihos, Hoosier full back, comprise the attack. This offense, however, is inadequately supported by Taliaferro's kicking. Northwestern blocked a punt to create its 7 to 7 tie with Indiana. There is no foretelling the effect of weather conditions.

Pressure on Indiana

Minnesota still has straightaway power. Vic Kulbitski, despite the mauling received at Michigan, is expected to carry the burden at full back. Tom Cates, whose long run scored against Ohio State, is dangerous. But Minnesota's forte can be its defense. Should Indiana assist by misplays or inept judgment, the Gophers may stop Indiana's

Navy Is Put to Speed Test by Michigan

BY EDWARD BURNS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 9—Navy, which must be rated courageous and perhaps a bit lucky off its last minute doings against Notre Dame a week ago, also against Pennsylvania two weeks ago, and Michigan, which has come along brilliantly since suffering defeats by Indiana and Army, will square off before a capacity crowd of 59,000 in Baltimore's Municipal stadium tomorrow.

None of Navy's half dozen foes this year has scored more than one touchdown and the first three opponents failed to tally, but this evidence of successful work has not frightened the Wolverines very much. The memory of the way the Michiganders bowled over Minnesota, 26 to 0, with plenty to spare, only a week ago, may have something to do with the carload of confidence Coach Fritz Crisler brought into town at noon today. The Gophers, too, were reputedly pretty hot defensively.

Minisi Replaces Kelly as Starter

Comdr. Oscar Hagberg, Navy coach who has taken on the intricate burden of switching this season to the T formation, has altered his attack somewhat, the main change being due to the incapacity of Hunchy Hoernschemeyer, formerly Indiana's great passer, and Bob Kelly, former Notre Dame back field star. Kelly is another excellent passer of whom the Wolverines have some knowledge besides what they have read in the papers in recent years.

Clyde Scott, whose pass interception and touchdown run enabled Navy to make the tying points in the stand-off with Notre Dame in Cleveland last week, will start at left half. Replacing Kelly at right half in the starting array will be Tony Minisi, who won the Penn game by snatching a pass from Hoernschemeyer in the last 26 seconds of the game, and who made the much discussed tackle on the 1 foot line to keep Phil Colella from scoring a winning touchdown in the last minute of play in the Notre Dame game. Bobby Jenkins will start at full back. Kelly, who is suffering from a bruised hip, is expected to play part of the game.

Michigan Has Speed

Coach Hagberg has been restrained in his comments on the game's potentialities, beyond the statement that his scouts have told him Michigan is perhaps the fastest team in the country. Also, eastern dopesters, such times as they are able to get their minds off the Army-Notre Dame game, seem to have heard that the Wolverines form one of the most precise and deceptive squads in the collegiate football business.

After a work-out in Municipal stadium this afternoon, Coach Crisler announced he would start exactly the same eleven that faced the Gophers at the opening kickoff a week ago.

OAK PARK AND PROVISO PLAY FOR PREP TITLE

Harrison vs. Austin in Soldiers' Field

BY DAVID CONDON

Two major prep football games today are expected to draw attendances of more than 10,000 as the Suburban league settles its championship with a meeting between Oak Park and Proviso in Maywood, while Harrison Tech and Austin, tied for the City league west section lead, battle in Soldiers' field to determine the west section representative in the public school semi-finals.

A third major contest, between Chicago Latin and Wheaton, to decide the private school championship, was postponed late last night after the Latin coach decided his team, 11 players of which have been ailing for the last week, should not be asked to go thru with the game. Arrangements are being made to play at a later date, but even should Latin have to forfeit the contest, it would be tied for the league title, and would win the championship should the second place Parker eleven lose to North Shore in Winnetka today.

Sale Past 10,000

Proviso and Oak Park each has won four straight games in Suburban play. The victor will succeed New Trier as champion of the circuit. Advance ticket sales for this contest already have passed 10,000.

The largest attendance of the day, however, should be in Soldiers' field, with indications that the Harrison-Austin battle will draw more than the capacity at Maywood.

Austin and Harrison met earlier in the season, playing a 6 to 6 draw. They finished in a tie for west section honors and today are playing for a place in the City league semi-finals. Today's victor will meet Schurz next Saturday in one semi-final; Tilden plays Fenger in the other.

Scorekeepers May Be Busy

Both Austin and Harrison have strong lines, and both have outstanding scorers. Harrison has two performers who may give the scorekeeper a busy afternoon. Nunzio Mugavero leads the west section scorers with seven touchdowns and one extra point. His team mate, Jack Golden, has made six extra points and five touchdowns. Pacing Austin is Rocco Mavigliano, with six touchdowns. Austin has scored 111 points in six games; Harrison has registered 112. Austin has yielded 13; the Hornets 26.

Out in Maywood, the keeper of the scoreboard likewise may have a busy afternoon keeping tab on Mel Pfeifer of Proviso, leading Suburban league scorer with 36 points, and/or Oak Park's Bob Kritzer, who has registered 24.

Hawks Oppose Leafs Tonight on Toronto Ice

Games Tonight

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 9 [Special]—The first place Chicago Blackhawks, with five victories and one defeat on their season record, will oppose the Toronto Maple Leafs here tomorrow night in a National Hockey league encounter. The two teams then will hustle to Chicago where they are to meet again Sunday night in the Stadium before another sellout crowd.

Tomorrow's contest will be the second between the Hawks and Leafs this season, the Chicagoans having taken the first, 7 to 4, on their home ice. Toronto has lost five matches and played one tie in six starts this season.

Max Bentley of the Hawks, who scored three goals in his team's 5 to 4 victory over the Rangers in New York last night, now tops the league's point makers with nine. Toe Blake of the Montreal Canadiens, and Bill Mosienko of the Hawks are right behind with eight, and still another Chicagoan, Alex Kaleta, is fourth with seven points. Max and Kaleta returned to the ice this season after being in service for two and three years, respectively.

WHO'S AFRAID? NOT WISCONSIN!

N. U. Sentiment Is Same About Game Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 9—Wisconsin university's Badgers, their appetites slightly keener as the result of a Big Nine success over Iowa a week ago, are strangely complacent about their job of providing satisfactory football entertainment at Camp Randall tomorrow for 45,000 homecomers.

Even the nature of the opposition for the occasion—Northwestern's Wildcats who conquered Purdue—has spread no fear hereabouts altho it may be significant that in some quarters there are whisperings that, because of injuries, the Harry Stuhldreher gridiron pupils may not be at their best.

On the other hand, the few Wildcat adherents roaming the streets on the eve of the affair point out that their gang also is pretty badly fixed physically—what with having been smacked by Ohio State only last Saturday.

Frosh Know Way Around

The Wildcats, according to the latest communiques from Evanston, will present six freshmen in the starting lineup, three in the line, and the others in the back field but this doesn't mean a thing to the local adherents. They recall that Northwestern also sent out a large sized moan prior to the Purdue game, the reason being that things were so tough that six freshmen would have to start. Well, the Wildcats were so weakened by the abundance of yearling material that they clipped the Purdue championship boom by 26 to 14.

At least two Badgers will be absent as the result of the bruising received while whipping Iowa last Saturday. Martin Meyer, the regular left tackle, and George Urbanis, a relief guard, are out of regular action for the year, tho Meyer can exercise to the extent of kicking points after touchdowns, a job in which he excels.

McKinley Ready to Play

The Wildcats will have to do without Left Half Bruce Bairstow because of the souvenirs he picked up during the 16 to 14 defeat at Ohio State but this loss is partly offset by the recovery of Bob McKinley who had Bairstow's job and scored two touchdowns in the Purdue game. Since then McKinley has been handicapped by an ankle injury. The Wildcats also will have to rely on a new center, Freshman Bob Piros, a replacement for Ray Miller who was transferred by the navy.

The honor of acting as Badger captain for the homecoming has been tendered Don Kindt, right half back, who was wounded in the Italian campaign.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 9—More than 15,000 paters are expected to wend their way into Memorial stadium here tomorrow to witness what should be a right interesting football contest between the Illinois and Iowa elevens. Not only will the doings mark the 26th Illinois Dads' day, but they should also go far to determine full rights to occupancy of the 1945 Western conference basement.

It so happens that neither the Illini nor the Hawkeyes have won a league game in their 1945 endeavors, altho their respective records, based on points for and against, favor the home boys quite emphatically. In six games against such powerful worthies as Notre Dame, Indiana, and Michigan, the Illini have proven themselves so defensively obdurate that they have yielded only 57 points while collecting 36 for their side.

Each Wins Only Once

Thirty-three Hawkeyes, who arrived here along about the dinner hour this evening after a stopover drill on Chicago's Stagg field, won their first game of the season by defeating Bergstrom field, 14 to 13, a week after Illinois had scored its only triumph to date with a 23 to 6 decision over Pitt's Panthers. Clem Crowe's willing young men then were overpowered in five straight meetings with Ohio State, Purdue, Indiana, Notre Dame, and Wisconsin. For the season they have compiled 41 points to their foes' 230.

Lest the delusion created by these widely divergent point margins pump up his lads with overconfidence, Coach Ray Eliot of the Illini has been delivering lengthy lectures all week about one member of the Iowa ensemble. That would be Jerry Niles, the 6 foot 1¼ inch, 190 pound pitcher who has been filling the air with footballs since the season began.

Kwasniewski to Start

Eliot is fast gaining a reputation as the deftest juggler of talent in a season smitten by a peck of injury headaches. Last Saturday, in the 12 to 6 defeat by Great Lakes, Ray unveiled an Evanston back named Gene Kwasniewski, who paced the Illini to their last quarter touchdown. He incurred a leg injury in Tuesday's practice, but still is listed as a starter.

The Illinois back field underwent another shift, with Bill Krall moving up to full back in lieu of Bill Butkovich, who did well enough in the Great Lakes contest to earn his old role at quarter back.

BY ARCH WARD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, Nov. 9—Tomorrow is the day we find out whether all-victorious Army and undefeated Notre Dame merit their rating as the nation's No. 1 and No. 2 teams of college football. One or the other is almost certain to be crowded off that lofty plateau.

The 32d meeting of the gridiron's oldest intersectional rivals will draw a capacity crowd of 76,000 to Yankee stadium. Applications for tickets exceeded 315,000, probably a record for an American sports event. The stadium was sold out last August.

Thru the years it has been Notre Dame that annually packed New York's largest ball park. This time Army probably has drawn as many as the Irish, for there are thousands who feel this year's Cadet eleven may be the greatest collegiate unit of all time.

Army Practically Unchanged

West Point, with two or three exceptions, has the same squad that last November whipped Notre Dame, 59 to 0, for the worst defeat the Irish ever have suffered. The team has an added year of experience and maturity. It comes up to its big test in top physical condition. Notre Dame bears the scars of last week's 6 to 6 battle with Navy, altho Coach Hugh Devore plans to start the same lineup that performed so creditably against the Midshipmen.

Notre Dame arrived at Harmon this morning and the players were taken to Bear Mountain Inn, where they will remain until noon tomorrow. The Army worked out in Yankee stadium this afternoon and then retired to the Knollwood Country club up the Hudson where Cadet teams for years have spent the night before the Notre Dame game.

It's No Easy Task

Devore's unenviable assignment this week has been the preparation of a defense to stop Army's Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard, probably the two most dangerous ball carriers ever combined on one team. Davis last year scored three touchdowns against the Irish. His specialty is wide runs where he can utilize to the fullest his tremendous speed. If an opponent builds a defense to stop Davis' sweeps, it opens itself up to Blanchard's power attacks inside tackles.

It's possible to stop one or the other, but no team thus far has stopped both simultaneously. Davis has made 11 touchdowns this fall and Blanchard 10. Lest you conclude that Davis and Blanchard are West Point's only back field threats, we hasten to add that Shorty McWilliams, a newcomer to the squad, has scored seven touchdowns.

Irish Backs Are Pretty Good

Notre Dame has no backs to match the brilliance of Davis, Blanchard, and McWilliams, but it has a group that would look good by comparison with any other combination besides Army's. Elmer Angsman, Phil Colella, and Terry Brennan can move with the best and Full Back Ruggerio is as reliable a ball carrier as the team has had in recent years. Neither Army nor any other foe will present a better forward passer than Frank Dancewicz.

Army unquestionably has an edge in back field personnel, but that may not be decisive. The outcome will rest on the strength of the line. If Notre Dame's forwards outplay Army's, the Cadet speedsters may never get a chance to utilize their superiority.

$5,000 Race Heads Charity Program; Advance Post Time

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Three handicap races, topped by the first running of the $5,000 added Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., mile and one eighth event, which has attracted a fine field of 11, will be presented today at Sportsman's Park as the six day charity meeting is brought to a close.

The fastest thorobreds at the Cicero half mile establishment have been named for the trio of headliners which includes the $2,500 Arch Ward Handicap and the $2,500 Rosenav Handicap, both seven furlong sprints.

Earlier Post Time

Nine well filled races have been arranged by Racing Secretary William R. Dahlstrom. Post time for the first race is 12:45. The meeting, which opened last Monday, bids fair to overshadow the Tribune Charities' six-day program last fall which netted the organization $245,000.

Heading the field for the feature race is the entry of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Troutt of Benton, the 7 year old stake horse, Take Wing, and Cerberus, a consistent performer in the Chicago area this season. Cerberus, 6 year old gelding, will carry top impost of 122 pounds, four more than his stable mate.

The Happy Hour Farm also has a two horse entry, Cherry Wine and Devalue, winner of the $50,000 Stars and Stripes Handicap at Washington Park this summer. Take Wing won the big stake in 1942.

Chipamink in Ward Handicap

The mud running Chipamink, winner in his last three races, has been entered by the Silver Star Stock farm in the Arch Ward handicap, seventh race on the card, and the 5 year old son of Peanuts has been assigned high weight of 122 pounds. His chief opposition figures to come from M. H. Van Berg's She Didn't, winner in her last two starts, and Mrs. Karl Mayer's Whose. Cerberus was named for this race as well as the main event.

The Rosenav handicap lists 18 nominees, headed by Mrs. Al Gaal's Catchweista and Ben Fogelson's Pomp's Gal.

Horse	Wt.	Jockey	Prob. odds
Chief Adviser	103	A. Burdy	15-1
Parasang	110	D. Jessop	12-1
*Cerberus	122	R. Sanabria	7-5
Go Devil	108	No boy	6-1
*Take Wing	118	B. Nichols	7-5
†Cherry Wine	110	J. W. Martin	8-1
In the Bag	108	N. L. Pierson	8-1
†Devalue	109	J. W. Martin	8-1

Bushwhacker	114	A. Applebee	8-1
Latent	110	J. Jessop	10-1

*Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Troutt entry.
†Happy Hour farm entry.

Yesterday's semi-final program attracted a crowd of 5,748, bringing the attendance for five days to 37,807. The betting amounted to $580,337, and the total for the meeting reached $3,517,967.

Boilermakers Expect to Win Last Home Game

It will be the final home appearance of the Boilermakers, who will wind up the season on the road in Western conference engagements with Michigan and Indiana.

This last appearance of the offensive minded Purdue combination in Ross-Ade stadium, is expected to attract a crowd of 12,000. Lineup:

drive toward its first championship in conference history.

Minnesota claims it is short of reserves, altho the number of substitutions in recent games would seem to deny the allegation. There's no doubt but an Indiana victory must depend on the Hoosier regulars.

The Hoosiers have poignant memory of last year's 19 to 14 defeat by Minnesota on this same gridiron when a forward pass in the closing minutes erased Indiana's lead. This, as well as previous failures, possibly may make the Hoosiers jittery. Certainly they are under pressure of their conference leadership.

Spartans Aim to Surprise Sailors Again

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 9 [Special]—Michigan State, which scored an upset victory over Great Lakes in 1942, will attempt to repeat the feat when the Spartans meet the Bluejackets before 12,000 here tomorrow.

In 1942 a Great Lakes team which was led by Bruce Smith and included such players as Bob Sweiger and Urban Odson of Minnesota and Carl Mulleneaux of the Green Bay Packers, was dealt a 14 to 0 defeat by Michigan State. In tomorrow's game Michigan State again will be the underdog. Probable lineups:

LAKE FOREST'S PREPS WIN, 41-0

Pile Up Easy Victory at Woodstock High

The Lake Forest High school football team yesterday concluded its Northeast conference schedule by defeating Woodstock, 41 to 0, on the Woodstock field. The triumph was Lake Forest's sixth in seven games, its only loss, the first in two years, being dealt recently by the Crystal Lake eleven which captured the conference title.

As a feature of yesterday's game, Coach Edgar Lindermeyer turned the coaching duties over to the team, with Capt. George Evans and Quarter Back Paul Barker directing it thru the entire contest.

Lake Forest ran up a 21 to 0 score by the end of the first period, when Evans and Barker called out the first team. The reserves took over, but did not score by half time. The regulars returned to the contest in the second half to score 20 points. All players on the Lake Forest team saw action, with Leonard Burns scoring three times. One touchdown was the completion of a 60 yard pass play, with Burns taking an aerial from Barker.

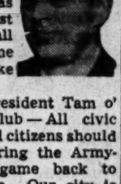
Drive to Bring Army-Navy Game to Chicago Lauded

Sports and civic leaders in Chicago yesterday expressed elation over the possibility of the Army-Navy football game being played in Soldiers' field next year following announcement in THE TRIBUNE that Mayor Kelly had opened a determined drive for the transfer of the annual service battle to the lake front arena.

Transportation facilities, housing accommodations, and a large field for the game were cited as ideal for the shift from eastern gridirons. It would be the first appearance of the Cadets and Middies in the midwest in 20 years, the service elevens battling to a 21 to 21 tie before 110,000 on Nov. 27, 1926.

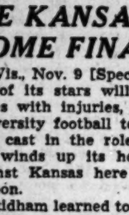
Comment from the city's leading sportsmen on the proposal follows:

P. K. Wrigley, owner Chicago Cubs—The transfer of the Army-Navy game to Chicago would be great for the city. It has been a long time since this service classic was played in the midwest and I'm sure football fans would welcome its return to the lake front.



George S. May, president Tam o' Shanter Country club—All civic minded citizens should help bring the Army-Navy game back to Chicago. Our city is becoming the sports center of the world and it is fitting and proper that the game be played here in 1946.

Arthur Wirtz, vice president, Chicago Stadium—Chicago is a great transportation center and has the tremendous facilities to accommodate the thousands who would like to see the Army-Navy game back in the middle west.



Gov. Green—The proposal to bring the 1946 Army-Navy game to Chicago should have the careful consideration of the service authorities. No other stadium in the nation is better equipped than Soldiers' field to handle this great game. From the geographic standpoint, it would be a logical move to bring the game to the middle west. It would heighten the interest of fans and enable more of them from all sections of the country to see this spectacle.

Kenneth L. [Tug] Wilson, Western conference commissioner — It would be a great opportunity for midwesterners to see two fine service teams in action. I witnessed the 1926 game and hope we will have the chance to see the 1946 game in Soldiers' field. It's a grand spectacle and a great football game.

George F. Barrett, attorney general—Chicago has proved itself as one of the finest sports cities in the world. Transfer of the Army-Navy game to Soldiers' field would add another spectacle to our sports calendar, and would give midwesterners a chance to see these two brilliant service teams.

Maj. Ednyfed H. Williams, chairman, Illinois Racing board—I'm 100 per cent behind the movement to bring the Army-Navy game to Chicago in 1946. I've never forgotten the brilliant spectacle of 1926 in Soldiers' field and I sincerely hope the transfer will be accomplished.

November

A film of cobweb floating in the air,
A gauze-like fabric hanging in the glow,
Wild geese a-wheeling to the southland fair
As squirrels sniff the scent of coming snow.
Sweet songsters sing their vespers in due form—
Their farewell song until they meet in May;
This is November's calm before the storm

COUNT VOTES ON ONE-DAY STATE TOURNEY TODAY

Whether the 1946 state high school basketball tournament will be a one day, four team meeting or the traditional 16 team tournament lasting three days will be determined today when the board of control of the Illinois High School association meets today in the association headquarters, 21 S. La Salle st.

The board, which has considered a proposal by the State Principals association that the tournament be a four team, one day meeting and has heard strong opposition on that proposal from the State Coaches association, will count ballots from all state high school principals and decide according to the sentiment shown by that vote.

Last night speculations were that the board would retain the 16 team meeting, since many principals have changed their opinions after first voting in favor of their own association's proposal.

Giant Eleven Signs Franck for 2 Seasons

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—Marine Capt. George E. Franck, former half back at the University of Minnesota in 1940 and a star with the New York Football Giants in 1941, signed a two year contract with that club today and participated in a workout at the Polo Grounds.

GOT CHECK, SAYS KEESHIN

John L. Keeshin, owner of the Chicago All-America conference eleven, yesterday explained his negotiations with George Franck which led to an announcement on Oct. 16 that the former Minnesota star would play with Chicago in 1946.

"Franck received a $200 check from us," said Keeshin. "On the back of the check he wrote that in consideration for this amount he would play football in 1946 with the Chicago All-America eleven.

"The consideration which was accepted and Franck's endorsement on the check, which was cleared thru the bank, in my opinion, makes this a legal document and Franck is bound to fulfil our agreement.

"But since his desires are to play with the New York Giants he has my best wishes."

Layden Not Available

Elmer Layden, commissioner of the National Football league, was unavailable for comment yesterday, but this statement was issued by George Strickler, the league's public relations director:

"Franck called at the commissioner's office Wednesday and established to Mr. Layden's satisfaction that he had never had any intention of playing anywhere except in the National Football league; that he had not signed any football contract, except with the National league, and that he hoped the New York Giants would exercise their option under the contract which still was in force when he entered service."

TWO LIONS GET A JOINT ORDER: STOP LUCKMAN!

Nelson, Callihan to Try It Tomorrow

BY EDWARD PRELL

Bobby Nelson, a 215 pounder from Baylor, and Bill Callihan, a 230 pounder from the University of Nebraska, seven years removed, are the two fellows who kept the Bears from victory two Sundays ago in Detroit. This pair will try to play the same key role—rushing Sid Luckman so boisterously his aim is spoiled—in tomorrow's game in Wrigley field.

Nelson is listed as a guard, Callihan as a quarter back, but when the Bears have the ball the Texan moves to left end and the Nebraskan to right end.

They Try to Stop Sid

They have one definite job to do and that's to make Luckman think he's in a subway rush. In Detroit they did a magnificent job, but the Bears were fighting against odds. Their best end, George Wilson, was out of the game and the two Lions crashed into the back field without too much trouble. Then all they had to do was brush out of the way two 175 pound half backs, Hugh Gallarneau and Bob Margarita.

"Nelson and Callihan are like two 70 ton tanks on the prowl," said Co-Coach Luke Johnsos yesterday. "And the other lads in the Detroit line are big, rough, and fast. Of course we're hoping that we give Luckman more protection than he had in Detroit. I'd say their linemen out weigh ours at least 15 pounds a man and that's a lot of weight to give away."

Lions Needs This One

Johnsos, and all the other Bears, are prepared to meet a Detroit team which is keyed to the highest pitch. The Lions can't falter now, with the season running out, and hope to stay in the western division race.

The Lions' line has the best record against running plays in the league, but the Bears ran for 133 yards in Detroit, while the Chicago forwards limited their opponents' rushing gains to 15 paltry yards. And last Sunday, in the 28 to 24 victory over Green Bay, the Bears held the 1944 champions to 35 yards from scrimmage. Of course, they won't have Lee Artoe tomorrow and it's doubtful if big Johnny Schiechl, center, will be able to play. Otherwise the Bears will go into the game in good shape.

Bears Are Favorites

Detroit has won five games against one loss, the Bears have lost five and won one—yet Chicago bookmakers have established the Bears as 6½ point favorites. The Cleveland Rams, who will defend their share of the western section lead against the Packers tomorrow in the Ohio metropolis, likewise are 6½ point favorites.

Rabbit, Quail, Pheasant Now Legal Targets

BY BOB BECKER

Pheasant, rabbit, and quail hunters will move into Illinois game fields by the hundreds of thousands tomorrow morning to open the 1945 season on these species of game. Conservation authorities anticipate the largest outpouring of hunters that the state has seen since before the war with many of the hunters newly discharged service men taking their first hunting trips since Pearl Harbor.

The pheasant season will continue thru Nov. 25 with a limit of two cock birds per day. The state has turned out many birds in northern Illinois which gets the heaviest hunting pressure of any area in the state so shooters should get pretty good hunting during the first days of the open season.

Beware of Tularemia

Quail hunters will assemble in the southern half of the state where the bob whites had a better nesting season than the pheasants experienced in the northern half.

Several conservation officers in northern Illinois have issued warnings about the presence of tularemia among the rabbits so the cottontail shooters are warned to handle their game with care.

Public Area Time Reserved

Pheasant hunters are advised not to go to the public hunting grounds above Fox lake tomorrow or on any day of the hunting season unless they have permits to shoot there. This new tract of hunting ground can take care of a limited number of shooters and only those with permits can be admitted to the area.

RAY ROBINSON LOSES DECISION IN LEGAL BOUT

Ray [Sugar] Robinson, New York welterweight contender, who has lost only one decision in 58 bouts, suffered his first defeat in a legal case yesterday. A jury of 10 women and two men in Municipal Judge William V. Daly's court brought in a $5,000 verdict for the complainant, Fred Irvin, promoter, also from New York.

Irvin's suit was based on a claim Robinson owed him $6,200 for expenses and his share of earnings totaling $28,000, which Ray was guaranteed for bouts against Jack La motta in Comiskey park and Jimmy Mandell in Buffalo. Irvin attached Robinson's $25,000 purse for the fight with Lamotta.

In arriving at the agreed sum the jury awarded Irvin $915.80 for expenses intead of the $2,000 he claimed was due him, in addition to $4,084.20, or 15 per cent of Robinson's earnings for the two bouts.

Motion for a new trial will be heard by Judge Daly Tuesday.

UTILITY, SPECIAL STOCKS PUSH UP; RAILS SELL OFF

Price Hopes Aid Sugars in Mixed Market

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—Buying in utility and specialty stocks today pushed them to peaks for nearly nine years with gains of fractions to more than 3 points, but many industrial leaders recorded further losses to keep the market irregular.

The power group, which will benefit substantially from elimination of excess profits taxes, was buoyed partly by the President's signing of the new revenue measure. Sugar stocks were strong as short supplies aroused hopes of increased prices. Steels and motors still were depressed by labor controversies. Most rails lost on profit cashing.

Irregularity prevailed from the start, with gains outnumbering losses by 418 to 373 in another broad market involving 1,002 issues. Trading quickened in the final hour tho the transfers were down to 1,830,000 shares from 1,960,000 yesterday. The Associated Press 60 stock average was unchanged at 74.7.

Cautious for Week-End

Numerous customers trimmed commitments in preparation for another long week-end, with principal markets recessed thru Monday in observance of Armistice day. Others believed a sizable technical reaction was overdue. Idle funds, inflationary prospects, dividends, and earnings aided individual favorites.

Reaching new highs were American Power and Light, aided by securities and exchange commission approval of a bond retirement plan; Standard Gas $4 preferred, further reflecting prospects of an amended recapitalization program; American Water Works, Columbia Gas, Commonwealth and Southern, again the most active issue; United corporation, American Distilling, Eureka Vacuum, and Silver King. Allied Chemical climbed 4 points.

UTILITY BONDS AT PEAK

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—Bonds generally held in a narrow price range as volume slackened today before the Armistice day recess. Transactions of $5,880,000 face value compared with $6,910,000 yesterday.

Utilities, led by such issues as International Hydro Electric 6s, up 1¼, and International Telephone 4½s, up ¼, were at a new high for 1945. Rails encountered moderate selling.

PARKER PEN SETS HIGH

Parker Pen company stock rose to a new 1945 high on the Chicago Stock Exchange yesterday in an irregular market in which 57,000 shares were traded. Parker reached 74, up 18, but a director of the company said this was not unusual, the gain appearing large because the stock had not been traded on the Chicago exchange for several weeks. He recalled that the stock sold on the New York Curb exchange earlier this week at 72 and 73.

More active issues included Admiral corporation and Standard Dredging, each up ¼; Domestic Industries, up ⅝; Middle West, up ⅞, and Chicago corporation, down ⅝.

GREAT LAKES DREDGE

The company's normally extensive river, harbor, and water front improvement operations were reduced after 1943 because of restrictions on construction work not essential to the war effort. Six months after the proclamation of the end of the war, however, the war department is planning to initiate much work of this character, already approved by congress.

Great Lakes Dredge and Dock's participation in the bidding would be confined principally to operations on or near the Great Lakes and along the eastern seaboard. Among projects in the Lakes region, for which funds have been made available for preparing plans and specifications, is the Calumet-Sag channel improvement to cost about 26 million dollars.

The company's business is reported to have continued at a low level this year. Altho the 1944 profit was only 32 cents a share on the 539,720 shares, the regular dividend of $1 a year has been continued. Payments of this amount were made each year since 1930, and were supplemented by extras in seven of those years. Cash distributions were made yearly since 1906 except 1918 and 1919.

Share earnings were $3.21 in 1943, $3.26 in 1942, 44 cents in 1941, and 62 cents in 1940. They averaged $2.69 in the five years ended with 1939. Earned surplus at the end of 1944 was $8,455,000, current assets $8,293,000, and current liabilities $685,000. There was no long term debt.

MIDWEST ASKS LABOR ACCORDS BE VOLUNTARY

Fights Compulsion in Arbitration

BY THOMAS FURLONG
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 — The national labor-management conference called by President Truman was informed today that middle western manufacturers are opposed to compulsory arbitration of labor disputes.

Management delegates to the conference were asked to avoid any commitments that would perpetuate the war labor board's compulsory arbitration system.

The request was transmitted to the 18 management delegates by E. M. Sims, president of the Midwest Manufacturing Associations, Inc., made up of industry groups in 11 middle western states, including the Illinois Manufacturers' association. Sims is president of the Metal Forming corporation of Elkhart, Ind.

Ask WLB Liquidation

Sims submitted to the management delegates copies of a statement of policy unanimously approved by the member organizations of his group. It asked that the war labor board be abolished and its wage stabilization functions transferred to the department of labor.

"Experience with the war labor board has fully demonstrated that compulsory arbitration of labor disputes is undesirable and unsatisfactory," the statement said. "We are accordingly opposed to the continuation of the principle of compulsory arbitration of labor disputes in our peace time economy, irrespective of the agency thru which such arbitration is imposed."

Machinery for voluntary arbitration is available thru the department of labor, the statement added.

Many Industries Represented

Maximum production and employment cannot be achieved if compulsory arbitration is imposed as a result of recommendations, made by the conference, the delegates were informed.

Nearly a third of the country's manufacturing plants are located in the 11 middle western states from which the recommendations came. Thirty-three per cent of the industrial employes in the nation work in these states and receive 36 per cent of the industrial wages paid.

In his opening address to the conference last Monday, President Truman hinted that the federal government might find it necessary to establish some system of arbitration if the conference failed to develop a satisfactory substitute. The opposition from industry to such machinery is shared by most of the labor groups represented at the conference.

Accept Bargaining Principle

Dr. George W. Taylor, conference secretary, said today that all six working committees of the conference have accepted the principles of collective bargaining. He contrasted this attitude with that of the labor-management conference, called in 1919 by President Wilson. That conference collapsed because of management's refusal to accept collective bargaining, Taylor said.

Taylor also announced that public hearings will be held Nov. 14 and 15 to receive recommendations from business and labor groups not represented at the conference. Among them are the independent unions of New Jersey, the Investors' League of New York, and the American Watch Workers' union.

FIELD'S PLANS 2 IMPROVEMENTS TO LOOP STORE

Marshall Field & Co. is receiving bids on two construction projects in its loop store which if carried out will add 25,600 square feet of merchandising space, it was disclosed yesterday. Plans by Shaw, Naess & Murphy, architects, contemplate the addition of four floors to the nine story Holden court section, which connects the State and Wabash sections at Washington st. This would give 17,600 square feet of floor space.

In addition Field's contemplates building floors over the well structure in the State and Washington section from the 9th to the 14th floor. These additions in five stories will give 8,000 square feet of shopping space.

Consumer Goods Prices Slightly Lower in Chicago

Retail prices of consumer goods in Chicago decreased 0.3 per cent between Aug. 15 and Sept. 15, the Chicago regional office of the bureau of labor statistics reported yesterday. Higher prices for home furnishings, clothing, eggs, and dried fruits and vegetables were offset by lower costs of fresh fruits and vegetables, fish, and meat.

Owners Back Higgins' Move to Liquidate

New Orleans, La., Nov. 9 (AP)—Stockholders decided today to liquidate three Higgins Industries, Inc., shipbuilding plants which have been beset by labor troubles. They unanimously backed President Andrew J. Higgins Sr., who closed the plants Nov. 1 in the midst of a strike by 2,000 AFL employes.

The first union reaction came from William L. Donnels, publicity chairman.

"I think Higgins is still playing to the galleries," he said. "He has the idea of striking a mortal blow at labor and making of himself a martyr and hero overnight. But it is not working out that way. I think he planned all along to liquidate Higgins Industries."

Will Act Immediately

A stockholders' announcement said that the out-of-court liquidation would take place immediately under Higgins and Morris Gottesmann, secretary-treasurer, who led the company thru a vast war time invasion craft construction program. The announcement said existing contracts would be carried out "if possible" by the liquidators.

Higgins would not clarify the point of whether "existing contracts" meant a back-log of 40 million dollars in contracts for pleasure and commercial craft.

Donnels said he planned to confer with union officials on the announcement, and added that a statement may be forthcoming later from the union committee.

Union to Insist on Probe

"The AFL unions will insist more strongly than ever now on an investigation of the closing of the plants," he said. "If necessary, we'll even send a delegation to Washington."

The unions have asked President Truman and congress to make an investigation.

U. S. NEWSPRINT OUTPUT RUNNING SHORT OF GOAL

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 (AP)—Newsprint production of United States mills already is 6,000 tons less than was estimated for the fourth quarter of 1945 and the decline continues, Col. J. Hale Steinman, printing and publishing chief of the civilian production administration, said today. Some northwestern mills have cut deliveries 20 per cent.

The scarcity is creating overorders on Canadian mills which already supply about 80 per cent of the newsprint consumed in this country, he said. Canadian mills are filling commitments for increased deliveries during the quarter, but they cannot handle the 10,000 tons of overorders accumulating monthly, Steinman said.

FISHER CAR BODY OUTPUT MEETS DEMANDS OF G. M.

The Fisher Body division of General Motors corporation is producing sufficient car bodies to meet all current requirements of the corporation's five automobile divisions, Thomas P. Archer, vice president of G. M. and general manager of Fisher, said yesterday.

Altho he did not disclose the number of bodies being turned out daily, he said the company expected to reach its pre-war peak of 10,000 a day shortly after Jan. 1.

Fisher's post-war plans call for the operation of 26 plants, four more than before the war.

Walgreen Sales Mount 4.3 Per Cent in October

Walgreen company yesterday reported sales of $10,491,785 in October, compared with $10,063,050 a year ago, an increase of 4.3 per cent. Sales in the first 10 months of this year totaled $96,129,142, compared with $87,180,190.

TREASURY TELLS HOW TO REDEEM EXCESS PROFIT REFUND BONDS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 (AP)—The treasury today announced the procedure for redemption of excess profits tax refund bonds, as authorized in the recently enacted tax adjustment act of 1945. The tax refund bonds become eligible for redemption on Jan. 1.

Owners who desire payment on Jan. 1 were urged to surrender their bonds immediately. Others were requested to surrender them well in advance of any later payment date desired.

Full instructions on how to submit the bonds for redemption will be mailed within the next few days to the approximately 70,000 owners of record.

Assignment of the bonds to the secretary of the treasury for redemption will be made by executing a form on the back of the securities, unless other specific instructions are received by the owners. The bonds then will be forwarded to the treasury department, fiscal service, division of loans and currency, Washington 25, D. C., or to any federal reserve bank or branch.

Altho eligible for redemption Jan. 1, the bonds remain non-negotiable until six months after the formal ending of the war. Bonds in the amount of $1,112,536,347 were outstanding on Oct. 31. They do not bear interest.

WLB to Form New Division on Pay Rules

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 (AP)—The war labor board tonight moved to create a division with labor, government, and industry representatives to carry out wage stabilization functions during the remainder of the board's existence.

The WLB acted at the request of President Truman, who wrote Chairman Lloyd K. Garrison that he would establish in the labor department a successor agency to this temporary division.

The wage stabilization act, which expires June 30, assigns to WLB certain duties to guard against unstabilizing wage increases or decreases. Because the act does not expire for six months after the expected WLB dissolution the President was required to provide some machinery to carry out the stabilization functions.

"The functions of the stabilization division will be to carry out the board's responsibility for passing on voluntary applications for approval of wage adjustments and enforcement cases arising under the wage stabilization program," Garrison said. "The division will take over all pending applications and cases of this sort. It will not deal with any dispute cases."

Garrison assigned as public members W. Willard Wirtz, as chairman, and Sylvester Garrett, chairman of the Philadelphia regional board. Industry and labor members will be announced shortly.

Tells of Urgent Housing Need for Veterans

Seeks Aid Thru Bill

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 (AP)—Terming the housing shortage "really critical," Rep. Patman [D., Tex.] said after a talk with President Truman today he will introduce a bill to give priority to veterans in getting materials and supplies to build modest priced houses and in renting new homes in the transition just as war workers were given preference in the war. Patman said there should also be some control on prices of homes to prevent inflation.

BY AL CHASE

Widespread diversion of materials and man power from urgently needed housing is the real barrier to the construction of homes thruout the country, Joseph E. Merrion, president of the National Association of Home Builders, said yesterday.

Just back from Washington, D. C., where the nation-wide home shortage was discussed by N. A. H. B. and government officials, Merrion said much needed lumber, brick, and other materials, along with equally needed skilled labor, are being channeled into structures that are not needed.

Takes Materials from Homes

Merrion told of a million dollar nonessential project recently announced for Chicago which will take away from residential construction enough brick to build 100 homes.

Twice as much commercial, industrial, and other non-residential construction [including theaters, gas stations, garages, and schools] as home building was done in the last three months in Chicago, Merrion said.

"In addition to all these handicaps, builders trying to finish houses for occupancy as fast as possible are being told by lumber yards and brick manufacturers that their products are not available to complete the jobs," said Merrion.

Says All Resources Needed

"There is only one way to get homes for veterans and other desperate home seekers. That is to build them, using all the resources of the building industry. There is a limited supply of materials and labor. Public opinion must see that not a brick nor a man hour be diverted from the production of houses except for what is recognized as an essential building job."

G. M., PACKARD EARNINGS DROP ON CONVERSION

3d Quarter Reports Reflect Impact

Reconversion's effect on industry's earning power was reflected yesterday in third quarter earnings and sales reports of General Motors corporation and Packard Motor Car company.

Alfred P. Sloan, chairman, said September quarter net income decreased to $36,791,784, or 78 cents a share, from $42,227,409, or 90 cents a share, a year earlier. Net earnings in the first nine months were $147,749,167, or $3.20 a share, against $124,997,304, or $2.68 a share.

Sloan said of the 78 cents a share earned in the third quarter, 36 cents represented the results of operations, and 42 cents the effect of utilization of the reserve for contingencies to absorb reconversion costs.

Sales Drop in Third Quarter

Sales slid to $588,987,045 in the third quarter from $992,231,648 in the second quarter because of reconversion, Sloan said. Volume in the nine months totaled $2,603,911,868, against $3,259,194,235 a year ago. Sloan said sales this year included more than 2 billion dollars of war products and below ½ billion of commercial products. Sales a year ago included almost 3 billions of war material and more than 294 millions of commercial products.

Reconversion employment has passed the low point and is headed upward, said Sloan. An average of 311,870 employes was on the pay rolls in the third quarter, compared with 461,707 a year ago.

Increased excess overhead expenses resulting from reconversion costs and reduced manufacturing volume took a substantial slice out of Packard Motor Car company profits in the nine months ended Sept. 30, said George T. Christopher, president and general manager.

Net earnings fell to $1,070,500, or 7 cents a share, from $3,280,131, or 22 cents a share, a year earlier. Profits at midyear were $1,864,450, thus the gain in net income totaled only $6,050 in the September quarter.

Well Below Year Ago

Sales and billings, reflecting termination of production in mid-September of Rolls-Royce aircraft engines and reduction of PT-boat schedules, totaled $205,018,074 in the nine months, against $354,503,682 a year earlier. The federal income tax bill approximated $4,403,000 against $15,026,000 a year ago.

"The third quarter of 1945 reflects the sharp step-up in reconversion following completion of our largest war program, aircraft engine production, and reduction of our marine engine schedules," said Christopher.

"Because of the vital war importance of both type engines, these programs were continued following V-J day but, at the same time, we plunged into quickened reconversion."

Plant reconversion is well on its way and automobile production begun on new final assembly lines will increase steadily toward the company's goal of 200,000 cars annually, he said.

DIRECTORS VOTE MERGER OF TWO BIG AIR LINES

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—Proposed merger of Pennsylvania-Central Airlines and Northeast Airlines was approved today by directorates of the organizations. Proposal to End Credit Rule Results in Clash of Opinions

Whether the government should end its curbs on instalment buying is a controversial question among Chicago bankers, economists, credit men, and merchandisers. Some spokesmen yesterday agreed wholeheartedly with the Retail Credit Institute of America which Thursday asked President Truman to end regulation W, the federal reserve board's consumer credit control, but others opposed the plan.

Harry C. Hausman

The institute, which represents more than 1,000 retail merchants in 44 states, in a petition to the President said regulation W would destroy thousands of small merchants.

War Time Control

Regulation W is a war time control which should be eliminated now, said Harry C. Hausman, secretary of the Illinois Bankers association. The need of the curb is ended and it represents an unnecessary piece of burocratic control, he said.

If removed, business should police itself on credit extensions, Hausman said. He recalled 1939 when automobiles were financed on a "practically nothing down basis and three years to pay." The trade soon learned this was an unhealthy situation.

A leading bank economist thought the question of continuing the regulation "not too important at present." No dire need exists for consumer credit extensions, he said, explaining that emphasis should be put on production "to get things rolling fast."

Says Conditions Are Different

M. J. Spiegel Jr., president of Spiegel, Inc., whose former business policy of full credit was particularly hard hit by the regulation in 1942, said the situation today is "entirely different."

The institute is "talking thru its hat" when it warns of the danger to small merchants, he said. Sales volume of stores today is not limited by the regulation, but by lack of merchandise. When merchandise flows freely, the curb probably will be eliminated, he predicted.

H. H. Faulstich, president of the Chicago Association of Credit Men, said his organization had no well defined policy on the regulation.

DEMURRAGE CHARGES HIKED TO EASE FRATE DELAY, CAR SHORTAGE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 (AP)—The office of defense transportation today announced two interstate commerce commission emergency orders, designed to relieve a shortage of box cars by overcoming delays in rail frate movement. One imposes heavy demurrage charges on loading and unloading of box cars. The other requires railroads to unload promptly—within 10 days—all frate cars for which they are responsible. Both are effective next Thursday for 30 days.

The demurrage schedule: First 24 hours after arrival of a car, no charge; the next two days thereafter, $2.20 per car per day; third day, $5.50 per car; fourth day, $11, and each succeeding day, $16.50.

Military Orders Surplus Airports Be Left Intact

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 (AP)—The war and navy departments have issued orders that airports to be declared surplus must generally be left intact, Surplus Property Administrator Symington said today.

RYE PRICE TOPS WHEAT FIRST TIME SINCE '21

Grains Extend Rise in Heavy Trade

Grain futures prices advanced again yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade in trading that recalled the big markets which followed World War I. December rye sold above December wheat the first time in Chicago since 1921. December and May rye, and all deliveries of wheat and oats reached new seasonal peaks.

December rye sold at $1.82¾ a bushel at one time, up 54 cents from the low of mid-August and 1⅞ cents over December wheat. The wheat upturn was checked at $1.80½, the ceiling price.

Discount Profit Taking

Altho heavy profit taking followed the advance rye closed ¾ to 2 cents higher on the active futures with the July delivery unchanged at the ceiling price. Wheat gained ¼ to 1⅝ with December at the ceiling in all leading markets. Oats gained ⅝ to 1¼. Corn was unchanged at the $1.18½ ceiling. Barley finished ⅝ lower to ⅛ higher.

Rye has advanced for 13 consecutive days. Belief that no cash rye will be available for delivery purposes was a factor. A department of agriculture report showed the government on Sept. 30 owned 2,300,000 bushels of rye or 10 per cent of the total stocks estimated to be available for domestic use.

Winnipeg Rye Up Limit

Mills and cash interests led the buying of wheat futures. Some buying was regarded as removing hedges against sales to England. The immensity of the European demand for foodstuffs was indicated by official French reports estimating 1945 food crops at 33 to 50 per cent of the pre-war average.

The clearing house of the Chicago Board of Trade announced clearing house margins on rye would be 25 cents a bushel, up 10 cents, effective at once.
